rule the school

How does JHS feel about the new rules?

NEW YEAR, NEW RULES.

The beginning of the 2024-2025 school year came with many new things: new freshmen, new staff, and a new vending machine. One of the biggest changes, however, was the implementation of new rules by the state and administration. Although there were whispers and rumors last year, the new no-phone and backpack policies took effect on August 7th. "At Jasper High School, maintaining consistency in enforcing cell phone policies is crucial, as student defiance tends to increase over the school year. Teachers need to be consistent and approachable to effectively manage this issue. While students generally comply with the backpack policy, which was established pre-COVID to prevent vandalism and damage, ongoing discipline challenges can increase compliance. The school also faces high absenteeism but is fortunate to have support from juvenile court to help reduce juvenile detention rates. Additionally, increased tardiness remains a concern," explains Dr. Cassidy Nalley, Disciplinary Principal at JHS. With these new laws implemented, student life started to look different. Without the distraction of their phones, students began to work on homework and study during homeroom. However, because backpacks weren't permitted, student tardiness increased due to more students needing to stop by their lockers. Since this is the first year of the backpack policy, many lockers get jammed easily, and some won't open at all. Freshman Willow Ahrens testifies, "Sometimes my locker doesn't open, and it has caused me to be late to multiple classes."

super seniors

The class of 2025 has never lost in a game of tug-of-war (except that one time that they don't talk about).

NO SWEAT. Seniors Kai Kunz and Brayden Giesler laugh at themselves while they struggle to beat the juniors.

WINNING STREAK. Maybe it was written in the stars, maybe it was luck, but there is no doubt that the class of 2025 was made to play tug of war. The team consisting of Aaron Huelsman, Evan Nordhoff, Carson Matheis, Tyson Ruhe, Jesse Uebelhoer, Daniel Arevalo Graciano, Mason Gegogaine, Luke Heichelbech, Hunter Eckert, Brayden Giesler, Braden Merrimon, and Kai Kunz have won their class spirit points at every first day of school pep rally, except for one close game against the class of 2023 while they (2025) were sophomores. The team continues their streak into their senior year.

pop culture

The most memorable pop culture moments from Autumn 2024.

"This song makes me feel like a summer girly pop."

- Brooke Williams (11)

August

7 years after its original release, "Symphony" by Clean Bandit ft. Zara Larsson, became viral on TikTok. Creators would use the song and a vibrant picture of a dolphin jumping with a rainbow, and add a caption about something serious, creating a funny juxtaposition.

August

After the popular Colleen Hoover novel It Ends With Us was adapted to fit the big screen, drama between the co-stars Blake Lively and Justin Baldoni became exposed by the spotlight. The promotional tour of the film showed a rift between the stars with Baldoni being excluded from different events. This brought attention back to the film's cast, with people noting Lively's attitude towards different interviewers on the movie's press tour.

Months later, Lively sued Baldoni for sexual harassment and claimed he engaged in "social manipulation" against Blake. With opinions being split in the media, the situation turned into a "he-said she-said" situation with fans not knowing who to trust.

"Blake is a queen, but I think she's asking for attention"
- Lillyanna Roberts (12)

September 16

Producer Sean "Diddy" Combs, also known as P Diddy, had his home raided amid civil lawsuits accusing him of assault by multiple individuals over a span of more than 30 years. He was then arrested on September 16, with 43 civil cases and 4 federal cases against him. He pleaded not guilty and awaited his May 5th trial date in prison, being held without the possibility of bail.

"1000 bottles of baby oil is crazy."
- Jackelyn Diaz (11)

"Pesto is cute, but Moo Deng is just better."
- Magnolia Hildenbrand (9)

September 24

Moo Deng, a baby pygmy hippopotamus from the Khao Kheow Open Zoo in Thailand, became viral because of her adorable looks and chaotic behavior. Moo Deng's title for cutest internet celebrity became contested after the King Penguin Pesto got admiration for his exceptionally large size during his infancy.

October 16

Former One Direction member, Liam Payne, tragically died after falling off a hotel balcony in Argentina. Fans were especially upset at his death, as the possibility of a One Direction reunion faded away.

"He died on my birthday. I cried."
- Ruby Wanninger (10)

"None of them were hot enough."
- Caelyn Lenardo (12)

October 27

A Timothee Chalamet look-alike contest held in Washington Square Park, New York City, had hundreds of people, including Chalamet himself, joining the scene. Miles Mitchell, the winner, got $50 and was included in an SNL cameo with Timothee. This contest inspired other look alike contests in the Big Apple, including one for Jeremy Allen White, Jack Schlossberg, and Jacob Elordi.

"How the heck did Mike Tyson not win against Jake Paul, this is fabricated."
- Care Jones (12)

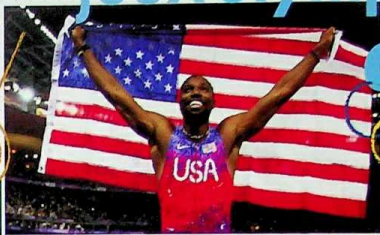

November 15

YouTuber-turned-boxer Jake Paul defeated former heavyweight champion Mike Tyson in a boxing match. Tyson hadn't fought in a professional bout in 19 years before this event, which was shown after he started slowing down in the third round. Tyson never regained control from there, allowing Paul to beat the 58-year-old in a unanimous decision. This was only the sixth time Iron Mike had been defeated.

jeux olympiques d'été

The 2024 Summer Olympics were held in Paris, France.

GOAT. Gymnast Simone Biles flaunts her goat necklace next to her gold medal in vault. Because of her ability to push the boundaries of what has been done in gymnastics, Biles is widely regarded as the greatest gymnast of all time. She further proved this with her medal count—7 gold, 2 silver, and 2 bronze—making her the most decorated gymnast of all time.

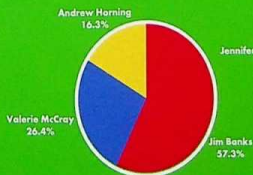

LIVING ON THE DANCE FLOOR.

The summer Olympics brought out new faces for young athletes to idolize, including Stephen Nedoroscik (aka Pommel Horse guy) and Ilona Maher (aka Girl Dinner's sister). Nedoroscik caught eyes after competing in only one event, pommel horse, for the U.S. men's gymnastic team. Maher quickly gained popularity after her TikTok videos of her Olympic journeys went viral. Both athletes were invited to perform under the dazzling lights of "Dancing with the Stars". Steven placed 4th while Ilona placed 2nd.

LIGHTS, CAMERA, ACTION.

Rushing to make the game in time, cheering on the football team, and watching the court parade around the field in golf carts; all different aspects of Jasper homecoming. From the kickoff to the final play, students spent time with Wildcat alumni to catch a breath from the busyness of school. After an exciting start to the first half, it was time for the coronation.

Under the twinkling midsummer night sky, Jasper's elected homecoming court stepped on the field. After a week of campaigning and voting, the time had come to crown the 2024 Fall Homecoming King and Queen. The anticipation left the crowd silent, when finally, Ella Willoughby was announced as queen and Carter Smith was crowned king. The cheering from the crowd was loud, but the loudest voices came from the band stand.

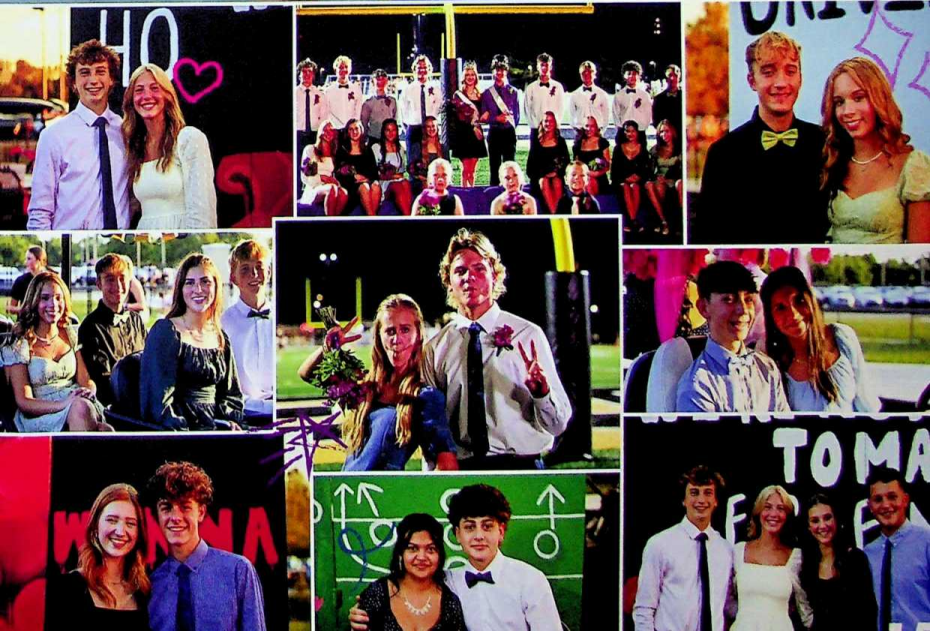

"I think most of our votes came from the band," Willoughby laughed. It's true, history has proven that the 120 band members seem to find a way to sway the votes to have their own be crowned as royalty. Ella has been in band since sixth grade and marches Tuba. "The band is my second family. I spend the most time with them and most of my best memories are band memories," Ella remarked.

shedding new light

Performing at the new Jerry Brewer Alumni Stadium was different, but was it better?

DUT DUT DUT. Junior Brooke Williams and senior Ava Bower perform a sideline cheer during the first home game at the new stadium. "The new stadium is really nice," Brooke shared, "but getting to the bleachers from the field is pretty frustrating." To enhance security and prevent fans from accessing the track, the stadium's design features staircases that lead to the bleachers exclusively from the back, making it more challenging for players and cheerleaders to move between the field and stands.

ET TU, FLUTÉ? Flutist Kayla Burton, sophomore, flawlessly marches across the field.

SOLO BIRD. Senior Zada Mclethie debriefs with her flute section before their first competition at Paoli. Alongside being one of the strongest sections this season, the flutes had multiple features throughout the show, including a solo performed by Zada.

COLORS OF THE WIND. Members of the woodwind section hold out their last notes in the introduction of the show.

heart to heart

Marching band is much more than just an activity, it's a community.

SALUTE. Drum Majors Isabella Harmon, Jordan Voegerl, and Aanas Jackson grin ear to ear before their final run of the season. Both Isabella and Aanas were moving back and forth from the podium to the field, as they also marched with their instruments on the field. Because of this, Aanas has gotten the chance to meet twice the amount of people and she claims, "The connections I've made are unmatched, it's more than the friends you make along the way, for me it's the family I've made along the way."

first in our hearts

After disappointing results at state, the Marching Wildcats realized that heart is an understatement.

Every step on the field, every note played, every flag twirled is done for one moment: state finals. With the show theme being about the passion and heart involved with art, Heartistry, the Marching Wildcats played every performance like it was their last. This was not unseen by the judges. The group placed first at Paoli and Floyd Central as well as getting gold in all of the ISSMA events.

The week of state had spirits high. The wildcats had constant clean runs along with a perfect community showcase. Despite this, nerves were still high. "I was nervous about how to make our performance memorable after being put first in the state draw," senior drum major Isabella Harmon explains, "I knew it would all depend on how much we could put into that fifteen minutes." Walking onto the field, the Marching Wildcats kept their heads held high while being faced with a smaller crowd than normal. The final run of Heartistry had what it needed most, heart.

While waiting for awards in the lot, rumors were spread about Class D's final results; they were strange. Paoli, the first band to perform in the class, ended in third, which gave the Cats hope. Then came awards. Every time a band was announced, the Wildcats held their breath, despite expecting a placing above fifth. The Marching Wildcats were then announced as the sixth place band in ISSMA's Class B State Marching Band State. Although relief spread as the group realized the stress was gone, it was soon replaced by utter confusion. As senior piano soloist Riley Bolin puts it, "I was shocked and honestly pretty upset. I still think we deserved better but I couldn't be prouder and I wouldn't want our performance at state to go any different than it did."

This disappointing ending did not break the Wildcat's hearts, it instead made them stronger. The group came to realize that the judges' opinions were important, but to an extent. What mattered the most, was how much heart and dedication they put into their art.

if you know, you know

The atrium, a cornerstone of Jasper High School. Being one of the main entrances of the building, every student walks through the atrium at least once per day. But it's more than just a passageway, it's a space that greets you with warmth, light, and life. Towering windows let the sun pour in, casting patterns across the tiled floor and illuminating the lush forest of plants that have taken root there over the years.

From towering fiddle leaf figs to small succulents nestled on ledges, the greenery adds an unexpected serenity to the hustle of the school day. The atrium has become a gathering place, a photo spot, and a quiet corner to breathe before the bell rings. It stands as a symbol of how Jasper High School continues to grow, just like the plants in its heart.

Northeast the JHS building lays a daycare center for all employees of the Greater Jasper Consolidated Schools. From infants to Preschool, these children resemble the next generation of Jasper Wildcats, hence the name "Little Wildcats". One of the heartwarming sights is watching them line up in a wobbly little line, bouncing with excitement as they jump to reach high fives from JHS teachers across the school—a daily tradition that never fails to bring smiles. Each week, their excitement grows as they make their way to the library, eager to see the friendly faces of the Java and Jargon club. Members like Johnson, Shawna, Bernadine, and Lily bring stories to life, filling the room with giggles, laughter, and wide-eyed wonder. Whether it's a silly tale or a heartfelt one, the Little Wildcats are all ears—and all heart!

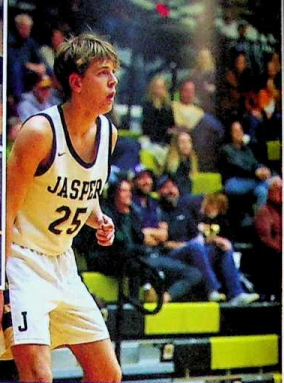

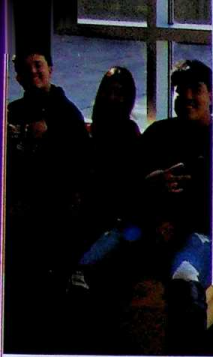

dungeons and dragons

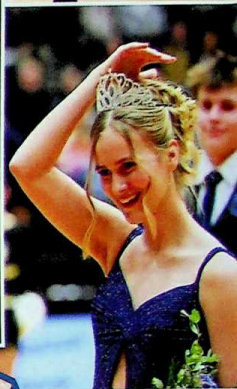

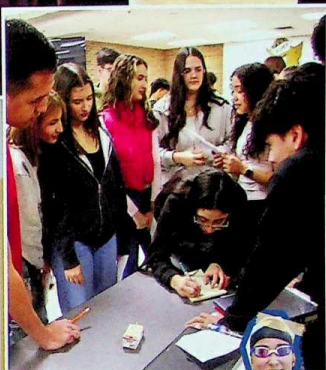

Was it supposed to be a bowling alley, or is that a bold-faced lie? Jasper's band program uses room 800 as a room specifically for percussion instruments. But hidden behind a door is a storage room unlike any other. The unfinished portion of the building opens into a medium sized room, but beyond that room is multiple long stretches, almost like alleys. The legend of the Dungeon—the name students have given this room—is that during the rebuilding of the school, a bowling alley was meant to be added for PE classes. Before finishing the construction, the project was put on hold because of budgeting purposes. During this school year, the doors to the Dungeon were closed, and students were prohibited from entering again. This leaves the question of what the Dungeon was supposed to be in the first place. Was it actually a bowling alley? Or is it just a myth?

Senior Jan Green plays a crucial role in the Motorsports club.

I AM SPEED. "Motorsports is more than just a hobby for me; it's a passion that drives innovation and teamwork," Senior Jan Green says. "Through my journey in this club, I've transitioned from a learner to a leader." Jan has participated in the motorsports club for two years and has put hours into learning the craft and skills required for the sport. As a leader, Jan has seen each member with their unique skills, from painting to electrical work. He claims, "This year has been our best yet, and the potential for growth is limitless." Jan hopes the message his club members gain is that potential can be found anywhere. Where someone sees a hopeless scrap of a car, the motorsports club sees an opportunity. Mistakes will be made one-or five-times, but it is those mistakes that help the end product for the club improve significantly.

udderly amazing

The FFA's famous petting zoo is just one of the celebrations the club puts on during FFA week.

DEEP DIGGING. Junior Carson Powell describes the process of planting marigolds to the Little Wildcats. FFA brings in the kids not only for their growth in education, but also for their growth in passion.

COW WHISPERER. Claire Linette, junior FFA member, smiles with her cow during the school-famous petting zoo event. As a part of FFA week, the petting zoo is open to all of the staff and student body with invitations even being extended to the Little Wildcats.

we've got spirit

Pep sessions get an upgrade this year.

SUPER SPIRIT. Junior Irael Palomino Picon brings on the spirit during the winter pep session. Palomino makes a show out of his favorite event, the roller coaster. His job is to lead the junior class on a "roller coaster" with all of its rises and falls. Irael decides to take it one step forward by screaming, jumping, and even dressing up with a hat for the event.

SLIP AND SLIDE.

Agriculture teacher

Mrs. Lammers grips her air mattress as she races the senior class across the gym. In this new crowd-favorite relay, players jump on an air mattress, slide across the floor, then run back so the next teammate can go. The first team to get across the basketball court wins.

The culinary class's annual cooking competition, The Souper Bowl, cooked up some heat this year.

SOUP-ER SMELLS. Senior Izzy Schwenk poses with her soup before serving it to the judges. To get a spot on the elusive judging board, you must be a teacher, a fact that saddens most students after smelling the event in the hallways.

JUST KEEP STIRRING. Landon Fuhs, senior, stirs while waiting for his chicken bacon ranch soup to come to a boil. The Souper Bowl allows for culinary students to make their own twist on the food staple.

WELCOME MAT. Sarai Charib and Fernanda Alas, sophomores, alongside freshman Madison Morales, help the new pre-kindergarten students and their parents in registering them for the fall semester.

How the sponsors of Young Latinos got where they are.

Despite only teaching at JHS for two years, Mrs. Anderson has already earned the affection of her students with her patience and dedication. Mrs. Anderson teaches English 11, Prep for College and Careers, and ENL. Mrs. Anderson builds positive relationships with her diverse students and has become a leader in Young Latinos.

Mr. Uebelhor, guidance counselor, dedicated his high school and college years to become fluent in Spanish. As a result, now he is able to help students who do not speak English. Mr. Uebelhor loves his position specifically because of the opportunity to help kids find where they belong. With Young Latinos, Mr. Uebelhor claims he "wants to help give students pride about who they are and the heritage they come from."

Before her time at JHS, Mrs. Johnson lived in Mexico. From this experience she grew both her communication skills and a deep appreciation for Latino culture. She was inspired by one of her own Latina teachers, and she became highly proficient in Spanish. With her advanced Spanish alongside her passion to create connections within the Latino community, she became the leader of Young Latinos.

Mrs. Cobo has dedicated her time in JGCS to welcoming Latino families into the Jasper community. Originally from Spain, Mrs. Cobo helps in managing situations, organizing, and promoting most of the group's activities.

Young Latinos builds a supportive community for Latinos at Jasper
High School.

Creating a community where Latinos can feel comfortable and less alone at Jasper is not an easy task, but the Young Latinos Club executes it flawlessly. A percentage of club members are new to Jasper and may find adapting to the new environment difficult; this is where YLU steps in. The group offers numerous opportunities to engage with fellow Latinos, allowing them to share and enjoy experiences with people who understand their background.

One of the major staples of the group is their volunteer work in the community. Students are transported to Jasper Elementary School to help tutor young children. This also leads to the club members teaching the young children about their culture and, potentially, themselves. The group also participates in cultural events, such as Día de los Muertos (Day of the Dead). This year they created an altar for the holiday as a way to honor deceased loved ones belonging to the members. Additionally, there are regular meetings for the group involving different foods and treats beloved by Latinos. The Young Latinos club dedicates itself to the celebration of Latino culture in Jasper. Camaraderie and teamwork between members is a vital byproduct of the group. With a loving and welcoming club along with accepting sponsors, the Young Latinos club is a great place to find how to belong to Jasper and still be yourself for those who need it.

of the Young Latinos.

TRIP TALK.

Young Latino members gather in the cafeteria to discuss future events and trips the group hopes to participate in. Students have multiple choices—a trip to a university or an elementary school—so deciding on just one can be a difficult decision. They keep in mind that there is not a right or wrong decision, what matters most is which one will help the students gain the most experience.

UNIDOS IN VOICE.

Young Latinos Unidos, a group consisting of students from JHS, Southridge, and Forest Park, gather together to hear from prominent leaders in the Latino community. This day fills students with inspiration, learning, and community as well as providing them space to discuss issues they face.

the start of something new

Winter homecoming welcomed a new way for students to vote for the court.

WARM HUGS. Seniors Isabella Harmon and Olivia Young share a warm, smiling embrace after Isabella's crowning. Both girls are members of the Student Council; Harmon serves as class president, and Young is the Student Council president. They play important roles in planning student activities, including Homecoming events.

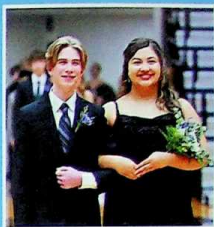

NEW TRADITIONS, SAME CELEBRATION.

Homecoming Week: filled with hallway decorations, games, and drama? Homecoming Court voting began with a preliminary nomination round, where students could nominate their top picks. The students with the most nominations advanced to the second round of voting. From that round, two girls and two boys were selected from the freshman, sophomore, and junior classes, along with three girls and three boys from the senior class. However, because the process often turned into a popularity contest, Student Council decided it was time to rethink how Homecoming should be celebrated. Student Council sponsor Mrs. Ferguson explained that those chosen for the court should be "people who represent all of the good aspects of their class."

In response, Student Council members researched how schools with similar student populations handled Homecoming. They introduced a new process that replaced student nominations with staff member nominations. After that, the rest of the process remained the same. As a result, each student on the 2025 court fit the values Mrs. Ferguson emphasized, students who are not only successful in school but also kind, respected, and well-rounded individuals. On the big night, students in the student section, the pep band, and even the court itself held their breath as the King and Queen were announced. Carson Book and Isabella Harmon were crowned Jasper High School's 2025 Winter Homecoming King and Queen. Though both were surprised by the outcome, they accepted the titles with gratitude.

"It was nice to know I was well-liked by my peers and teachers," Book said. "Plus, I liked the Glinda wand it came with." Isabella added, "I was just honored to be on the court, so winning was a surprise!" The moment was especially meaningful for Harmon, whose neighbor, like a grandmother to her, had won Homecoming Queen 63 years earlier on the exact same date.

follow your heart

Many love-related sayings were coined during the season, one of which was "follow your heart".

funky and flashy

The Jasper color guard decides to bring some extra fun to Call A this year.

After years of emotionally charged and mournful winter guard shows, the directors at the Jasper Winter Guard decided it was time for a change. To bring some new spirit and energy to the team, they introduced a new daring concept: "Piano Pandemonium". Funky, flashy, and happy, the show brought contagious laughter and a new confidence to every rehearsal and show. It was a daring change—and just what the team needed.

But the season was not a cakewalk. As with any great performance process, there are obstacles to overcome. At the Zionsville competition, members were confronted with an unexpected obstacle: maneuvering a massive steam-powered piano prop across the floor. It was a logistical nightmare—heavy, awkward, and stressful. But the Jasper Guard stepped up to the challenge, exhibiting grit and poise under fire.

And then there was a surprise that rekindled their fire. During the Terre Haute South competition, the guard won first place, shocking not only the team but also their opponents. Junior Johnson Dong exclaims, "It was definitely something that we did not expect. I remember sitting in the bleachers and listening as each guard stepped forward for their placement until the top 3 were still unannounced. With each one I squeezed my fingers with the members around me eagerly waiting, until it was announced that Jasper got 1st place!" The win was a turning point, sparking a more fiery drive and high-energy performance in each and every following show. By the end of the season, Jasper Color Guard finished in 7th place in Class A, a repeat of the previous year but with a show that was different in spirit and creativity.

cross my heart

This staving was very popular among the JCG during their fall season.

HEARTBEAT. Lorelei Stone, sophomore, slams her pole on the ground after the final hit of this year's performance, Heartistry.

IS THAT CUPID? Sophomore Holden Bastien points his bow up to the sky. This was the first show that the bows were introduced in the show.

This year more than ever, the amount of plane crashes was alarming, although plane travel remains one of the safest methods of traveling.

BRACE FOR IMPACT.

At the beginning of 2025, several aviation accidents were reported. One incident involved a Delta Airlines flight that overturned while landing in Toronto. All passengers and crew on that flight survived without fatalities. Other incidents during this time period included a sightseeing helicopter crash in New York, which was carrying five passengers and the pilot, and resulted in six deaths after the aircraft entered the Hudson River. According to Fox News, there have been a total of 60 aviation accidents reported worldwide in 2025 so far.

Jasper had an amazing time, finally getting their winter wonderland.

SNOW YAY.

This year, Jasper High School experienced an unusually snowy winter that extended the regular school calendar. Due to the weather, students received four additional days off during winter break. The extended time away from school gave everyone the opportunity to enjoy more of the season and take advantage of the extra days at home. Many students spent their time outside in the snow, while others stayed indoors to keep warm. Despite the challenges that winter weather can sometimes bring, the extra days became a memorable part of the year, adding to the Class of 2025's collection of high school experiences. The change in schedule may not have been expected, but it quickly became one of the notable events of this school year.

remake or mistake

JHS students tell us if remakes were really worth doing.

SNOW FIGHT.

To understand student perspectives on the upcoming Snow White remake, a survey was conducted at Jasper High School. Students were asked about both the film and the lead actress, Rachel Zegler. Responses indicated that many felt public discussion surrounding the actress influenced the way the film was received. One student noted that controversy connected to public figures often affects broader projects. Beyond the school survey, the film generated widespread public conversation. Some individuals questioned whether a remake of Snow White was necessary, while others focused on the use of CGI for the depiction of the Seven Dwarfs. Actor Peter Dinklage, who has dwarfism, publicly shared his concerns about the decision, pointing to issues of representation in the storyline. Overall, the release of the Snow White remake prompted debate over casting, visual effects, and the role of remakes in modern cinema. The film's reception reflected both the anticipation and the criticism that often accompanies reimaginings of well-known stories.

With Cowboy Carter earning two Grammys while Hit Me Hard and Soft lead in number of streams, fans and critics compared the two albums extensively.

STREAMING SHOWDOWN.

Beyoncé released her album Cowboy Carter in 2024, which received significant attention following its debut. The album went on to win two Grammy Awards: Album of the Year and Country Album of the Year. The wins sparked discussion among music fans and critics about how the album should be categorized, with some describing it as country and others identifying it as more of a pop sub-genre. At the same Grammy Awards, Billie Eilish was also nominated with her album Hit Me Hard and Soft. One of its songs, Birds of a Feather, gained major popularity and had reached 1.7 billion streams by early 2025. In comparison, Cowboy Carter totaled approximately 1.6 billion streams, while Hit Me Hard and Soft as a full album approached 6 billion streams during the same period. The awards and streaming comparisons generated widespread public discussion, with reactions shared both in the media and on social platforms, reflecting the strong fan bases of both artists.

all in on prom

A night full of dancing and fun for the upperclassmen.

On April 5, 2025, Jasper High schools student body showed up in tuxes and dresses for one of the biggest nights of the year — prom. The theme was Vegas, so the place was full of bright lights, glowing colors, and a dance floor that lit up with every beat of the music. Right when students walked in, people started snapping selfies, laughing with friends, and heading straight toward the action. The DJ played a mix of slow songs and fast ones, keeping the dance floor busy the whole night. Couples swayed during the slow tracks, while groups of friends shouted the lyrics to their favorite songs and jumped around together. The lights flashed, the music was loud, and the energy never really slowed down.

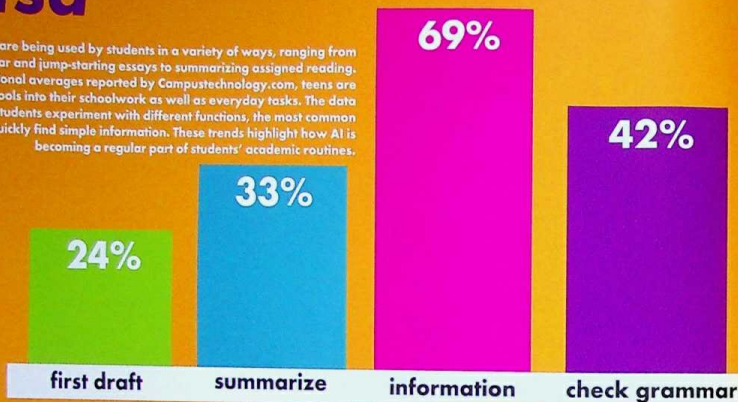

Later in the night, everything paused for the big announcement: prom court. Students cheered as Audry Jones was crowned Prom Queen and Cortland Kizior was crowned Prom King. The two posed for pictures, hugged their friends, and were celebrated as one of the highlights of the evening. By the end of the night, students were tired, sweaty, and smiling. Prom 2025 wasn't just about dancing under the lights — it was about spending time with friends, celebrating the end of the year, and making memories that the Class of 2025 will carry with them long after graduation.

Most students turn to AI tools for quick answers, according to a recent report.

AI tools like ChatGPT are being used by students in a variety of ways, ranging from checking grammar and jump-starting essays to summarizing assigned reading. According to national averages reported by Campustechnology.com, teens are incorporating these tools into their schoolwork as well as everyday tasks. The data shows that while students experiment with different functions, the most common use of AI is to quickly find simple information. These trends highlight how AI is becoming a regular part of students' academic routines.

After 31 days of warfare, Kristin's final opponent, Carson Book, was eliminated after being snuck up on by Roos. Roos expressed, "No one expected me to win. Critics argued the crew was selected more for fame and wealth than scientific merit, calling it a publicity-driven stunt rather than a genuine step forward for space inclusion and diversity. Still, the journey captivated millions worldwide.

As the lights dimmed on the 2023 football season, the Jasper High School football team reflected on a year marked not only by challenges but also by friendships made on the field. This season taught them the importance of working together and showing dedication to one another. Carson Mathies, one of the team's star players according to coach Tony Lewis, shared his thoughts on teamwork: "It has helped me realize how important it is to work together if you want to succeed." His words captured the team's spirit, where everyone worked hard for a common goal. Landon Ahlbrand emphasizes one game that stood out the most: the match against Castile. "Even though we lost, just that thrill from the game and we played great football—it was just awesome," he remembered. That game showed the team's fighting spirit, leaving them with great memories despite the loss.

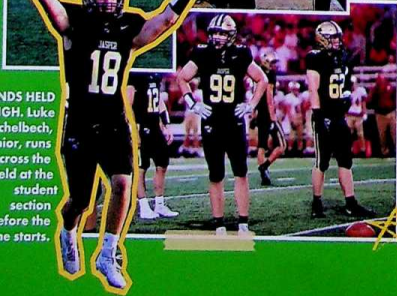

Coach Lewis, in his last year coaching for Jasper, highlighted Carson Mathies as a great example of hard work and commitment. "Carson is the perfect example of a Senior who worked hard to become a Varsity player and shows what is great about Jasper Football," he said. Carson's journey inspired everyone and demonstrated the values of determination and integrity. The team faced some tough times this season, with several players injured. But instead of giving up, they stepped up to the challenge. "We had a team that lived by the phrase 'next man up,'" Coach Lewis explained. This ability to adapt and support each other helped them get through the tough moments. As the season concluded, the Jasper High School football team emerged not only as athletes but as a unified group of young men who learned the power of teamwork, resilience, and leadership. Their journey this year has been a testament to what can be achieved when individuals come together with a shared purpose and unwavering determination.

why does Jasper have unified sports?

Unified Sports have been part of our school since 2015, creating a place where students with special needs can feel welcomed, supported, and celebrated. What began with Unified Track has since grown to include Unified Football, expanding opportunities for connection both on and off the field. These programs give every athlete a chance to experience the excitement of being part of a team while also helping build a more inclusive school community.

Coach Julie Henke has been a driving force behind the program's success. For her, the role of a coach goes far beyond competing. "For me, it isn't about the victory on the field," she explains. "My why is centered around giving the team, no matter if you are a partner or an athlete, the opportunity to grow as a person." She sees Unified Sports as a way for students to build confidence, learn important life skills, and most importantly, create friendships that last long after the season ends. Those friendships are often what make Unified Sports so meaningful. Many students stay involved until their senior year, forming bonds that become a highlight of their high school experience. "The bond they make with our athletes is simply awesome," Coach Henke adds. "They are role models for social interaction and appropriate behavior, but also give our athletes an ally in our school."

going for gold

The boys' tennis team started the season knowing their words, but not needed to prove it.

As the new season began, the boys' tennis team faced the challenge of adjusting their lineup following the graduation of key seniors from the previous year. Yet, the team stepped onto the courts with unwavering confidence, determined to fill those shoes and prove their mettle. One thing that remained certain was the number one doubles team, consisting of Eli Flick and Caleb Schnarr. After recovering from last year's disappointing final four loss to Columbus North, Schnarr and Flick knew they had the potential to succeed. "I knew we were going to be pretty successful, due to our teamwork and connection," Caleb mentioned. "We both expected to make it to the state championship."

And make it, they did. After a season marked by determination and growth, Eli Flick and Caleb Schnarr capped off their remarkable journey by winning the state championship. Their exceptional teamwork and strategic play carried them through a challenging tournament bracket, culminating in a hard-fought victory in the finals. The two swept through the first set with a score of 6-1 and won over the second as well. Overcoming intense pressure and formidable opponents, the duo displayed composure and skill to secure the title, bringing glory to the team and marking a historic moment for the boys' tennis program. They were the first to attain a doubles champions title for Jasper and they leave the program with hope for the future.

ON A NEW LEVEL. Helping lead her team to a sectional championship win, senior Carlee Rogers ended her high school volleyball career on a high note. A standout moment for her was the victory over Washington, which she said "solidified everything we had worked for all season." Carlee will continue her volleyball journey at the collegiate level.

SET UP FOR SUCCESS. Senior setter Olivia Young celebrated a major milestone in her final season. A key leader on the court, Olivia reflected on the team's growth, saying, "The sectional Washington game. As a team we dominated and showed that we can take care of business and have fun."

setting the standard

The Lady Wildcats' achievements this season went far beyond their incredible 33-11 record.

The 2024 volleyball season was one for the books, marked by fierce competition, lasting bonds, and a historic victory. The defining moment came with the team's triumphant win against Washington, earning their first sectional title in eight years. That game showcased not only their talent and hard work but also their mental toughness and unity, proving they could rise to any challenge together.

For seniors like Ava Rees, Olivia Young, and Chloe Edwards, the victory was a culmination of years of dedication and growth. Ava, who overcame a torn meniscus in her junior year, found pride in the team's accomplishments and valued the friendships made along the way. Olivia emphasized how the group became a true family this season, filling a gap she felt had been missing in previous years.

Chloe reflected on the personal significance of winning sectionals, knowing her sister had been part of the last team to claim the title. "It was rewarding to be part of something so special," she shared. Meanwhile, Carlee Rogers looked ahead with excitement, carrying the lessons and experiences from this season as she prepares to continue volleyball at the collegiate level.

As Kendall Corbin summed up, "Working hard does pay off, and the outcome feels amazing." The players took pride in knowing their perseverance and teamwork led to an unforgettable season. Beyond the victories, they left the court with lessons, memories, and friendships that will last a lifetime.

The tradition started as a fun way to raise money for the team and quickly became a fan favorite. While attending a volleyball game, anyone who wants to participate pays a small fee. In between sets, fans will attempt to chuck their duck closest to a target. Half of the money goes to the duck that lands closest to the bullseye, while the other half supports the team.

here's the kicker

The girls' soccer team won 3-0 against Castle, showcasing their teamwork, skill, and supportive camaraderie.

In a remarkable display of teamwork and skill, a talented group of young women have claimed victory on our soccer field, defeating Castle with an impressive score of 3-0. This win not only showcases their athletic abilities but also highlights the strong companionship and positive energy that defines the team. Key players Emily Kleiser and Madelyn Knies played pivotal roles in this triumph, demonstrating exceptional talent and leadership throughout the match. Their contributions, combined with the encouragement from teammates like Jordyn King who kept the energy up, were crucial in securing the victory.

Described as a "family," they foster an environment of support, pushing each other on and off the field to excel in multiple areas of their lives, while sharing moments of light-hearted friendship. Their relentless training and dedication have not only developed strong athletic skills but have also created lasting friendships, enriching their high school experience. As they continue to build on their success, JHS girls soccer exemplifies the power of unity and resilience in sports, leaving a lasting impression on those who have the pleasure of witnessing their journey.

goal in one

No team could prepare to take Jasper head on but Jasper had other goals in mind.

During the era of excellence in JHS soccer, the Boys Varsity team demonstrated outstanding dedication and training. Their commitment to their goals was unwavering, and they stood firm against the challenges posed by their opponents. While many seek to bridge the gap between teams, the reality is that their objectives often diverge. Despite this, the spirit of competition fuels their passion and drives them to give their all on the field.

Even after overcoming numerous hurdles and undergoing continuous conditioning and practice to improve themselves, Jasper has never ceased to deliver hard-fought performances. Notably, there is no single player who "carried the team," as many of the team members, including Logan Huckelby, a senior, and Ethan Thornburgh, a junior, stated in a past interview. Each player comes from humble beginnings; however, these past experiences do not define their current aspirations.

Many of them wish to go to college and continue the legacy of playing soccer, while others aspire to help coach at a high school in the future. Some, however, plan to step away from the sport after high school to explore interests that resonate more with them. They want to take charge of their own stories, and who is to stop them from pursuing the dreams they wish to live out?

on a different course

Leading with their unity, the golf girls accomplished a season filled with friendship and victory, gaining wins in a sectional championship, a home invitational, and the Tony Blessinger Memorial Invitational. Throughout the season, the girls worked together and found strength in their unity. Senior Addie Dart was labeled Most Valuable Player, having the lowest scoring average on the team and bringing the girls to multiple victories. As one of the many returning players on the team, Addie and the rest of the girls approached competitions and tournaments with confidence. The team also recognized two other strong players: senior Nicole Fant as the Most Improved Player and senior Reese Mundy with the Mental Attitude Award.

This season was full of great growth and memorable events. As Nicole Fant states, "I'll definitely take away the memories as well as the lessons learned from my teammates and coaches." Golf has brought these girls together to create memories that will last a lifetime. Kristin Roos explains, "My favorite part of playing golf is the people you meet when you are playing matches and tournaments. You spend 2-6 hours with a group of girls, and you get to know them. When you are done playing, you feel like you make new best friends, and some of them I still talk to today." Coach Gillian Blessinger assures that the team has shown great improvement throughout the season and is proud of their work. Their achievements from this season give the golf team a lot to live up to next year as they continue training and practicing, working towards greater success in the following season.

The boys' team shows us how they persevere through the toughest of tasks.

In the world of high school sports, winning is often seen as the most important thing, especially when it comes to reaching state championships. But for the boys' team at Jasper High School, this year was about much more than just the scores. Even though they didn't make it to state finals, the team showed great determination and hard work, which carried them through the season. Whether they won or lost, their experience was a true reflection of their strength and love for running.

Senior Maxton Klein, one of only two team members to qualify for state this year, represents this journey well. He shares a simple but meaningful piece of advice for his teammates and other young athletes: "Value the time you have. It goes by quickly. And accept that not every race is gonna be your best, so just be happy you finished." Maxton really gets what being an athlete is about—enjoying each moment, accepting the good and the bad, and finding joy in the journey itself.

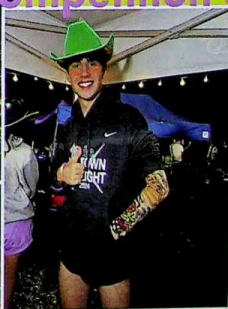

Another star athlete for the team, Sophomore Calvin Smits, is a perfect example of overcoming adversity to reach his goals. His biggest challenge and most impressive accomplishment this season was being able to run a 15:30, while battling low iron, mono, and Epstein-Barr Virus. His ability to overcome personal health challenges and still excel, serves as a powerful example for his teammates and peers. By embodying the spirit of never giving up, Calvin demonstrates how leadership is not just about winning but inspiring others to push beyond their limits, physically and mentally.

When asked about their pre-race snacks, the girls Cross Country team had unanimous answers across the board. Meets can be exhausting and chaotic so having carbohydrate and electrolyte pack snacks are a must.

Granola bars pulled through and ended up with a bronze medal.

The classic peanut butter and jelly sandwich ran ahead of granola bars at the last second and came home with silver.

Finally, liquid IV, an electrolyte water mix, stayed with a lead the whole race.

conquering the course

The girls tell us about their journey to state finals once again.

The season started with a lot of excitement and determination among the girls at Jasper High School. As they warmed up in the morning dew, each step showed how committed they were to doing their best. The memories of past wins inspired them, while doubts from others fueled their desire to prove them wrong.

Every practice was a chance to push their limits and build a strong team bond. With the help of their coach, the team faced each challenge with toughness and determination. Senior, Monica Lorey, reflects on the season by saying, "all of these girls make practice enjoyable, even on the hard days I can look forward to having them by my side and know we can joke around and make it not as bad."

As the season moved along, their hard work started to pay off, and they began racking up wins on their way to their main goal—state finals. The girls understood that their journey wasn't just about winning; it was also about the friendships they were building and the lessons they were learning along the way. Now, as they got ready to possibly reach state finals for the 10th time in the school's history, the feeling of accomplishment is huge. In the end, it's their dedication, discipline, and strong friendship that have gotten them this far, and that pushed them for greatness. Their season is not just about winning races, but about the lasting spirit of teamwork and friendship that will stick with them long after the final race is over. No matter the placings at state, the feeling that they gave it their all and left it all of the course is one they'll never forget.

shot for shot

The girls basketball team competes for another victorious season.

Led by Coach Maners and Coach Dall, the team focused less on record and more on growth. Practices weren't just about drills; they were about learning to play as one unit. The team started the season strong and quickly found their rhythm. Wins started coming, and so did the confidence. "My most memorable moment from this season was getting to play sectionals at home for the first time in my high school career. The environment was truly energizing with the student section and the large crowd we had," expressed junior Caroline Schipp. The team's most exciting moment came during a nail-biter against Gibson Southern, where the game was decided in the final seconds. The crowd was loud, the bench louder, and the coaches were smiling non-stop. "One of the most memorable moments was beating Gibson Southern in our winter tournament. It was probably the best game we played as a team, and it was overall such a great win for us," stated junior Emma Emerson.

Beyond the scoreboard, what defined the season were the small, unforgettable moments—TikToks in the locker room, bus rides filled with music and laughter, and the kind of post-practice talks that somehow turned into life advice. The team wasn't just showing up for games—they were showing up for each other. Whether it was a hard-fought win or a tough loss, the energy stayed the same: supportive, determined, and full of heart. They celebrated each other's highlights and picked each other up through the hard games. And while the final buzzer may have sounded on the season, the bond built between these players will carry far beyond the court.

The season began with a rocky start, until a victory against Evansville North took the team out of its rut and led them to turn their misfortune on its head.

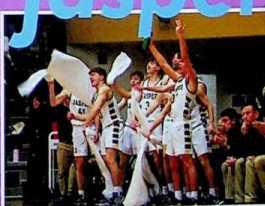

The boys had quite a difficult season this year, starting off with an unfortunate eight game losing streak. Despite the otherwise demoralizing events the team tried to keep up high spirits, as recalled by head coach John Goebel, "the team kept working, stayed positive, and believed that there were better days to come." These high spirits kept up due in no small part to this seasons seniors whose role it is to foster good team dynamics. They kept spirits high until at last, victory graced their team. After many losses against our city's neighbors, they found victory against Evansville North, 49 to 45, returning them from their unfortunate dry spell.

From then on it was, mostly, nothing but victories for the boys. With a noteworthy unexpected win against Forest Park. "We weren't supposed to win but still came out on top." Caden Erny remarked. The roaring crowd filling the stands, shouting the team's praises as the scoreboard buzzed their victory. Or at Northeast Dubois, leaving with a successful rally. The game's second half began rather hot, being down by 10 at half, when the team began hitting shots. The rallying team brought the score back into their hands, getting ahead by 8 in the end, racking up yet another victory under their belts. These of course being only two examples of the teams winning spirit. They would go on to finish off the season with a half a dozen win streak.

The wrestling team never fails to exceed our expectations every year that comes.

You can never underestimate the power of time. The first thing you do is learn how to tie your headgear and perfect your stance. You look away for a split second and your head is pinned to the ground by memories. Next thing you know, you're in your senior year and it's the last time on the mat. Wrestling is a sport you can beat in the match of time. Wrestling can't be beat. It's a commitment only the strongest can achieve. A commitment of mental strength, physical grit, and self determination. Our team practices till their legs give out, yet that doesn't let them crumble. The team is the epitome of dedication to a cause. Although it's an individual sport by nature, it's a team sport by heart. You fight to win, not just for yourself, but for those that share your passion.

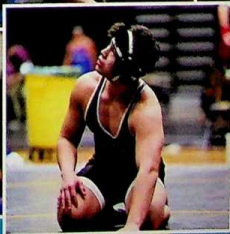

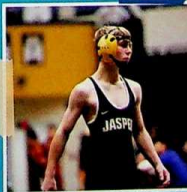

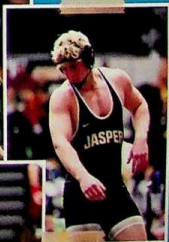

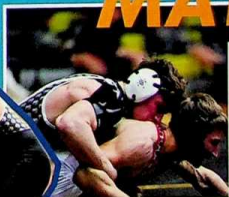

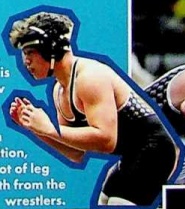

The boys show their perseverance this year by being the champion in 13 of their 18 matches. That's a 3/4 win rate. One of the team's star players, as well as a great leader for team is graduating this year—Tyson Ruhe. Making it to state many time, he was a great example for his team and graciously, you could say, carried his team throughout many of his seasons.

We can all be proud of our Jasper wrestling team as they consistently achieve higher goals each year. A strong investment of the team could server any member of the community well as they represent Jasper high school's grit, strength, and determination.

Swimming together since elementary school, seniors Lillie Wertman and Reagan Book share one last moment together by the pool.

Senior quartet Kara Kurucz, Lillian Wertman, Linzi VanMeter, and Nicole Fant, make history, resetting the school and sectional record in the medley relay for the second time.

Undefeatable, the girls' swim team secured a flawless season, with an impressive score of 14 wins and zero losses. From their first practice to their last meet, the team's hard work, dedication, and passion for the sport were shown. The girls even went on to win the SIAC and being sectional champions, with a few members even resetting school records.

Among all these wins, a highlight for Coach Kristin Gugtsell season was being able to send eight of her swimmers to state finals.

According to her, their greatest strength is, "the hard work they put in not only during the season but throughout the year." Among these eight, one who stood out was Senior Nicole Fant who earned a well-deserved spot at state, finishing 11th in the 100-meter backstroke event.

While all their work paid off, it's the journey that really made the season. For many of the girls, swimming has become a way for them to destress from school and a place for them to clear their minds to make them feel better. Freshman Chloe Tubbs shares with us that, "Every day after school and a good amount of weekends are dedicated to swimming. It's definitely made an impact on my life, not being able to hang out with friends and working on my hobbies. But it all paid off."

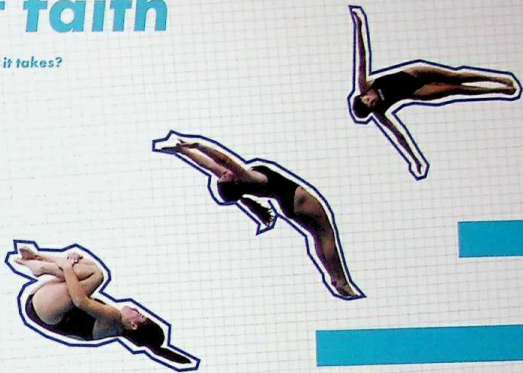

Beyond the physical and mental benefits, swimming has also created lifelong friendships and memories— both good and bad, that last well beyond the pool. Together they have built a strong foundation of teamwork and commitment that they can use in and out of the pool. Sophomore Wren Mehringer, shows us their persistent attitude by telling us what swimming is all about, “It means to get up and jump in a freezing cold pool even if you are tired or don’t have the motivation.” This dedication and grit truly shows the will power of the team, proving that hard work pays off.

racing through the waves

The swim team was defined by their camaraderie and success this season.

This year, the Jasper High School boy's swim team didn't just show up to compete, they showed up to make history. The boys season comprised of 13 wins, and only 1 loss. After months of early mornings, grueling practices, and unwavering dedication, the team captured the Sectional Championship title, marking a milestone that will be remembered for years to come. It wasn't just a win; it was a statement. A statement of perseverance, growth, and unity. The boys scored 3rd place in the Southern Indiana Conference. The boys had many participants in state this year including Carson Book (12), Vincent Bez (10), Pascal Conrad (10), Jonah Kuczynski (11), Cole Schmitt (10), and Grant Wehr (10). Another great achievement this season was sophomore Grant Wehr's new school record set in the 100 fly.

For the seniors, this victory was the culmination of four years of hard work and leadership. For the underclassmen, it was a glimpse of what's possible when you push your limits and believe in your team. Christopher Dorado, a freshmen, told us his favorite thing is swim meets. "I enjoy being with the team and how we all motivate each other." Christopher's team gave him hope for the future, and he learned camaraderie was the team's super power.

Beyond the medals and record boards, what defined this season was the team's spirit. From cheering each other on at meets to pushing through the hardest sets in practice, the Jasper swim team proved that success is not just measured by the stopwatch, but by heart, hustle, and teamwork.

Jasper battles to the top, claiming the Semi-State championship.

The Jasper Wildcats Baseball team wrapped up an amazing season by finishing as the runner-up in the fight for their State Championship. Even though they came up just short in the final game, their hard work, commitment, and determination took them all the way to Victory Field, an experience most high school athletes only dream about. Junior Jack Levin reflects on throwing a no hitter against the number 4 team in the state staging. "Getting that final swing and miss to complete the no hitter was awesome but came up way short compared to the realization that I would be heading to victory field in one week with my teammates and best friends."

The post season run for the team was full of unforgettable moments, but one that really stood out was during the sectional championship. With the game on the line, senior Braxton Brasmer stepped up to the plate and crushed a game-winning home run over the fence, sending the crowd into a frenzy and securing a dramatic win for the Wildcats, as well as adding another highlight to the season. This team played with heart all season long. They stuck together, pushed through tough games, and gave it everything they had. Win or lose, their commitment and hard-work made their school and community incredibly proud. The 2025 Jasper Wildcats created memories with each other, coaches, family and friends, that will last a lifetime. They set the bar high for all the fellow Jasper players who will follow in their footsteps.

After falling to Gibson Southern during regular season, the girls head their eyes set on redemption. Sophomore Brianna Barrix expressed, "We were really proud with how we played and winning against a rival like that gave us confidence in further post play." In addition, Sofia Aguilera shares that it was her favorite moment this season.

What really made this team special was the grit and heart these girls had during the game. Junior Ayla Elkins shared her win experience saying "it was super exhilarating and we just felt so accomplished and excited that all the hard work we put in finally paid off." Every player, whether on the field or watching on the sidelines, played and cheered for the name on their jersey and for their teammates standing besides them.

Making Jasper History with the first girls' state title.

In June, the girls' tennis team made program history with their first team state title. Not only that, they also became the first Jasper's first girls team to claim a state championship in any sport. After an incredible tournament run where no matches were closer than 4-1, the Wildcats beat Brebeuf Jesuit in the final match, following an impressive 4-1 comeback win over Westfield in the semi-finals. The two doubles team consisting of seniors Kiersten Sternberg and Kate Yarbrough got the Cats their first point of the match, followed by senior Harper Wigand at one singles.

The girls' state victory was secured by a win at one doubles made by senior Reese Mundy and junior Adaysha Smiley. This win also guaranteed the pair a spot in the individual state doubles tournament. Adaysha said that it was "unbelievably rewarding to know that Reese and I were the match to allow the girls to win their first team state title ever," something no one else at this school can say. The cats went on to win 4-1 overall, with a loss at three singles and a win from two singles. Additionally, Senior Marian Hayes went into a tie break and finished the match for the team. Marian says her favorite memory from state is "Watching the team win as I continued to play and fight to win so I could join them in the celebration." While stressed in the moment, coming back home as state champions is a feeling none of them will ever forget.

3-PEAT. Following the team state championship, the doubles team of senior Reese Mundy and junior Adaysha Smiley made the trip back to Indy to compete in the individual doubles state championship, where they came out on top after a decisive 6-0, 6-2 victory over Fort Wayne Carroll in the final. The pair first beat the Park Tudor one doubles team in an extremely competitive match that went to three sets. Their victory marks the Jasper's girls team's third individual doubles title in a row and the team's fourth state title in three years, fifth for the program, which includes the doubles championship from seniors Eli Flick and Caleb Schnorr this fall. This win also brings Reese's total state championship count to three, as she won individual doubles with Paige Giesler last year. Reese said that winning her third blue medal "felt amazing! It was so fun getting to experience it multiple times and having my team behind me cheering me on every time. It feels so special to be able to bring those titles back home to the program that I grew up playing in!"

drive the distance

Through a tough season, the boys persevered to receive their dedication.

Winning seems to be the big picture in sports, but what matters is the determination to fight to the very end. The boys exemplified this ending on a bittersweet note. They continued to make Jasper proud by representing relentless effort and unity. The boys made it to sectionals for the 17 consecutive year, an impressive streak, and even winning sectionals. At regionals the competition was trying. Our wildcats tied with Bloomington South for 3rd place; the tie breaker not going in their favor. This year did not end with a pity party, but with high spirits to send off their own.

Senior Caleb Schnarr carried the torch further by making it to the individuals state tourney to represent Jasper. Caleb would end with a tie for 8th place with a shot of 71 and 73. Caleb also earned All-State honors; capping the season off defining it with personal excellence and team camaraderie.

Ties seem to be the common denominator this season, but the boys never settled. Along the way, the team had many wins this season, winning the Jasper invitational.

Caleb Schnarr had a parting wisdom for his team, "Just keep your mind on the shot you are hitting and don't think too far ahead. Having the team to rely on is definitely a good feeling when being on the course." Caleb also had very simple, but powerful strategy for staying positive, "focusing on what has got me to this point in my game." The team was a simple reminder for Jasper to persevere. This advice, and team, can inspire anyone else to drive the distance, even when in the rough.

in the fast lane

If there's one word to define the season for the boys track team, it's consistency. The team placed in the top two at 10 out of 11 meets and managed to secure first place at seven of them, proving their determination, depth, and commitment to the sport. Their steady performance showed that hard work and focus throughout the season really paid off.

Kevin Schipp, head coach for the boys team, highlighted how every athlete played a role in the team's success, saying, "We have guys in all grades contributing in big ways. We're strong in distance, sprints, hurdles, and field events." Without having to rely on a single event group for points, the team came together as a whole, showing up week after week with strong performances. That kind of depth allowed them to stay competitive no matter what kind of meet they faced.

One of the biggest takeaways from the season was the impact of the younger athletes. The underclassmen rose to the challenge, and the leadership from older teammates made a difference. Senior shot put thrower Carson Matheis shared that what kept him focused was "knowing I've got to help the underclassmen reach their goals." That kind of mindset, where you're working to improve while encouraging others to grow, sets the tone for the future of the team. Coach Schipp hopes the athletes take away more than just ribbons handed out after wins. "I hope they continue being consistent with their efforts in training, competing, and being good teammates. We want them to be leaders." In the end, it's not just about medals or records. It's about the habits, effort, and mindset built on the track that stay with you long after the season is over.

gaining tracktion

Through rain or shine, the girls' never let any challenges bring them down.

From practices constantly being stuck indoors to meets getting rescheduled and delayed due to the rain, the season tested the team's patience from the very beginning. Hot practices stuck in locker rooms, sharing the auxiliary gym with other teams, the list goes on and on. Yet, the girls didn't let a weather forecast get in their way. Through each downpour and lightning storm, they kept showing up, working harder than ever, letting their drive and determination pay off in the end.

For the third year in a row now, the girls have taken home the sectional win, a reflection of the team's greatest strength: their work ethic. This year especially, the underclassmen made their mark on the team with contributions from many athletes across all events. Coach Dean Jerger says how surprised he was at the talent from the freshman, specifically in throwing events, "Typically the throwing events are dominated by juniors and seniors, but our freshmen throwers have done a remarkable job."

The work ethic of these girls led to a great postseason, with five team members—Katherine Woebkenberg, Madelyn Knies, Ellie Leonard, Kate Werner, and Meredith Kluesner—all qualifying for the IHSAA State Finals. Although medals and wins against rival schools make you happy in the moment, it's the memories and lessons you learn that stay with you forever. "I hope the kids have learned how to push through the hard times and that it takes sacrifices to be good at what they do in life," Coach Jerger says. "You have to get comfortable with feeling uncomfortable to be successful in track."

A new organized method to make sure your spot doesn't get stolen again!

Imagine you are running late to school, cutting through the parking lot in a panic to make sure you don't get to class late, just to drive by and see another student parked in your spot. It can be a frustrating issue, especially when it's not the first time this has happened. After having this constant complaint for years, the school administration decided it was finally time for a change. This year, a new parking lot system was introduced where students got to choose their own spot labeled by a number, helping to ensure their spot wasn't stolen.

While the new system hasn't solved every parking problem, it significantly improved the situation. Principal Geoff Mauck, who served a key role in fixing the problem, told us, "I have heard many positive student comments on the new assigned parking spaces. Many students like knowing that no matter what time they arrive at school, they do not have to worry about finding an open parking space."

a case study of Jasper High School's iconic mascot.

No one knows exactly how the wildcat became Jasper High School's mascot, but the story goes that it started after a bobcat was spotted near Bear Creek. That moment stuck, and over time, the North American bobcat (Lynx rufus) became a lasting symbol of strength, resilience, and Jasper pride. Bobcats are known for their sharp instincts, quiet confidence, and strong presence in the wild - much like the spirit found in the halls of Jasper. These days, the wildcat isn't just part of the logo - it's part of the experience. Whether it's dancing at halftime, running through the gym during pep rallies, or bringing a little extra energy to spirit week, the wildcat helps bring our school together in a way that's hard to miss. One activity tied to the mascot is the "Guess the Mascot" challenge during pep sessions. Clues are revealed one by one, and students spend the pep rally trying to figure out who's been under the mask. Past mascots like Mr. Harris and Luke Mehringer made the challenge especially memorable, bringing their own humor and energy to the role and keeping everyone guessing. Being a wildcat takes more than putting on the suit - it takes spirit, confidence, and a willingness to be a little silly in front of the whole school. But that's what makes it special. The wildcat has become a symbol of what Jasper is all about: having fun, supporting each other, and taking pride in where we come from. It's one of those small traditions that ends up meaning a lot - something students look forward to, talk about, and remember long after they leave. What really makes it special is that it's something we all share. Whether you're in the crowd, on the court, in the band, or just walking the halls, there's a feeling that you're part of something bigger than yourself. Being a wildcat means being surrounded by people who show up, cheer each other on, and help make this place feel like more than just a school. It becomes a community you grow proud to be part of - a place that sticks with you in all the best ways. That connection doesn't fade when the game ends or the pep rally's over - it stays with you. Because once you've felt what it means to be part of Jasper, you understand: once a wildcat, always a wildcat.

A massive thank you to all the dedicated members of our Sports Media team. In our very first year as a club, your hard work, creativity, and passion played a vital role in bringing this book to life. It simply wouldn't be complete without the incredible photos you captured—each one helping to tell the story in a way words never could.

Special shoutouts to Todd Dick, Joselin Miranda, Lilly Roberts, Whitney Recker, and Alexia Ceron for going above and beyond behind the lens. Your commitment and talent gave this book its visual heartbeat. Every action shot made this book truly memorable.

Thank you all for the time and care you put into making sure each image told a story. Your contributions didn't just complement the work—we couldn't have done it without you.

local photographers

A huge thank you to the local photographers who let us use their awesome photos in this year's book. Brent Astrike, Kelly Buechlein, Jessica Bingle, Dave Nealy, and Anne McGowan, your shots were seriously next level and added so much to the final product. We're super lucky to have people like you in the community who are not only insanely talented but also willing to share your work with us.

From action-packed plays to quiet in-between moments, your photos helped tell the full story of the year—way better than we ever could with just words. You captured things we didn't even realize were happening in the moment, and that made the book feel real and alive.

Thanks again for being such a big part of this, your support meant a lot, and we honestly couldn't have made the book what it is without you.

Letters from the editors

The theme of this book means so much to me, and it feels personal in a way that I don't think any other theme ever could. The funny thing is, the story behind how we landed on take notes wasn't some deep brainstorming session or a carefully thought-out plan. It happened in the most random way possible, which makes it even more special. Ava and I were sitting in class one day, joking around about potential yearbook themes. I turned to her and asked if she took notes in history, and we both just kind of froze for a second. We looked at each other, and it clicked—take notes, take notes. We couldn't stop laughing at first, but deep down, I think we both knew that was it. From that moment on, there wasn't even a question about what our book theme would be. take notes stuck, and it became the heart of everything we built this year. For me, the phrase take notes ended up meaning more than just something funny we said in class. It turned into a reminder of what this whole year was about—paying attention, noticing the small moments, and holding on to memories that we'll never get back after this time is gone. High school is full of moments you don't realize are important until later: the inside jokes in class, the late nights stressing over assignments, the random conversations in the hallway that somehow make your entire day better. This book is our way of making sure those moments don't just fade away. It's a way of saying: take note of this year, because it only happens once. Another reason this theme is so important to me is because it reminds me of the journey Ava and I have been on together. When we first met, we were just acquaintances—two people who happened to be in band. Over time, working on yearbook pulled us closer. We became friends, and then we became editors, tackling challenges side by side. Through all of that, we built not just a book but a bond. And now, as we look ahead, we've gone from being those random classmates to becoming college roommates. To me, that's something worth taking note of too. It's proof that sometimes the people you least expect can become some of the most important people in your life. But getting to the final product wasn't easy. To be honest, when I first thought about starting this book, I was terrified. We only had a staff of eight people, that's not a lot when you're trying to put together something as big as a yearbook. I kept asking myself, how do you even create something from nothing? Where do you start when the task in front of you feels bigger than you are? I doubted myself a lot at the beginning. I worried we wouldn't be able to pull it off. I worried about letting people down. And most of all, I worried that the book I had dreamed of in my head wouldn't be possible with the resources we had. But something I learned this year is that when people care enough, they find a way to make things happen. Our staff may have been small, but what we lacked in numbers we made up for in dedication. Everyone poured their energy into this project, and little by little, page by page, we started to see it come to life. It wasn't perfect, and it wasn't always easy, but it was real. There were times we laughed until we cried, and there were times we were just plain stressed. But at the end of the day, we were all in it together. Looking back, some of my favorite memories from this year aren't just about the final book—it's about the process of making it. It's the brainstorming sessions that turned into tangents about life. It's the snacks we shared when it was someone's birthday. It's the way we celebrated finishing a really tough spread or fixing something we thought couldn't be fixed. Those moments are just as much a part of this book as the photos and stories we captured. They're the behind-the-scenes notes that no one else sees, but I'll remember forever. When I look at the finished book now, I don't just see photos and captions. I see every late night, every brainstorming session, every moment of panic and every burst of laughter. I see the people who made it possible and the memories we captured together. And most of all, I see the message we wanted to share: take notes. Because these years go by fast, and the details that seem small now will mean the world later. So to anyone reading this, my biggest hope is that this book reminds you to slow down and notice the little things. Notice the way your friends make you laugh until your stomach hurts. Notice the nervous excitement before a big game or performance. Notice the quiet moments in between the chaos. take notes on the life you're living right now, because one day you'll look back and realize these were some of the best days. This year challenged me more than I expected, but it also gave me more than I could have asked for. I'm proud of what we created, and I'm grateful for every person who helped along the way. Somehow, through all the hard work and dedication, we finished this book, and it turned into everything I dreamed it would be—and maybe even more.

And most of all, don't forget to TAKE NOTES.

Howdy Wildcats!

Trust me, this was tough to do. As I'm sitting in my college dorm writing this, I wonder why it took us so long to finish the book. I realize a part of me just wants to hold on to high school and the memories I've experienced just for a little while longer. But in actuality, I'm listening to "Sparks" by Coldplay, so I'm being sentimental. (Procrastination was probably a more realistic answer, but where's the poetry in that?) But, I think I'm ready to move on finally. To be honest, high school is way more overwhelming than people lead onto, which is why I tried to capture a fraction of that in this book. I want it to be realistic.

Anyways, we all put a lot of our heart and soul into this book, and I hope it shows. Hours were spent writing captions, designing pages, and taking photos just so the book could look just a little bit better. None of this could have been achieved without the GOAT, Mr. Elrod. Also a huge shout out to the staff 2026, you're awesome. The community we've created in our room full of computers is one I will never forget. Shout out to my mom and dad, my grandparents, and of course, my dog Loki.
