to a higher degree

"Jasper High School is too good to be true."

This school year, as we continue recovering from a growing list of adversity, we are focusing on the things that take Jasper High School to that higher degree. Our school district's slogan this year is #JasperGREAT, but what really sets us apart from other schools? It's not the crowded halls. It's not the copious amounts of school work. It's YOU. Every single person at Jasper High School has unique qualities that are worth celebrating, and this yearbook intends to recognize as many of those individuals as possible.

There are countless phrases containing the word "too"; sometimes the word starts or ends the phrase, and other times it's stuck in the middle. Throughout this book, we use these phrases and also use "too" in place of the words "to" and "two" to highlight our students' unique activities. The use of ellipses on this page and divider pages in the book signifies that there are endless possibilities on either side of the word "too" and countless things that make our students great.

when crops and fruits are gathered and leaves fall

"I just love fall."

Fall marks the beginning of the school year and new beginnings for the students at Jasper High School. Although this season brings along dying plants and unpleasant weather, students are given new life with athletics, the arts, and other extracurriculars. Freshmen take their first steps of high school—and, in turn, their first steps toward adulthood—and seniors begin crossing items off of their long list of lasts.

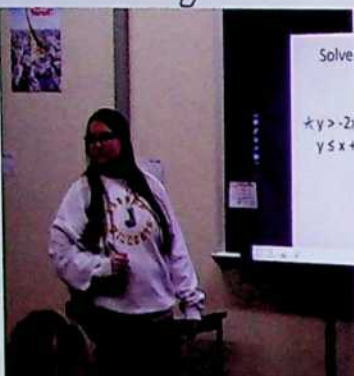

Last school year, many of the regular activities were altered or cancelled to accommodate COVID-19 regulations. This year, we're re-adjusting to a semi-normal lifestyle, as stores, restaurants, and other public places began reopening over the summer. This fall, students can be found enjoying an unrestricted student section, full-fledged pep sessions, and no more early-morning temperature checks.

they're new, too

Don't fear, freshmen and new students, you're not the only ones new to JHS

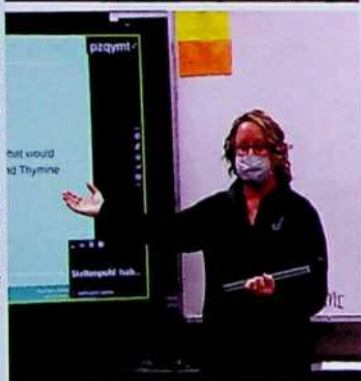

THE LESSON THAT

COUNTS. Ms. Ebenkamp joins the Math Department as the new Algebra I teacher this year. Among nine other new staff members, Ms. Ebenkamp hopes to have a great first year at Jasper High School.

MEDICAL MASTER.

Ms. Gutsell teaches Biology, Human Body Services, and Medical Intervention this year. She had previously taught Biology and other classes at Holy Trinity. Ms. Gutsell said she is looking forward to "getting used to the classes and getting to know the students" as the school year progresses.

THE MUSIC MAN.

Mr. Werne, a JHS graduate, now teaches for the band program that shaped him into who he is today. "We want as many students as possible to be able to experience making music as part of the Jasper Band Program." Werne looks to encourage more middle schoolers to join band in upcoming years.

BUSY WITH BIOLOGY.

After graduating from Southeastern Louisiana University, Ms. Sitzman is now teaching Biology and AP Biology. "My first impression of JHS was how much all the staff supported each other... I'm genuinely grateful for the welcoming environment JHS has provided so far" Ms. Sitzman said she looks forward to a strong school year.

WISE WORDS. Dr. Nalley speaks to the sophomore class in the auditorium. Every year, the principal and vice principal lay out the rules for the students, ensuring everyone has a fun, safe year.

MEET MAUCK

JHS welcomes a not-so-new face to a new role

On the first day of school, Mr. Mauck gave a speech to the student body regarding the new school year. Mauck was previously the assistant principal at Jasper High School and took the role of principal just this school year.

With a new role comes new responsibilities, and Mr. Mauck was happy to share his plans for the new school year, explaining that he wants to sit back and take a look at how the school runs before making any major changes. Mauck also shared his hopes of having a more typical school year, "[I] want kids to be involved in things so that they feel ownership of the school and feel like this is their building and their four years here. Seniors have had a rough go of it, so hopefully they can enjoy this year and have a more normal school year." He is hoping to have a good COVID-free year and is looking forward to learning about the duties of a principal.

Dr. Nalley, the new assistant principal, also gave an introductory speech on the first day of school. Dr. Nalley is among the new staff members at Jasper High School this year, hailing from the halls of Forest Park High School. When asked about the move from school to school, Dr. Nalley said the biggest difference is the size of the student body. With roughly 700 students, Forest Park is significantly smaller than Jasper's 1000+ student body. "There's a lot more support, as far as the roles that individuals have here at the school; departmentally, there are a lot more resources," Nalley said she was happy to have so much staff to support her and welcome her into the school.

Principal Mauck speaks to the senior class after the first day pep session. The first day of school is always booming with excitement, so Mr. Mauck made sure to keep his speech short and sweet so the student body could begin their curriculum.

The yearbook staff gets going on day 1

BREAKING THE ICE. As a fun welcoming activity for the first week of school, senior Shaylen Uzman decorates a J with the yearbook class and engages in discussion about some of the class's ideas about this year's yearbook. The "J" yearbook is equipped with nearly 20 staff members this semester, a big upgrade from the previous year's class of 11. Senior editor-in-chief Ainsley Pierce is looking forward to this school year and the new staff that comes with it. "After having a strong year last year, I really want to incorporate some of those ideas and make them my own. It's been challenging to start off this year, because I don't feel like I have a whole lot of ideas, but I have four returning staff members with me who I'm able to bounce ideas off of and brainstorm with." The 2022 yearbook staff is determined to make this book the best one yet and leave a legacy for yearbookers to come.

OUTfore! VICTORY

*The girls golf team
takes the Wildcat
Invitational by storm*

Saturday, August 21 was an exciting day for the Jasper High School girls golf team, as they made big strides by winning the Wildcat Invitational for the third year in a row. They won this match handily, and the Wildcats—with a line-up composed of all five senior players—got first out of 11 competing teams from surrounding schools. This provides an optimistic outlook for the rest of the season. Two of the five girls shot their personal best on Saturday, and two tied their personal best, which is an impressive feat considering how early it is in the season. This invitational, held at Buffalo Trace Golf Course, is always a big match for the team, and coming out on top this year is something that all of the girls are proud of.

The Wildcat golf team has had successful seasons in recent years, and this season is not expected to be any different. Their everyday practice is paying off, and their efforts can be seen through their scores. "I feel like this season a lot of us are shooting some of our best scores yet," explained senior Avery Bartley. "The scores are continuously looking better and everyone on the team shows a lot of promise." The Cats have been working hard up to this point, and they do not plan on slowing down. As the varsity lineup has been mostly seniors for a majority of the season, the girls are looking for a good post-season run to end their last high school golf season on a high note, hopefully making it to state to fulfill their collective dream. However, the team has a lot of regular season matches before that time comes, and the players will focus on making each one count. Saturday's invitational proved to everyone that the golf team will be a big competitor this year, and it was a great way to start their season. Many more personal bests are to come, which will get the golfers closer to their goals.

DRIVING TOWARD IMPROVEMENT. On hole 6 at Buffalo Trace Golf Course, senior Avery Bartley smashes a drive down the middle of the fairway. Bartley is one of the powerhouses on Jasper's girls golf team, getting more distance with each swing than almost every other player on the team.

PROUD PUTTERS. Chipping onto the green of hole five at Buffalo Trace Golf Course, senior Halle Knies aims for a birdie to lower her score on the front nine. Knies explained that she-and the rest of the team-had high expectations going into the invitational. "I feel like our team made great strides at our Wildcat Invitational this past weekend. I think that all of us went into it feeling very confident in ourselves and trusting our abilities and each other," Knies explained.

GET IN LINE. Senior Ainsley Pierce marks her ball before lining up her putt on the green of hole five at Buffalo Trace Golf Course. During the Wildcat Invitational, Pierce tied her personal best score, saying she wished she had just pushed herself a little harder and sunk a few more one-putts. "I definitely could've done better on the back, but I was really happy to shoot a 41 on the front," Pierce explained.

BIRDIE AFTER BIRDIE. Senior Elizabeth Ackerman putts for a birdie on hole three at Buffalo Trace Golf Course. Ackerman has been one of the top scorers on the team since her freshman year and has high hopes for the rest of her senior season. "A great way to end my high school career would be making it to state. Whether team or individual, state would be an amazing experience," Ackerman explained. The team all agrees they will need to continue improving and work their hardest in order to make it to the state championship.

ALS puts a tasty twist on learning | it's a cell-ebration!

EDIBLE CELLS. In Advanced Life Science class, Mr. Helming found a way for students to do hands-on learning that would be enjoyable for everyone. Working in groups of 2 to 4, students created a model of a cell, using various candies and icing to represent the different parts of the cell. Seniors Preston Small, Joss Winkel, Grace Weidenbenner, and Kendall Lee (pictured left) show off their cookie-cake-based cell adorned with frosting, Swedish Fish, and Twizzlers.

DELICATE HAND. Junior Reece Schnaus places toothpicks and paper on her cake to create tags for each part of the cell. Students, including Schnaus, used a great deal of care when creating their models.

SPRAINED SPIRIT. After spraining his MCL, junior Daniel King lays on the ground during the second half of the game against the Memorial Tigers. A later evaluation determined that King would be unable to play for two to six weeks. "I am most upset about missing the game against New Albany," stated King, "because they beat us last year by one goal, so I wanted to play against them and win."

FFA starts the year off booming

QUIET IN THE CLASSROOM.

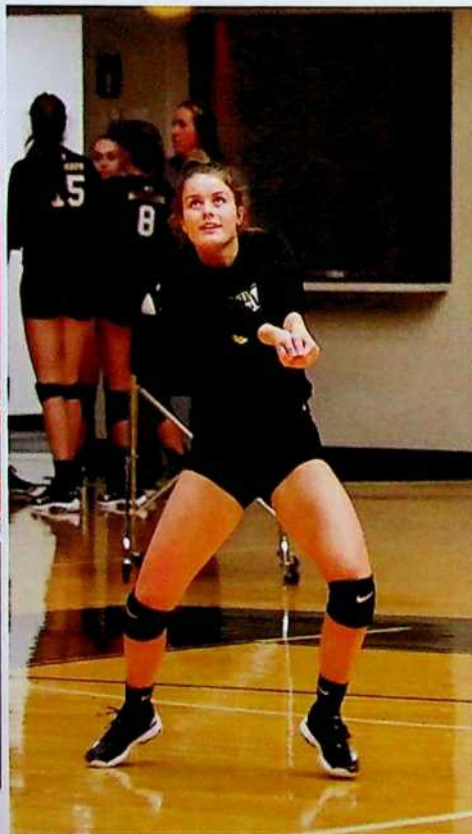

Senior Owen Weisman shushes other FFA members during their kickoff meeting. "This year we had a lot of new members join," FFA President Weisman explained. "Most of them got very involved already with our first couple competitions." The Jasper FFA team has high hopes for this year and are off to a great start as they begin this year's competitions.

PLANNING FOR THE FUTURE.

Pointing at the chalkboard, senior Hannah Rottet helps facilitate planning for the upcoming FFA competitions.

BUMP IT UP. With the help of her teammate, junior Paige O'Neil braces herself for a receive during warm-ups before the game. O'Neil is another potential leader for next year's team, so she's taking the initiative this season to prepare.

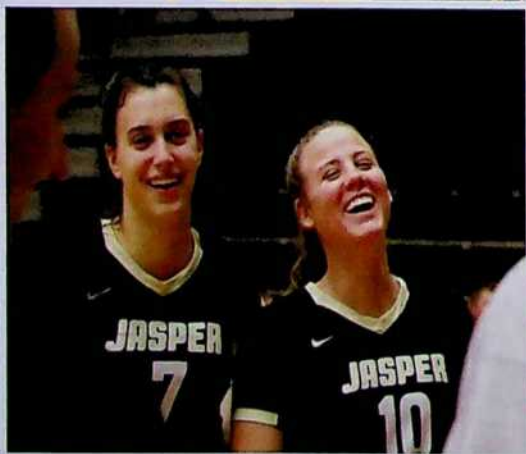

BUMP, SET, SPIKE.

Junior middle hitter Bailey Lents lands after spiking the ball. As an upcoming senior, Lents has been taking notes from this year's seniors and preparing to take a bigger role next season.

LAUGH IT OFF. Seniors Izzy Hopf and Aspen Sermersheim laugh with their teammates before getting serious on the court. As seniors, both girls make sure to be leaders for the underclassmen and show them how to stay positive on and off the court. "We are more than capable to compete against any team which is very exciting," Hopf explained that the team tries to be the best they can on and off the court. This year, the team is more united than ever and is ready to make big strides in the post-season.

TAKING A BREAK. Waiting for the other team to serve, senior libero Jayden Pfister does not let her guard down. As one of the senior leaders on the team, Jayden makes sure to keep the energy high and motivate the team. "My expectations are to be undefeated and to win sectionals. I feel like we have a really strong team, and we work well together. I think we can make it far in post season," Pfister explained.

"My entire family is really talented at singing"

Another new face arrives at JHS

CHEESE! Sophomore Molly Kissel poses with her student ID QR code on picture day. Due to Robert McCarty's retirement, JHS had to switch things up a bit. When school pictures came around this year, a new face appeared, bringing with her a new system. Kelly Buechlein took on the daunting job and snapped perfect pictures for all of the JHS students and staff.

AT THE READY. Waiting for an incoming spike, senior pin hitter Kennedy Matheis stands close to the net with her hands ready to block at any moment. "We need to find a way to keep the energy high and get as many points in a row as we can," Matheis explained her thoughts during the game.

SETTING the season

The volleyball team starts the season with high expectations

The volleyball team has high spirits going into this season, and already have their sights set on winning the sectional tournament. In order to carry out this task, strong leadership is needed, and the seniors have stepped up to fill the role. They have taken the lead in every match they've competed in so far this fall. "We have beat a few good teams so far. Though we are winning, I feel like as a team we are very humble and still understand the fact that we need to work hard," senior Kennedy Matheis explains. "We have proven we can fight back and win games. We understand in order to continue our success we need to work hard." Each win that the Cats garner is hard fought and not taken for granted.

On August 24, the team captured a win against the Heritage Hills Patriots. However, even though they persevered through the match, it was not a game that the Cats could breeze through. "We can't take any match easily. We need to be in the game the whole time," senior Jayden Pfister explained. "This wasn't an easy win, but when we picked up the energy, that made us play better." The team cheers each other on during every match and truly brings the energy. Each time they gain a point, anyone in the gym can hear the girls both on and off the court erupt in encouraging screams.

Even though some matches are more challenging than others, they all push each other to perform to the best of their abilities. Senior Aspen Sermersheim expresses, "We just have to keep our heads up and stay intense." The girls expect to make it far this season as long as each girl gives it their all, and they work well as a team. The season has started off full of victories, and if they continue to push each other, the rest of the season will hopefully be full of victories as well.

FIRST TIME for everything

Archery is a hit with Jasper's PE students

SURE SHOT. Going for the bullseye, junior Abigail Aders takes her aim before firing. While adjusting to his new role as the P.E. teacher, Mr. Eckert has introduced some fun new activities to peak students interests. "I want to introduce this to students because it's something different, and some kids may never get the opportunity to shoot a bow and arrow again." Eckert hopes that the new curriculum will inspire students to get more involved in archery clubs and other smaller student organizations.

CAPTAIN ON CRUTCHES.

Traditionally, the four team captains walk onto the field hand in hand before every game. This season, senior captain Isaac Day kept up this tradition despite breaking his ankle early in the season. Although he was not able to compete, Day stayed on the sidelines, supporting his team through every play.

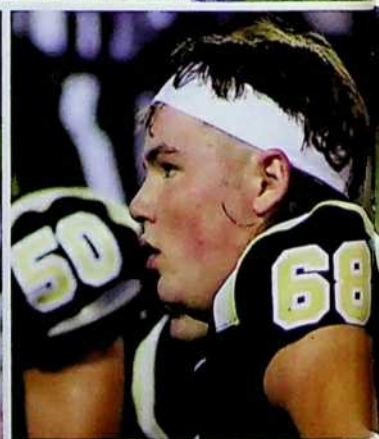

RISING STAR. A new-found star for the game was junior Bralen Bair, who managed two interceptions and two touchdowns during the game. "Every school we play is a rival... This is our second year in the SIAC conference and we have been a top team in every sport," said Bair.

DEFENSE! DEFENSE! DEFENSE!

Kneeling at the line of scrimmage, senior captain Jacob Potts gets ready to defend against the Evansville-Reitz Panthers. As a lineman, Potts specializes in tackling opposing players and preventing turnovers. Potts also made the 1st Team All-Conference this season, alongside fellow seniors Connor Foley, Ashton Schuetter, and Michael Buechler and junior Bralen Bair.

STRIKING SENIOR. Senior lineman Michael Buechler gets ready to stand at the line of scrimmage. Buechler proved to be a major asset to the team this year and was one of five seniors to make an All-Conference team.

NINE Patiently waiting for the ball to be snapped, senior Connor Foley gets ready to defend the ball at the line of scrimmage. Foley was eager to get this win over the Panthers, so the team could prove themselves on their home field.

DEDICATED DEFENSE. Kneeling during a time out, junior lineman Jaxson Bower pays close attention while the coach goes over the next play.

Running toward Success

The Wildcats' season is looking optimistic with 3 wins already under their belt

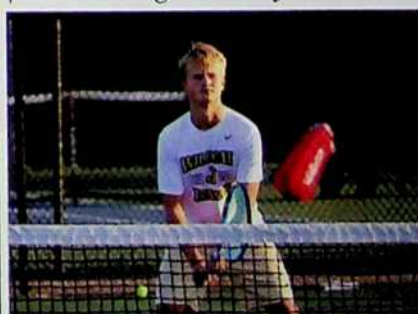

On Friday, September 3rd, the football team played against Evansville Reitz—their first home game of the season after three away wins. "It was a great atmosphere and a good team win," affirmed senior tight-end and defensive lineman Connor Foley, "We were all nervous because it was our home opener." Foley explained that one of the team's motivators that night was that Head Coach Tony Lewis had coached the Evansville Reitz Panthers before moving to Jasper High School. The team wanted to prove themselves to their coach and the opposing team, and the Wildcats used this motivation to push past their nerves and double their opponent's score (42-21). Each time the Panthers pushed, the Wildcats found a way to push back.

With injured players and unwavering COVID-19 regulations at school, the football team has already faced many challenges this season. "Our boys have dealt with adversity with a positive attitude and continuously overcome any issues that have presented themselves to them up to this point," remarked coach Lewis.

So far this season, the boys have proved themselves to be a big competitor, and Lewis gives some of this credit to the fans. "This year's student section has been awesome in terms of providing great fan support for our football team," stated Coach Lewis. The boys are hopeful to make it an undefeated season with their undeniable teamwork efforts and extraordinary support system.

ahead of the GAME

the boys tennis team wins a nail-biter against Floyd Central

AT THE READY. Senior Noah Hanneman waits for his opponent to serve during warmups before the match. Hanneman is one of the most vocal and competitive members of the team, and easily gets the crowd—and his team—fired up.

HIGH FIVE. Sophomore Yashwinder Basra pumps up his teammates as the team mentally prepares for what would turn out to be a tough match. The matches on August 30th were intense. The lead was changing left and right, and it came down to the last points from the number two doubles to pull off the team win. One singles, two singles, and two doubles won in the 3-2 victory over Floyd Central. "It is nice having a team that is as close as we are. We support each other through thick and thin and get through the ups and downs together," explained senior Justin Shultz. The whole team fought through adversity and past mistakes and found a way to give the team a big win over their rival.

The girls
soccer team
finds a groove

KICKING into GEAR

The beginning of the girls soccer season is always tough for the Wildcats, as they face some of their biggest competitors early on. This year was no exception, and while the season started out a little rocky, it certainly didn't stay that way. The Cats faced the Princeton Tigers on September 7 and came away with a 7-0 victory. Still pretty early in the season, this game was one that they knew could help set the tone for the weeks to come. "We had a couple of rough games before the Princeton game, and I knew that the Princeton game was one that we could win as long as we all played our best," stated junior Reagan Fortwendel. The team clearly did play their best, as they came away with a big win over the Tigers, which helped to boost everyone's confidence.

Of the seven goals that the Cats scored, Fortwendel had 3, sophomore Lilly Rasche had 2, and junior Michelle Ondiek had 2. This game showed the girls they could do well when they communicated and worked together as a team. Everyone played well together that night, and the good chemistry between the players helped to create a positive atmosphere that fueled their victory. "I felt really proud and excited when we won the game because we always learn from our losses but it really makes the team closer and more motivated when we win," explained senior captain Ava Harmon. After this turnaround, the team hopes to keep improving so that they can have more of these big wins, and continue their season on a high note.

SPRINTING FORWARD. Junior Michelle Ondiek sprints forward to try and catch up with the ball that is quickly racing ahead with the other team. Ondiek caught up with the ball in time to steal it back from the opposing team.

READY TO RUN. Senior Avery Knies runs towards the ball, ready to take it to the goal. Knies takes a long touch around her opponent in order to beat her down the sideline.

MORE THAN A TEAM. The varsity team high-five one another as the starting lineup is introduced. The girls have made this a tradition before every game, and the team has become known throughout the school for being very closely bonded. When post-season approaches, the girls even get each other secret-santa-style gift bags. "The best thing about my teammates and I is the bonds we have created. Our personality is what makes our team, our team," stated junior captain Jasmin Mehringer. The girls soccer team hopes their bonds off the field will help them improve as a team on the field as well.

RUNNING AHEAD. Juniors Taryn Schmitt and Hallie Skorge keep up with their opponents as they take the ball down the field. Both girls raced forward to try and get ahead of their opponents as they fought to stay ahead in the game.

"I like cars and engines."

A FUN ENVIRONMENT. Sophomore Emma Pryor celebrates a goal with fellow teammate as they high five each other. Pryor explains "The team is amazing, it's a very positive fun environment." Pryor has enjoyed her two years on the high school soccer team and loves seeing self-improvement.

CAUTIOUS MOVES. Caroline Kieffner, sophomore, comes to a stop after making an overlapping run. Kieffner plays defense, but definitely enjoys her opportunities to get close to the goal.

POWERFUL KICKS. Senior goalie Maggie Hubster powerfully punts the ball back into play after making a phenomenal save just moments prior.

RACING TO COMPETE. Reagan Fortwendel, junior, races against a girl on the opposing team after taking a long touch around her and down the sidelines, in order to advance towards the goal.

swinging for the flags

Sultan's Run makes its debut on the Wildcats' schedule

PERFECT PUTT. Senior Halle Knies prepares to putt her ball straight into the hole on Number 18. At their conference match, the girls took on a new challenge: Sultan's Run Golf Course. Not only did the girls have to play at one of the tougher courses in the region, they were also faced with two of the state's top teams. In their second year in the SIAC conference, the girls once again made it their goal to score as close to the North Huskies and Castle Knights as they could. The team placed third for the second year in a row, with seniors Halle Knies, Avery Bartley, and Elizabeth Ackerman placing individually as well. Although some of the girls thought they could've done better, the whole team had high spirits after their big achievement.

UP AND AWAY. Senior Elizabeth Ackerman chips the ball onto the green. "I would say my biggest highlight was the span of hole 10-14. During all of these holes, I had great contact and confidence in my swing." Ackerman was one of three girls on the team to place individually at the conference match.

The Unified Flag Football team welcomes all

Unified flag football is built on friendship. The relationships between the players, helpers, and coaches allows for a friendly environment where everyone is welcome and celebrated. Even when the team deals with a tough loss, they still manage have fun and lift each other up, making memories every step of the way. "A memory that stuck out to me was our last game against Bedford North Lawrence. Our team played really hard, and we had a lot of fun doing so," described senior helper Claudia Buschkoetter. The camaraderie that existed between the players helped to forge this important memory for her and many other players.

The players worked hard too, along with having fun. Every single person put in the work necessary in order to perform well on the field when it came time for a game. In order to prepare for each game, the team made sure that they stretched very well, and would line up in two groups and begin with dynamic stretches down the field and back. Sometimes they would also get in a circle and have two players lead stretches in front of the whole group.

Everyone created new friendships this year, whether they were a first year member, or a fourth year member. "This is my first year, and I joined because I thought it would be a good way to try something new and meet new people," explained sophomore helper Caroline Buechlein. She achieved her goal, coming out of the season with numerous amazing friendships. In the final moments before a game, the team would get a pep talk from the coaches and stack their hands with a booming "1,2,3, cats!"

Staying calm and focused was important for the golfers on senior night, and, afterward, they celebrated their four years with a banquet and reminisced about their favorite golf memories. Principles of Human Services students learn about stress relief

POUR IT OUT. After adding the final touches to her mix, senior Grace Main pours the glittery concoction into a plastic bottle. Principles of Human Services is a new class where students learn about financial independence, mental health, how the brain develops, and how to help others. The sensory bottles were a student-led activity. The students decided that every Monday would serve as a "mindset day", during which the students would spend more time learning about themselves. Using the sensory bottles, students are able to distract from negative thoughts and focus on themselves.

GETTING MESSY. Waiting to wash her hands, sophomore Hannah Aull talks with her classmates at a sink. The students got to customize their bottles as a way of expressing themselves while also learning more about mental health and different relaxation methods.

CAUGHT RED-HANDED. Freshmen Melani Martinez Blanco and Olivia Edmond finish making their bottles with a quick shake. Many of the students had stained hands by the end of the class period, but they said it was worth it for the fun project.

FINAL ATTEMPT. Senior Ethan Frank gets ready to clear the ball at the end of the game, quickly getting it out of Jasper's back third, and up the field, away from the goal.

going for the GOAL

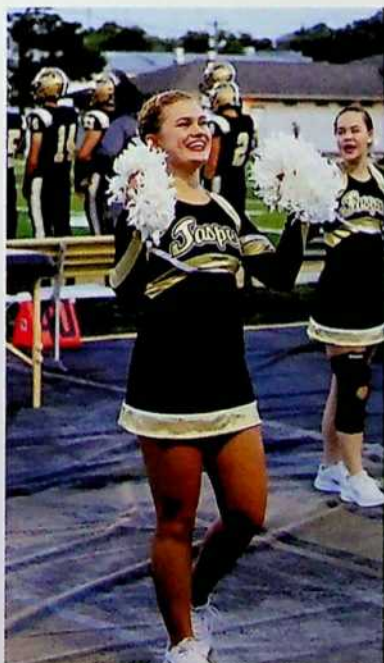

The boys soccer team ties their rival

On September 21, the boy's soccer team traveled to Washington High School to face off against the Hatchets, one of the team's long-time rivals. The game was a battle, possession going back and forth between the teams the entire time. Many shots were taken during the first 20 minutes, but none hit their mark. The Hatchets ended up scoring first, finding the back of the net around 26 minutes into the game. This goal rattled the cats, and with momentum on their side, Washington ended up quickly attacking again, which resulted in another goal for the Hatchets. This battle had quickly turned into the Cats being down by 2.

During half time, Jasper made some adjustments and started the second half with a fierceness they had been lacking in the first half. The game continued to be a struggle to gain possession long enough to make it up the field to score. Finally, the cats had a breakthrough, getting on the board approximately 57 minutes into the game. This time, the Cats were the ones with the momentum on their side, and they were determined to get another goal to tie the game. They didn't have to wait long, as the 61st minutes rolled around and the Cats began to make their way towards goal quickly. Junior Brandon Elizarraras took on a defender, making a quick move and then getting a shot off. Michael Enriquez followed it up and found the rebound, making a pull-back pass to Moises Ortiz who was just over his right shoulder. Ortiz found the bottom right corner to tie the game.

Students show their school spirit through extracurriculars

Cheering on the team

SCHOOL SPIRIT. Clapping in beat with the school song, freshman Caelyn Lenardo walks alongside the Marching Wildcats during the football game against Evansville Central on September 24. The football team has been on a winning streak so far this season, and everyone has been coming out to show their support. The marching band performs at nearly every game, supporting the team and further entertaining the crowd.

SMILING BIG. With a smile on her face, senior dancer Hannah Seifert pumps up the crowd during the football game. The dance team, along with the cheerleading team, stands on the sidelines of every home game to cheer on the football players.

CLAPS & crowns

The surprise homecoming win that had heads turning

Seniors Maddie Wanninger and Quinn Gunderson had a splash of fame this year when they were crowned as the football homecoming king and queen. This was a night to remember for the pair, as they ended the night with unexpected crowns on their heads. With the help of the JHS band and their collectively wide pool of friends, Gunderson and Wanninger managed to achieve their goal of royalty for the evening. "Winning homecoming queen was really unexpected, and so when my name got called, I was kind of in shock. I immediately felt grateful," expressed Wanninger. Since this had come as a surprise to her, Wanninger was not ready for all of the eyes to be on her that night. Winning homecoming queen, or king, puts all of the attention on you for an evening, and this was something Wanninger was not prepared for. However, she definitely knew it would be an experience that she would never forget. "It was definitely an honor," stated Gunderson, "it was really nice seeing all of my classmates congratulate me and feeling all my hard work pay off." Gunderson was in the same boat as Wanninger, he had not expected to win and therefore had not prepared himself for all of the attention that would be cast on him during the second half of the football game, after the crowning. Whether or not this win was expected however, did not make it any less memorable.

GRINS OF JOY. Maddie Wanninger and Quinn Gunderson smile wide as the names are announced for homecoming king and queen. The pair were simultaneously filled with shock and joy once hearing their names.

ARM-IN-ARM. Sophomores Moises Ortiz and Mackenzie Wagner smile at their friends as they walk across the football field. Although underclassmen can't be nominated for King and Queen, being on the homecoming court is a big deal to all at JHS.

BALLOON BUDDIES. Chloe Beck and Maya Knies, sophomores, blow up balloons to look like aliens for their Lilo and Stitch-themed hallway. Students love decorating for homecoming, because it allows for a lot of creativity and fun memories with friends.

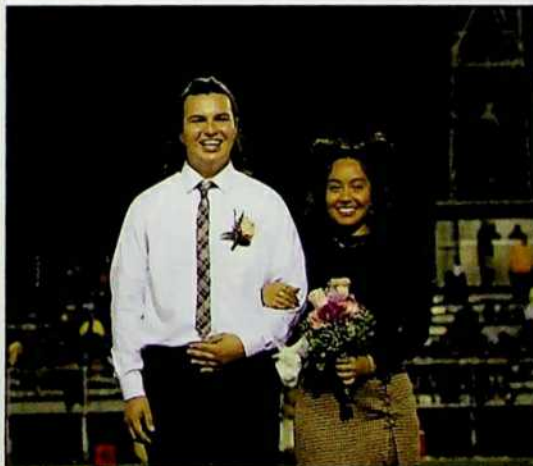

TAPING MEMORIES. Continuing the long-standing tradition of hallway decorating, senior Student Council President Taylor Bachman tapes a goalpost to the wall of the 500 hallway. This year's theme was Disney movies. The freshmen chose The Lion King, the sophomores picked Lilo and Stitch, the juniors decorated for Alice in Wonderland, and the seniors decided on Monsters, Inc.

POINTING AT PALS. Seniors Ben Henke and Hallie Sargent smile at their friends as they stand on the football field with the rest of the homecoming court. Although they didn't win king and queen, the two said they had a lot of fun simply being on the court with their peers. "I wasn't as nervous as I thought I would be," Sargent explained. "It made me feel better that I was with other people from my grade who were experiencing the same thing as me."

CROWNING CLASSMATES. Senior Reid Harmon crowns Maddie Wanninger during the announcement of homecoming queen. Harmon had previously been on the homecoming court, but said he had more fun getting to crown his classmates this year.

FUN WITH FRIENDS. Seniors Jessed Gamez-Daugherty and Vanessa Cortez got to stand in front of the crowd arm-in-arm at the homecoming game. Neither of them expected to be voted in the running for homecoming king and queen. "I told my friends to nominate me, but I didn't think we would actually make it onto the court. So, yes, I was surprised," Cortez explained. Cortez had been nominated onto the court the previous year during baseball homecoming, but not alongside the person she had expected. This year, she got to walk with Gamez-Daugherty, one of her close friends.

The girls soccer team wins sectionals for the third year in a row

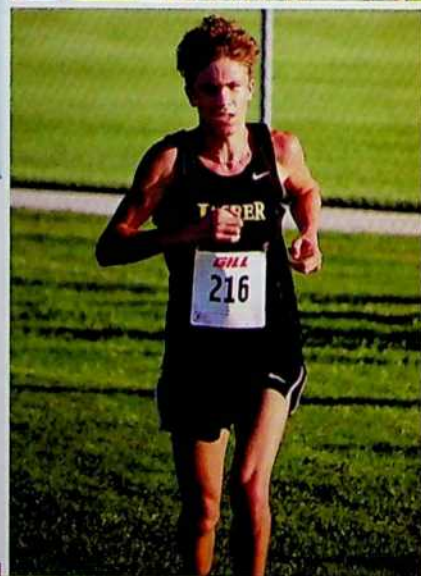

A POWERFUL THROW. Senior Maggie Hubster composes herself after a big save, and searches the field for an open player. The Wildcat girls soccer team won sectionals this year, making it the third year in a row that the Cats have been sectional champs. In the first round of sectionals, the team played the Washington Hatchets on Thursday, October 7, and pulled off the victory, beating the Hatchets 2-1. Goals came from sophomores Lilly Hulsman and Lilly Rasche. Advancing to the sectional finals, the Cats went up against Vincennes Lincoln on Saturday, October 9, and won 5-2, with a hat trick from junior Reagan Fortwendel, and 2 goals from Hulsman.

REGAINING COMPOSURE. Junior Harrison Hulsman puts his hands behind his head to catch his breath after finishing his race.

STRONG STRIDES. Junior Jaryn Weinell keeps consistent strong strides while trying to reach the finish line after a long race. Weinell placed third overall individually at the Sectional meet this year.

ON THE PODIUM. 4 of Jasper's runners managed to get on the podium for their individual times. Senior Abe Eckman came in 1st, junior Jaryn Weinell came in 3rd, junior Harrison Hulsman came in 4th, and sophomore Wylee Kippenbrock came in 8th.

HIGH RANKS. Senior Abe Eckman sprints around a sharp turn during his race, currently leading the pack. Eckman placed first overall this year.

Cross country runners give it their all at the sectional meet

The boys cross country team very regularly excels during the season, and just as regularly goes far in the post-season -, with this year being no exception. On Saturday, October 8, the Wildcat runners went up against 11 other teams, competing for the title of IHSAA Sectional champions. They managed to pull off the win, with 4 runners—Abe Eckman, Harrison Hulsman, Wylee Kippenbrock, and Jaryn Weinell—placing in the top 20 individually. This year, the sectional meet was held at a new course, and it was only the second time the Cats raced there, meaning that they were not super comfortable running there, but they did not let that get in the way, or become an excuse. “Winning sectionals for the first time at the new course was a product of all the hard work that we had put in all season long,” exclaimed senior Abe Eckman, “We knew winning would not be easy but we worked hard and pulled through.” The Cats had to train hard all season, which paid off when they heard their names announced as 1st place.

Cross country is a mentally and physically taxing sport, and it is important that the athletes train properly and give themselves ample rest time for their bodies to recover. Of course, they must also know when to push themselves and train hard. “The team as a whole all prepared well with good training going into sectionals,” stated junior Jaryn Weinell. The team focused on fueling up before the big race. Winning sectionals allowed the Wildcats to advance on to regionals, and the team will hopefully move on to semi-state and state after that. On top of the victory, being the first team to win sectionals at the new course will secure the Wildcats a place in school history.

The Marching Wildcat Invitational performance is a hit

The Marching Wildcats competed at the Jasper Invitational with a show that amazed the judges. The performance was about society's disastrous effects on Mother Nature. “The overarching theme of the show is Mother Nature rising and growing, but human activities ruin the environment,” described senior Isaiah Moss. The show has a powerful message about how the world must come together in order to protect Mother Nature. The band received distinction in all three competitive categories. “I feel that the performance in Jasper was actually one of our best as the band stayed together, and spirits and our energy was very high,” exclaimed senior drum major Delaney Smith about the performance. The audience couldn't get enough of the show and couldn't contain their excitement for the band.

MAJESTIC MOVEMENTS. Senior Tapanga Buechlein prepares to move to the music at the Jasper Invitational performance. Buechlein has been in color guard for all four years of high school and was chosen to play the role of mother nature for this year's show.

School Testing Day

On October 13th, 2021, JHS held an in school testing day. All sophomores took the PSAT, the Juniors either took the PSAT, SAT, or ASVAB test, and the seniors were able to choose between taking the SAT or ASVAB, job shadowing, college visit, or volunteer work. The day ran smoothly and helped aid students in preparing for their future endeavors.

CELEBRATING VICTORY. Junior Reece Lampert and sophomore Carson Bauer excitedly celebrate their win together.

The boys tennis team makes a comeback

While making it to the final four at the state match, the boys' tennis team proved a multitude of people wrong this season. This year the team lost 7 seniors and were not expected to make it as far as they had last year. Despite their unpredictable odds, the team put in countless hours of hard work and built up their confidence, refusing to settle for less than what they knew they could achieve. The team had more younger players this year, but this gave the seniors an opportunity to lead and give the underclassmen a good example to look up to. Even with an injury this year, senior Justin Shultz set a good example and fought his way back to winning season after recovering from the injury.

This year came with various adjustments for the whole team, but that did not stop them from dominating on the courts, winning match after match this season. Not only did these adjustments not hinder their season, but they also didn't prevent anyone on the team from making memories that will last them a lifetime. "My favorite memory had to be with Coach Yarbrough," explained Shultz. "When I won the match in the state quarterfinals, he gave me a hug in the happy moment."

The coaches could not have been more proud of the team and this year's season, and for good reason. Defeating the Westfield Rocks by a score of 5-0 and making it to the final four at State was a massive accomplishment for the Wildcats. Although the team fell to the Zionsville Eagles by a score of 4-1 in the final four, the team still had a season worth looking back on with a positivity. Throughout the year the team exceeded prior expectations and made it all the way to State, where they represented Jasper High School well.

Captivating the crowd

Seniors Reggie Matute and Ty Neighbors stand center stage during the Jasper choir's first concert of the year. Multiple seniors took the spotlight and performed their solos throughout the night. Choir is not only about singing and improving vocals—it also creates a family through the music. "We are our own little family," senior Jayden Divine expressed. "Burns makes everyone feel loved and appreciated."

This year's choir showed their passion for music during their first concert, and the crowd could visibly see their passion for music.

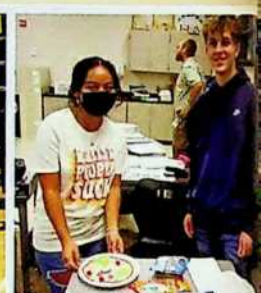

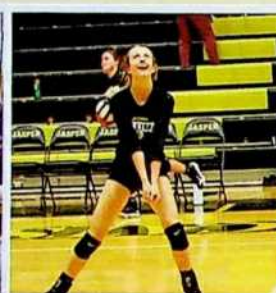

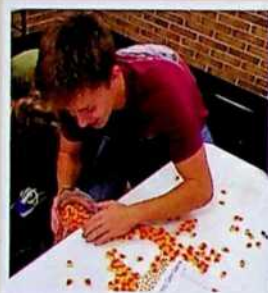

ENDLESS LAUGHS. Seniors Lauren Wigand and Gabrielle Goodwin let out some laughs as they both perform each dance move that goes along to one of their interactive songs at the choir concert.

Going the Distance

The girls cross country team runs all the way to state

The Girls Cross Country team is headed back to Terre Haute for the IHSAA State meet for the second year in a row. After making history last year when both the girls and boys cross country teams made it to the state meet, the runners refused to let up, and wanted to make this year just as successful as the last. The girls were team champions throughout the season a multitude of times, their confidence building after each victory. These wins include the Kentucky/Indiana Border Clash, the Tri-County Invitational, and the Jasper Invitational. The girls were also the champions of the Southern Indiana Athletic Conference, beating out some tough Evansville opponents.

This season, the team has beaten 120 competing teams, a very impressive amount. Although the girls had a triumphant season, they had to step it up to advance through the post-season, knowing that it would not be easy. "We have all worked so hard getting those miles finished, in and out of practice," affirmed senior Kylee Weisheit, "All the hard work we put in has really paid off, as we are heading to state once again!" The girls who ran at state were Kate Jerger, Linzi VanMeter, Andi VanMeter, Monica Lorey, Ally Wigand, Emma Schipp, and Kylee Weisheit. The team gave it their all this year and managed to finish 22nd overall at the State Finals. "We were each other's biggest motivators and supporters through the entire season, but that really grew the last few weeks of post season," stated junior Kate Jerger. This year was only the eighth year in Jasper High School history that the girls' cross country team advanced to the state meet.

COASTING THE END. Sophomore Emma Schipp pushes her way through her last few yards, seeing the end of her race is near.

Red Ribbon week was initiated by the National Family Partnership in 1988 for the recognition of Drug Enforcement Special Agent Kiki Camarena, after her death at the hand of drug traffickers. Each October at Jasper High School, Students Against Destructive Decisions members raise awareness for the destruction caused by drugs throughout America. Along with JHS, schools across the country share information about the effects of the use of drugs and alcohol hoping to encourage students to stray from using. Students in SADD at JHS plan the dress up days, create posters, make announcements, distribute ribbons to students, and overall try to bring awareness to the bigger issue at hand.

BREAKING RECORDS. Throughout all four years of high school, senior Andi VanMeter has continuously pushed for success on the cross country and track teams. Her sophomore year, she broke the school record in girls Cross Country and has continued to break that record every year since, with her best time being 18 minutes and 4 seconds for 3.1 mile. Unfortunately, earlier in this season VanMeter endured a stress reaction in her femur, which caused her to miss most of the year's earlier meets. Despite this setback, VanMeter not only placed 1st at the IHSAA sectional and regional meets, but also ran alongside her team at Semi-State and State. VanMeter completed her last cross country season here at Jasper, but she expresses, "I am very ready to have a comeback season in track." Next fall, VanMeter plans to continue her athletic career in both cross country and track at the University of Louisville. Although her high school career is soon to come to an end, her future endeavors are bound for success.

MARCHING

The Marching Band goes to the state competition yet again to the beat

It is finally time for awards at the ISSMA state finals, and all of the marching Wildcats file onto the field in unison, eager to hear what place they had gotten. The band members link hands with each other, showing a unified front as the announcers begin, starting with 10th place. Everyone on the field, as well as in the crowd, holds their breath as they wait. The Cats ended up placing 5th out of 10 bands in Class B, an impressive feat.

This was a comeback year for the Cats, as their last season had gotten completely cancelled due to COVID, and they were unable to compete in any marching competitions. They made the most out of every competition this year, and were thrilled to make it to state. Lucas Oil Stadium, where state is held, was packed with supporters for the Marching Wildcats, all of whom erupted in cheers when the band was named for placing 5th. The seniors were overjoyed at being able to perform one last time in front of a large crowd. "As a senior, it was an extremely emotional and bittersweet moment," expressed senior color guard member Tapanga Buechlein. "Knowing that would be the last time I was going to be on that field, but I was so proud of the people I was standing with and grateful to have the family band had given me." The Marching Wildcats were definitely a family, as they grew close with one another over the course of the season, making it through long bus rides, practices, and competitions together. State was the last stop of the season, and the band performed to the best of their ability, making sure to hold every note and hit every step.

FINAL SALUTE. Senior drum major Delaney Smith takes her final salute at the state band competition as she begins to conduct the Jasper Band in their last performance of the year.

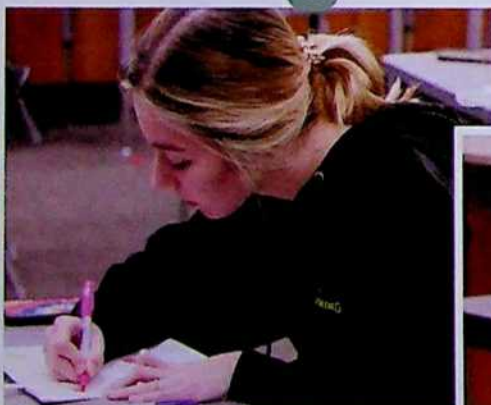

SENIOR SPOTLIGHT. Senior Jackson Clark plays his euphonium loudly during his solo at the state band competition. This was Clark's final year in marching band after 5 years marching with the Jasper band.

Giving back

NHS gathers gifts for children in need

GIFT BAGS. Seniors Alyssa Schwenk and Kylie Wolf decorate gift bags for children in need. Both stayed after school to help make, put together, and finish the gift bags needed by children and adults who can't afford some basic necessities. The National Honors Society collected clothing items for children in need and decorated festive bags to put the clothing in.

FLOWING FLAGS. Senior Vanessa Cortez extends her flag during a performance of the Jasper Marching Band's show "This Bitter Earth".

NEW FORMATIONS. Sophomore Kaylee Schmitt performs while rolling off the ground to make a new formation at the state band competition. This is Kaylee's second year in color guard, and her favorite memory at state was seeing all the other bands perform.

TRIUMPHANT TRUMPET. Casey Haggh, junior, triumphantly plays his trumpet while performing the band's state-worthy show. Haggh has been in marching band for the past three years and enjoyed the change of pace this year's show was.

FRESH TALENT. Freshman Ava Bower lightly rolled on her symbol during a dramatic moment in this year's show. This was Bower's first year in the marching band and first year in the front ensemble. She took front stage with one of the main marimbas this year.

NEW LINE. Sophomore Cole Gunderson pounds his tenor drums while front and center on the football field. This year was different for the drum line because the majority of the line was new. This was Gunderson's first year on the line and he enjoyed the new scenery compared to the front ensemble.

Taking the Stage!

The Performing Arts Club brings some humor to the auditorium

Something Rotten!. Jasper High School's fall theater production, took months of practice for a great show. The musical is a comedy that showcases the life of an English playwright, Nick Bottom (played by senior Reggie Matute), who struggles to compete against Shakespeare (played by senior Alexis Kleiman) during the Renaissance period. Bottom enlists the help of his brother, Nigel (played by junior Leo Rasche), and the soothsaying Nostradamus (played by junior Grace Bartley) to write the greatest play of the century: Omelet. A carbon-copy of Shakespeare's famous Hamlet, Omelet is then produced by the Bottom brothers' acting company before Nick is caught stealing Shakespeare's other ideas. The Bottom brothers are then banished to the "New World", where they would continue to produce plays.

The actors of Something Rotten! invested a lot of time into this performance, putting in long hours for months at a time to make sure it went off without a hitch, and was as successful as could be. Although the show was a hit, some of the best moments happened off the stage. The cast members all bonded while practicing for the musical, and they spent so much time together that they all became very close. Also, they made an effort to connect with their characters, which made it easier for the actors to fully capture the emotions and mannerisms needed to correctly portray their character. All of the hard work paid off in the end, and led to an amazing first semester show.

FINAL POSE. Senior Reggie Matute takes a final pose at the end of the scene. Matute did an excellent job playing his character and entertained the crowd with every scene.

DEEP STARES. Junior Leo Rasche and senior Gabby Goodwin get close during the musical as their characters seem to fall for each other. The two lean in and stare into each other's eyes while on stage.

Honoring Our Veterans

Students take the day to honor our veterans

VETERANS

HONORING VETS. Senior Hailey Ekong glances down at their paper as they give a heart felt speech to honor our veterans. On Veterans Day, staff and students gathered in the gym for a program honoring those who have served and the students at JHS going into the military. The band and choir played music and sang. The program included Senator Mike Braun, Jasper alumni Grant Theil, who is currently serving, and current JHS students.

FUTURE MILITARY. A multitude of JHS students who are committed to the military sit up front to be honored on Veteran's day. JHS has numerous students whose future plans include entering into one of the branches of the military.

"I'm really into punk music, like Slipknot and Korn."

OUTSTANDING SCORE. JHS started bowling off right on November 13th when competing against Heritage Hills. Junior Karleigh LeMond bowled an outstanding score of 225. One way the team as a whole feels that they could improve is to work hard and continue to work on picking up spares. They took home their first win of the year. The team overall had a very good night when it came to picking up spares. They are working and hoping to advance to state this year.

STRIKE! Senior Carter Hopf watches as he releases his bowling ball down the lane and watches as all ten pins knock over. Hopf has been on the JHS team for his whole high school career and has continued to increase his score.

SOLO PERFORMANCE. Senior Alexis Kleiman sings a solo during the musical as she takes center stage. Kleiman played the role of Shakespeare in the JHS production of Something Rotten.

QUICK MEDITATION. Junior Grace Bartley does a quick meditation on stage while staying in character. Bartley plays her male character really well and even during the awkward and funny scenes, not once did she break character.

CENTER STAGE. The whole cast takes the stage for one of many scenes and puts on a beautiful performance. The crowd raved after this and cheered on the students once the scene was over.

BACK STAGE. Senior Ainsley Pierce watches a dress rehearsal from the auditorium balcony to ensure that each actor's microphone is running smoothly. "Every show is different," Pierce explained about her role in the shows. "I can have everything on the board set up exactly the same and still have something go wrong, whether it be a dead battery or a jostled cord backstage."

The Wildcats take the win over the Bulldogs

The Lady Wildcat basketball team secured an SIAC conference win early in the season, conquering the Bosse Bulldogs. This game showed off the Cats' abilities and talents, proving that they had the potential to keep up with the tough competition and be victorious this season. With a final score of 47-35, this match-up was not an easy win, but the girls managed to come out on top, with multiple key players contributing largely to the win. These include sophomore Emma Schipp, who scored 13 points, and senior Jasmin Mehringer, who was right behind her with 12. The team took on a more aggressive mindset for this game, which definitely helped contribute to the win. "I think the team and I did excellent at executing the things we were taught to do," declared Mehringer, "we also began to be more aggressive and look to attack the basket and that really helped us. Overall we had an awesome game against Bosse!" Attacking the basket when presented with an opportunity was something the Cats had worked on in practice before the game, hoping draw some falls under the basket. This win was big one for the Cats, putting a SIAC win under their belts and boosting their morale and confidence for the upcoming games. The team celebrated in the locker room and congratulated each other on the big win.

GETTING AROUND. Jasmin Mehringer, junior, quickly dribbles the ball closer to the net as she tries her best to swiftly get around her opponent. Mehringer successfully got around her opponent and made a quick pass to a teammate to score.

What's Sizzling?

MORE THAN FOOD. Senior Jayden Divine and junior Amia Kempf smile at each other while they both hold up their cake pops in progress. Divine explained that they were "Making food but also making friendships." The girls grew closer together during their time making a numerous amount of different yummy meals.

PREPARATIONS. Seniors Ashton Schuetter, Luke Dawkins, Isaac Day, and Ty Weisman hold up their potatoes as they peel the skin off them for the Thanksgiving feast Mrs. Beier's cooking class made. The whole class worked together in groups to make the delicious food. Mrs. Beier made the turkey for her students, and the students baked foods such as cake pops, mashed potatoes, and pumpkin pie.

"I'm actually really smart with numbers."

SWEET TREATS. Seniors Caroline Kaiser and Mya Stiles hands out baked goods to the students of JHS. Some of the baked goods included apple pie, vanilla cake, chocolate cake, and pumpkin pie which were provided by the JHS Student Council members.

BALANCING ACT. Freshman Lilly Roberts and sophomore Brandon Mehringer attempt to carry multiple cups full of lemonade and fruit punch to serve the students of JHS. The student council had a Thanksgiving feast on Tuesday. They had served some baked goods such as apple pie and chocolate cake. The student council also passed out nice refreshing drinks! Some of the student council members helped the cooks serve and clean trays to show their appreciation. As the school ate, the famous Charlie Brown played for all to watch!

READY TO PLAY.

Senior Kennedy Matheis stands at attention while on the court, ready to jump back in after a break in the game.

PERFECT FORM. Sophomore Emma Schipp gets fouled by a player on the opposing team. Schipp is given the opportunity to make two free throws and, with perfect form, scores two points for her team.

SUBBING IN. Senior Izzy Hopf subs in for one of her fellow teammates to finish out the quarter. Hopf plays on the varsity team and started during many games this season.

QUICK PASS.

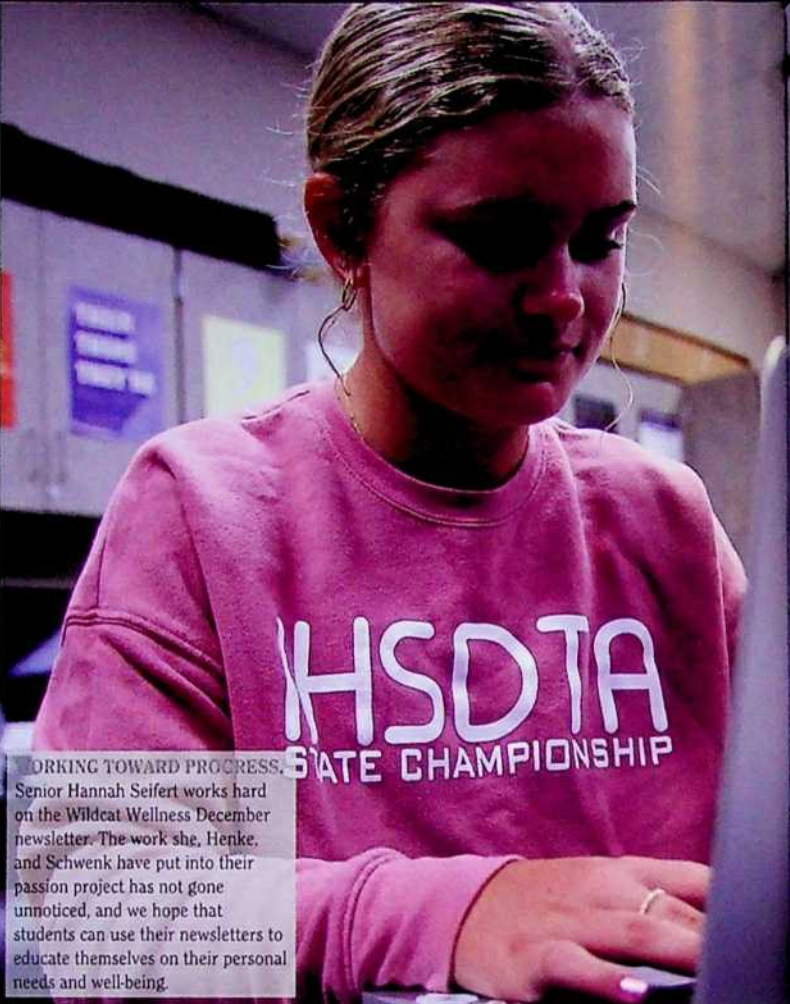

Katelyn Vaal, a sophomore on the varsity team, dribbles the ball down the court, looking out to see who she can pass the ball to.

END the stigma

This year, a new class, Principles of Human Services, teaches students about financial independence, mental health, how the brain develops, and how to help others. A major part of the curriculum was the passion project, which encouraged students to engage the people around them in a beneficial way. Seniors Hannah Seifert, Jalyn Henke, and Alyssa Schwenk used this project as an opportunity to bring light to mental health issues and emotional well-being. Each month, the girls sent a newsletter, titled "Wildcat Wellness", to all JHS students with inspirational quotes, self-care tips, and other important resources. "The main purpose of the newsletter is to let the students at JHS know that there are people who they can talk to about their mental health and people who understand what they're going through," Henke shared. All three knew they wanted to lessen the stigma surrounding mental health, so they decided to work together for a more collaborative project. Although mental health has become a more prominent topic in recent years, there is still a taboo nature in regards to mental well-being and emotional health. Seifert shared, "Without promoting the importance of mental health, our generation—who is faced with more diverse conflicts than previous generations—won't develop the resilience to handle adversity later in life." By spreading awareness about how common mental health issues are, they hope to increase conversation about mental wellness. All three of the girls said they promote self-care to their friends while also making sure to incorporate self-care-related activities into their own lives. Hopefully, JHS and its students will continue to bring awareness to the stigmatized topic and provide students with a safe space to be honest with themselves and others about their well-being.

WORKING TOWARD PROGRESS. Senior Hannah Seifert works hard on the Wildcat Wellness December newsletter. The work she, Henke, and Schwenk have put into their passion project has not gone unnoticed, and we hope that students can use their newsletters to educate themselves on their personal needs and well-being.

Best in show | JHS celebrates 5 years of comfort dogs

The Jasper High School campus began shining a lot brighter in 2017 when then-vice principal Mr. Buechlein introduced comfort dogs at school. Since then, teachers have been bringing their dogs to school for the enjoyment of the students and staff. Because the Thanksgiving dog show is one of the more popular holiday traditions, we asked students to brainstorm awards for the dogs as if we hosted our own dog show right here at Jasper High School.

[win(t)er] noun

the coldest season of the year

"I can't wait for snow this winter."

Though the winter months are characteristic of their dreary and cold atmosphere, there is no room for gloom in the halls of JHS. When asked by a staff member, a majority of students stated that winter was not their favorite season. However, many agreed that the excitement of the holidays and the beginning of new athletic seasons makes up for the cold, gloomy time of year. The season allows students to enjoy more indoor extracurriculars, like basketball, dances, and the arts, along with a 14-day winter break.

Last school year, the average student at JHS only experienced 131 normal, in-person school days due to COVID-19, snow, and a water main break. Some students had even fewer normal days if they were close-contacted more than once. This school year, students are relishing in a nearly zoom-free winter and looking forward to what the new year might bring.

The boys swim team keeps moving in a positive direction

The Jasper Swimming & Diving team hosted the annual triangular meet with Vincennes and South Knox on December 2nd, and both the girls and boys teams came out victorious. The meet was their second of the week and of the season, but their first home meet of the year. The boys won 10 of the 12 events of the evening.

Senior Noah Wagner was the anchor in the 200 freestyle relay, one of the 10 wins the boys claimed for the Wildcats. "Before the race, I was excited and eager to compete with the other relay teams," Wagner said, "After the race, [seeing that we won] made me proud of myself and my teammates." Wagner also took first place in the 200 Individual Medley and the 500 freestyle, and swam alongside the winning 400m freestyle relay team. The boys won all three relay events that evening and finished the night with 162 points, surpassing South Knox's 49 and Vincennes's 44 points to claim a landslide victory at home. Senior Luke Dawkins was the other top earner for the boys, swimming the 200m and 400m freestyle relays with Wagner and taking the 50m freestyle and the 100 breaststroke in his individual events.

The girls won all 12 of their events and earned a total of 180 points to win over South Knox and Vincennes. Both teams look forward to a successful season!

BREATH OF FRESH AIR.

Senior Connor Nolan takes a breath as he flies through the water while swimming the butterfly leg in the 200 medley relay. Nolan has been swimming since he was a kid and was sad to leave his senior year.

GLIDING THROUGH. Junior Mason Thornburgh swims the backstroke at the latest meet in Jasper. Thornburgh cut through the water easily and finished first in a race to be proud of.

LAST MATCH. Senior Carson Mehringer prepares to pin his opponent in the last match of the night during the wrestling meet. Carson has been involved in wrestling all of high school and has been successful in this year's season. All the seniors have pushed themselves this season to achieve their personal goals.

Those not in a match cheered on Mehringer as he maneuvered his way around his opponent, pinning him to the ground.

EARLY LEADS. Junior Xavier Lopez is tackled to the ground, but pushes back to try and pin his opponent. Lopez explains, "I was nervous before wrestling Floyd—nervous but excited—despite taking an early lead in the match." Lopez gained some confidence in the beginning of the meet.

"I almost went blind because I stepped on a tide pod and the stuff shot up into my eye."

DISCUSSING DECISIONS. Seniors Andrea Ayala and Herson Cortez Martinez discuss all the countless possibilities offered at USI. Both went along on the field trip and learned of a wide variety of opportunities available to them.

QUICK FIELD TRIP. On December 2nd, the Young Latinos club went to the University of Southern Indiana for a tour and to get some experience about college life. Reggie Matute, senior, stares intently as the instructors explain the many opportunities out there. The students learned to the process of getting into college and the best way to do it.

CHEERING THEM ON. Junior Nathan Ramirez cheers on his fellow teammates as they swim as fast as they can in their lanes. Ramirez is standing near the edge of the pool screaming encouragement to the swimmers as they get ready to finish their race.

CPR NEEDED. Senior Connor Nolan plays dead while senior Jackson Henke pretends to perform CPR on him during a swim meet. The seniors both have a great sense of humor and love getting the team pumped up. This stunt, like others, always gets the athletes going and is fun for the crowd to watch as well. Not only do the boys do pretend CPR, but there are a number of other humorous acts they put on to get everyone laughing.

The Snowball dance is a smashing success!

CAN'T STOP DANCIN'. Despite Jasper High School not having a Snowball Dance since December of 2019, this year's Snowball Dance was a huge success! "There were way more people that came to the dance [this year]. We loved the support and seeing everyone enjoy the night," commented senior Megan Rydberg, who was head of the planning committee. The dance was organized by student council, who spent weeks preparing for the big night. Student Council leaders have high hopes for next year's Snowball Dance as well.

UNION

JHS's "We the People" class heads to state

We the People is a fall semester class with the primary goal of promoting civic competence and responsibility among students. This class is only available to seniors, and the curriculum focuses on enhancing their understanding of American constitutional democracy, as well as the relevance of both the Constitution and the Bill of Rights. This helps students better understand how and why our country is run the way it is, as well as helping them better understand all of the different viewpoints that are involved in politics.

On Wednesday, December 8, the class went to Indianapolis to compete in the statewide We The People Competition, where the team from Jasper placed 8th. During this competition, teams were asked to present two or three prepared responses from different topics within their unit, followed by 8 minutes of questions and discussion with the judges. In order to help the students feel more comfortable and confident at the state competition, there was a mock competition held the Monday prior at Jasper High School so the students could practice. "The practice competition we had most definitely helped us prepare for the real thing. I felt like they were almost identical procedure wise and nerve wise," stated senior Marianna Green. Overall, the class felt that they all had performed very well at the competition. They spent all semester preparing, and when the big day finally came, they were all satisfied with how they had done. "[The competition] was by far the best prepared we had ever been and every unit did amazing at presenting and responding to questions," voiced senior Livia Land. We The People is a unique class at Jasper High School, and is a good opportunity for students to learn about the government and how it functions, while also creating a competitive atmosphere.

NAP TIME. Competitors in BPA spend months working hard on their presentations and preparing for competitions. They don't get a lot of time to relax and they almost constantly have to be thinking about their presentations. "I would say we actually get a good amount of time to relax [at the competitions]," senior Quinn Gunderson remarked. "It's stressful before your competitions, but you have the rest of the day to prepare and de-stress." After months and months of working and stressing about competitions and presentations, it's safe to say that competitors earned some time to chill out.

DECOMPRESSING. Sophomore Kaylee Stinnett and juniors Brailyn Whaley and Jasmin Mehringer take time to chill out after competing as they wait for the judges to rank their individual competitions.

SELF EXPRESSION. Senior Claudia Buschkoetter expresses her thoughts and feelings through literature during the first Poetry Out Loud reading.

PURE EXCITEMENT. Mr. Polen pours his heart out through words as he proclaims his excitement for his new club, Poetry Out Loud. As an English teacher, Mr. Polen is a busy man, to say the least. He not only teaches speech and AP literature classes, but he also serves as the advisor for three different clubs at JHS. Polen also runs the Speech and Debate Club and the Archery team. Recently, he helped bring a new addition to JHS, Poetry Out Loud. "It's our first [event]," declared Mr. Polen. "So seeing some of the parents show up and having that emotion with poetry recitation, was powerful for the speakers, and for their family." This year, three talented students were involved in Poetry Out Loud and had the opportunity to express themselves through verse at local and state competitions. Even though this club is just beginning, Polen hopes it will only grow in years to come.

PIN IN SIGHT. Senior Carson Mehringer pins his opponent to the ground. Mehringer stood strong during the meet and secured another win to help his team achieve another victory.

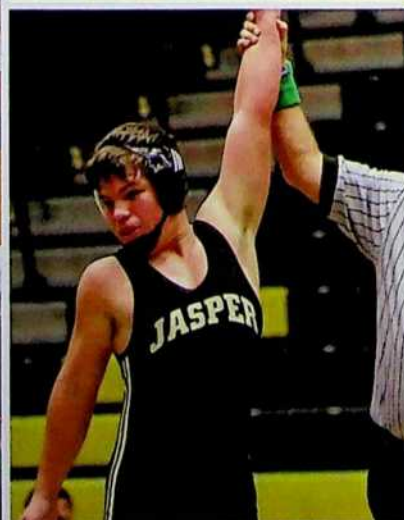

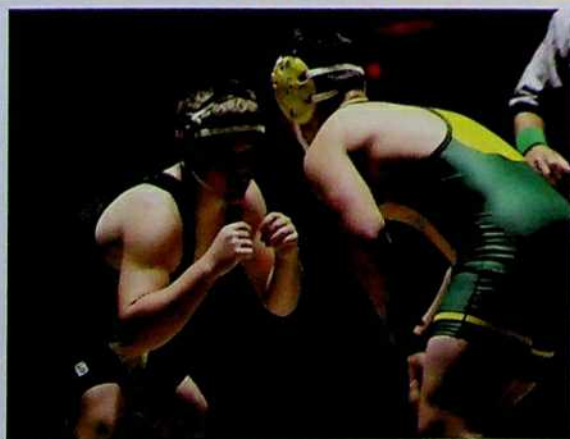

GIANT ENCOURAGEMENTS.

Senior Grace Weidenbenner and sophomores Victoria Rodriguez and Mackenzie Eckstein hold up giant head cut outs of the wrestlers with their fellow mat girls. Ten of the wrestlers saw their giant heads and felt the encouragement from their fellow classmates.

STANDING STRONG.

Hunter Kippenbrock, a junior, stands strong as he prepares to wrestle against his opponent from Floyd Central. Kippenbrock readies his stance, eager to get a quick pin under his belt during the match.

fighting for victory

The wrestling team takes
home a win

This wrestling season started off differently than previous ones, with a new coach in charge of the team. After the previous season, the Brescher brothers took a step back from coaching. Alex Lee then swooped in and took over as head coach, ready to give his all to this team in order to lead them to a victorious season. New coaches can take time to adjust to, as everyone has different coaching and learning styles, but the wrestlers did not let this change in leadership affect their matches. The boys took it all in stride, adapting however was needed along the way.

This season was very successful, with many highlights along the way. One specific meet stood out to the wrestlers as a tough opponent to conquer: the meet against Floyd Central, which made a lot of the team very nervous. Floyd Central has been an opponent of Jasper for many years, and they are historically tough to beat. This left the team feeling a little nervous before the meet. However, the wrestlers did not let the nerves go to their heads, and they focused on keeping a positive, goal oriented mindset. This meet helped them work on their strengths and weaknesses as individual wrestlers. Finishing the season by placing in both sectionals and regionals, as well as coming 5th overall in the SIAC conference, the Cats went out with a bang. The team finished their season with fourteen overall wins and made it all the way to semi-state in post season. By using this season to help make adjustments for next year, they hope to be even more ready for even the strongest competitors to come.

VICTORY IN SIGHT. Senior Ian Giesler stands tall as he gets himself ready to start another match and claim yet another victory. Giesler is on the varsity team and has helped the team achieve victories for many years.

THE CLASSICS. Kids from the crowd join the choir up on the stage to perform a few classic carols. The tradition continues as the choir members conduct the kids through each new song.

HAPPY FACES. Seniors Gabrielle Goodwin and Reggie Matute perform every song with excitement during the JHS choir's annual Christmas concert. Both Reggie and Gabby have participated in choir since their freshman year and have poured their heart and soul into each song since. During the concert, the choir performed a wide variety of classic and modern Christmas carols, which the singers proudly danced along to. As they do every year, the choir invited any kids in the audience to join them on stage for a couple fan-favorite songs.

THE CITY OF dreams

Dreams really did come true for some of Jasper's aspiring Broadway stars

After years of cancellation and uncertainty due to COVID-19, a group of Jasper High School students finally made their way to The Big Apple - New York City. Mrs. Luebbehusen and Mrs. Schuetter have been taking kids on trips to NYC and Orlando, Florida for many years. This year, the group had many amazing opportunities in the city, such as ice skating at Rockefeller Plaza and watching The Play That Goes Wrong, which is the upcoming spring musical at JHS, as well as The Music Man starring Hugh Jackman. Many of those who went on the trip, including the chaperones, said that seeing The Music Man was by far their favorite experience. "It was the first night we got there, and I just remember feeling so excited I could hardly eat...I could hardly believe I was there." Senior Reggie Matute explained that he had dreamed of visiting the city since he started performing in theater in 6th grade. Many of the group members had never been to NYC before, and spent every day of the trip basking in the bright lights of Manhattan. Despite having been on many Orlando trips, this was also Mrs. Schuetter's first time in New York City. "I was already excited, and seeing [the kids'] excitement just amped my own excitement," Mrs. Schuetter exclaimed. She stated that she loves giving the students these once-in-a-lifetime experiences, and is happy that she gets to experience it alongside them. This trip is something that these students will treasure forever.

SELFIE Senior Reggie Matute takes a selfie with chaperones and fellow students while waiting for the subway train to arrive at the station. This was Matute's first time in NYC, and he said he hopes to be back-and potentially live there-in the future.

A DAY IN THE LIFE. In a practice studio, the group got the opportunity for a Q&A with Hugh Jackman's understudy from The Music Man, Sean Montgomery. The group learned the struggles of Broadway shows during COVID-19, and the amount of teamwork everyone has put in to help keep performances running.

Earth club gets active this school year

ALL IN. Junior David Werner reaches for a piece of trash at the creek by the athletic lot. Earth Club is a fairly new club at JHS, but the students involved are very dedicated to helping the environment. "I enjoy spending my time outdoors and trying to help the environment, and Earth Club is the perfect place for that," Werner explained that the club hopes to do more cleanups around the school as well as clean-up hikes around Indiana.

MAKING A DIFFERENCE. Junior Earth Club President Abby Kidwell holds a trash bag for her peer. Kidwell is very active in the community and helping the environment.

A FEW FIXES. Using safety precautions, Senior Tysen Mehringer works to create a smoother ride in his car. Motor Sports is a club at JHS where students can get the chance to work with formula cars and gain hands-on experience in engineering and design. Mr. Dahmer has been in charge of Motor Sports since he got to JHS and has enjoyed it from the beginning. "My favorite part is working with students that are interested in building, designing, and working on something that they take pride in." Dahmer says they have a smaller group this year, but everyone is more focused than ever.

CHEESE! Jessed Gamez Daugherty, a senior, poses with a holiday bear at a storefront. This was Gamez's first time in New York City, and he gushed about the experiences. "My favorite part of the trip was seeing all the street vendors and everyone trying to make a living off of singing/dancing/art off the street," Gamez was grateful to experience the Big Apple alongside some of his closest friends.

LIMITED TIME ONLY. At the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the group got to see a limited-time exhibit called Inspiring Disney. The exhibition is only on display from early December to early March, so the students got to have yet another once-in-a-lifetime experience during the trip. The displays included old drawings and unfinished ideas of classic Disney movies and items featured in the movies themselves. Junior Grace Bartley stated it was her favorite exhibit in the entire museum, "The original book that's featured in the beginning of Sleeping Beauty was in there and, personally, I about cried." Although they only had a few hours in the Met, the students made the most of their time, making sure to see as many exhibits as they could.

ICONIC ISLAND. Posing for a picture, the group stands on a ferry at Liberty Island. Due to COVID-19, the group was not able to get off the boat to see the Statue of Liberty up close, but they still got a good view as they rode the ferry around the island.

Gen Z has started raiding their parents' closets in recent years, looking for classic vintage looks, such as flannels, bomber jackets, and baggy jeans. Clothing brands have started re-releasing best-selling items from the 70s and 80s, such as Converse's Chuck 70 sneaker. "I really like that it's available everywhere. You can find it in thrift stores or big name brands," junior Julian Bonner loves thrifting with friends and finding old items to repurpose.

It's also really cool to see how people interpret those trends," junior Skyler Weisman shared their favorite Y2K trends.

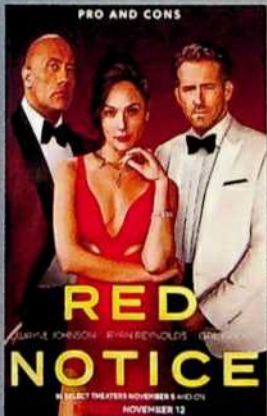

sustainable SHIFT

The latest trends to sweep JHS

In the last few years, there has been a major change in how young adults get their clothing. The emergence of "fast fashion" has led many to contemplate how ethical their shopping habits are. "Fast fashion" is inexpensive - often lower quality - clothing that is produced rapidly to meet the needs of ever-changing trends in fashion. This has caused many people to buy new clothing at a rapid pace, only to wear the new items a few times before sending it straight to the trash. Not only do 85% of all textiles go to a dump each year, but the fashion industry produces 10% of the world's carbon emissions. Raised environmental consciousness in recent years has influenced many to ditch their old ways and strive for a more sustainable way of dressing. Shopping at thrift stores and donating old clothes has been the latest step toward lowering humanity's impact on the environment. Senior Carter Hopf, along with 72% of JHS students surveyed, said he enjoys thrifting, and buys a majority of his clothes at thrift stores.

The JHS sculpture class had a change in scenery for a day to take a visit the art gallery in the new Thyen-Clark Cultural Center. Since its opening, the Thyen-Clark Cultural Center's art gallery has been home to a myriad of artistry, including work by famous musicians John Mellencamp and Wyatt Legrand, as well as the work of many local students. During their visit this week, the art students observed a variety of professional paintings, sculptures, and prints, and the kids were also able to look at a wide variety of other pieces of art. This field trip was designed to help the students see pieces of art by various artists to help them not only learn about the different techniques used, but also to give them inspiration for their upcoming project. The students raved about this unique experience and the knowledge they gained from observing these professional pieces.

swimming too STATE

the girls swim team captures a senior night
win

The chance to make it to state is something that all athletes hope for a piece of, but it does not come without a lot of sacrifice, and perseverance. Practicing hard for weeks in preparation to do nothing less of greatness is a must. The girls swim team knows this, and they work every single day to make their goals a reality. One senior, Avery Henke, shared some advice that she would give to her fellow teammates and future swimmers, "Don't be too hard on yourself because the sport really does run your body down. You can't do your best all the time, but it's important to always try."

The girls like to support and cheer each other on during the meet by waiting at the finish or cheering from the side of the pool throughout the ongoing races. The girls went on to win 8 out of the 10 events on Senior Night, which was a great way to showcase the seniors on their important night. The girls ended their night scoring a total of 150, placing first, and were incredibly excited about their accomplishment.

A lot of hard work goes into becoming a swimmer; learning all of the proper techniques and rules, and on top of that competing to win. One of the senior swimmers, Megan Matheis, shared her thoughts on becoming an exceptional swimmer, "Progress takes time, so don't get upset when it doesn't happen immediately." The girls are going to continue persevering as individuals, as well as a whole, in order to work towards state.

GO! GO! GO! Senior Avery Henke shouts for her teammates to swim faster during a meet while some of the Jasper girl swimmers race in the relays. Henke participated in multiple events and made it all the way to state representing her team and Jasper.

ONE LAST TIME. Senior Noah Wagner backstrokes his way through his race at the senior night swim meet. He is one of the 14 seniors being recognized for their time on the team. Wagner was also on the state swim team this year and pushed to make it to the top in post season.

Senior diver Avery Knies stands with her parents, posing for a quick picture as the seniors on both the boys and girls swimming and diving are honored for their time on the team. It was an emotional night for everyone during the senior night for the swim team. The fourteen seniors celebrated their last year on the team in a bittersweet tradition. The team placed first over two opposing schools. The night ended in many joyful tears between teammates, coaches and parents

JUST KEEP SWIMMING. Megan Matheis, a senior, pushes herself through the water while swimming breaststroke during her race. Matheis said her senior year was the best one yet and she swam herself all the way to state.

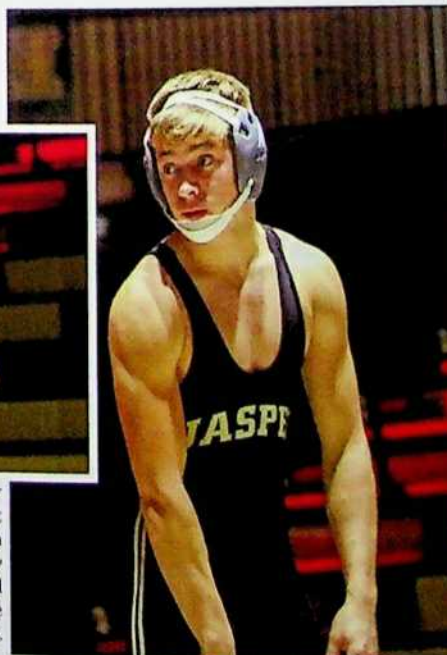

ONE MORE LAP. Junior Page O'Neil closes in on the wall as she gets closer to the end of her heat. Many of Jasper's swimmers expressed critical the last 25 meters of an event can be, especially in the event of a close race.

TEAM SUPPORT. Senior Andi VanMeter cheers and hollers during the relays to help motivate and encourage her fellow teammates. Although VanMeter is constantly working on improving in each of her three sports, she always is on the sideline cheering on the rest of the team to help them achieve their goals as well.

OVERCOMING NERVES. Jeb Prechtel, a junior gets nervous about his upcoming match, but prepares to overcome them as his match approaches. Prechtel explains, "I felt really nervous before the match because I knew the kid was really good." Prechtel pushed through the match and his nerves to finish the match strong.

to victory

The girls bowling team breezes through semi-state

Last year, the girls bowling team decided to start a new team tradition: a goals and dreams board. On this board, they decided that they would write down all of their ambitions for the season, so that they can see what they are working towards during the year. This year, at the beginning of the season, the girls wrote "make it to state" in big, bold letters at the top of the board. Making it to state was their number one goal, and something that they knew they could accomplish.

After breezing through sectionals and regionals - placing 1st in both - the team competed at semi-state on March 22. Eight teams battled for a spot in the state finals, but only four of these teams would be able to advance. It was a very exciting day for the girls, and while the Cats were very nervous, they were also confident in themselves and their abilities, and determined to advance. In the back of their minds, they kept envisioning the goals board, and what they had been working so hard for all season. The team ended up making it in the top four after the first 10 games, and, after competing in the step ladder game, came out in 3rd place overall. This meant that they had earned their spot in the state finals, fulfilling their goal for the season. "We had the mindset that we were going to advance, and that's exactly what we did," explained junior Karleigh LeMond. This mindset helped carry the Cats through semi-state, and they were going to use it going into state as well. "We are going to go into state with our heads held high and will just do the best that we can," voiced sophomore Sarah Oeding. The team is going to focus on the fundamentals during practice leading up to state, specifically spare shooting, so that when the day comes, they can be confident in their abilities to pick up the pins. Confidence is key in bowling, because you must trust that your ball is going to do what you need it to do. No matter what they place at state, the girls are proud of the fact that they made their goals and dreams board turn into a reality.

SEEKING SPARES. Hoping to advance to state as an individual, junior Karleigh LeMond focuses on her spare game at semi-state. LeMond made the cut with her first 3 games, and then placed 3rd in the stepladder.

LOOKING DOWN THE LANE. Junior Hallie Skorge releases the ball down the lane. Skorge was warming up on the practice lane while getting ready for the competition.

Child development class celebrates the 100th day of school

Mrs. Cobo's Child Development classes had a fun day of crafts, activities, and food in order to celebrate the 100th day of school. Each group picked activities that they wanted to do that would simulate real life scenarios. Rachel Hollinden and her group made necklaces out of 100 fruit loops, decorated t-shirts, and brought in cookies.

Sophomore Sarah Oeding focuses on the indicator dots in front of her as she begins her steps up to the lane.

STEADY SWING.

Senior Nelleigh Harker swings the ball back as she reaches the lane. This year, Harker placed second in sectionals, allowing her to advance to regionals as a single.

ADVANCING ALONE. Senior Jackson Clark places 7th in boys singles at semi state, advancing to state. While the boys bowling team did not make it to state, Clark will be representing the Wildcat bowlers. He bowled a 612 series, averaging 204 pins a game. "I executed my shots very well all day and the pins just fell my way," stated Clark. Bowling is a very detail-oriented sport, and he will be practicing vigorously in order to prepare to go against the best bowlers in the state.

Junior Brooke Metcalf makes rainclouds for the winning hallway, Spring. "Ours was the absolute best," Metcalf humbly declared after their hallway won the decorating contest.

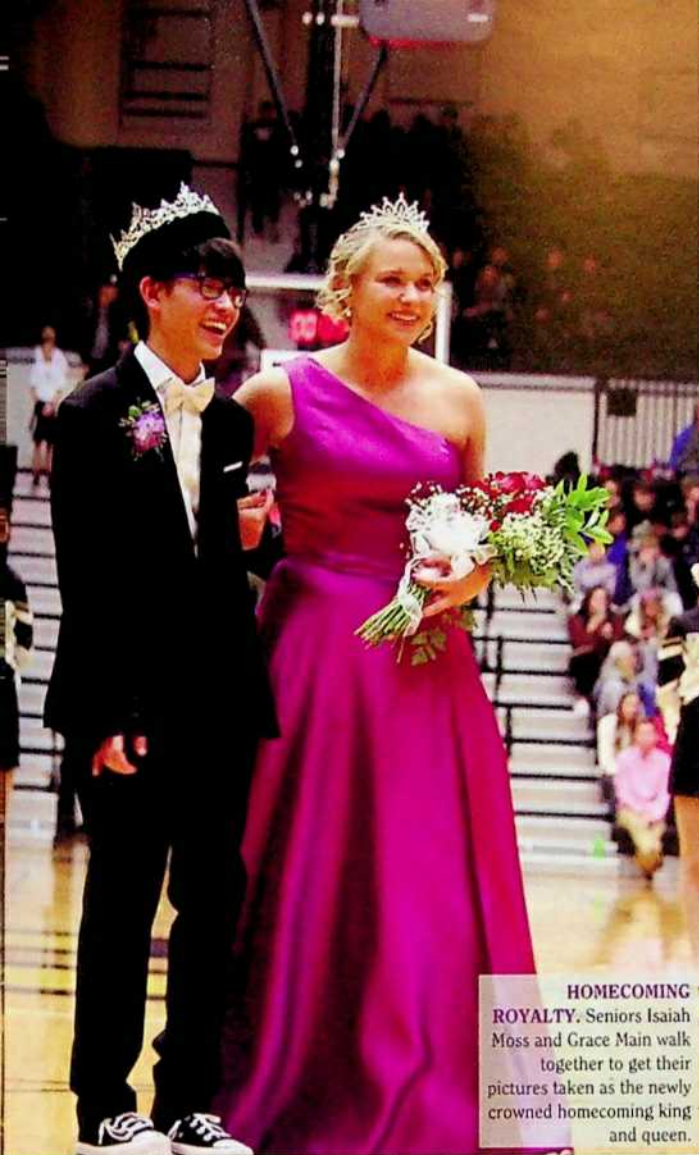

On Sunday, January 23rd, Student Council members gathered at school in the afternoon to work on decorating their hallways for basketball homecoming week. The theme for this year's hallway decorating contest was the seasons. Seniors decorated the winter hallway, juniors decorated the spring hallway, sophomores decorated the summer hallway, and freshmen decorated the autumn hallway. "My favorite part about doing the hallway decorating is getting to collaborate all of our class officer and homeroom representatives' ideas into one," said sophomore Hope Fromme. It was a close race, but the juniors' spring hallway came out on top, with freshmen and sophomores tied for second place, and seniors in last. Hallway decorating is always a fun activity that students enjoy and it is one of the best homecoming traditions at Jasper High School.

JHS finds its new homecoming king and queen

Seniors Isaiah Moss and Grace Main were full of shock and excitement on the night of basketball homecoming when they were crowned king and queen. "I was surprised and in shock when I was awarded the crown. I also felt very happy because I knew that several of my peers chose me to represent the school in a good way. The homecoming process was definitely nerve-wracking, considering that I ordered my suit two days before the ceremony. Everything was super last minute, but I still got the crown!" exclaimed Moss. His gratefulness and excitement for this opportunity was clear, even though neither Moss nor Main fully expected to win homecoming royalty. Still, it was a nice surprise when they heard their names announced and they both greatly enjoyed the whole experience. "It was kind of just a big surprise to be a part of this tradition and then just to be nominated by all of your peers," remarked Main. It's always a great honor to win homecoming, knowing that you were chosen to represent the school for the evening, and Moss and Main were very excited just to be a part of the whole process, let alone win. They had some tough competition, but they were able to come out on top, making for a night that the two are sure to remember for the rest of their lives.

DIVING deeper

This year's Jasper Wildcats girls diving team is home to entirely new faces. Every member of this year's team decide to take a leap of faith and join diving for the first time. The girls have been exceeding expectations at meets, despite how inexperienced the divers are. Some of the divers weren't even expecting to join the team, such as senior Hannah Seifert. "This year before the season started, they asked if I would have any interest in diving this year because they needed more girls. I just decided, why not," expressed Seifert. She took a big risk starting something new her senior year, and luckily it paid off.

This year's team have formed strong bonds with each other and have created some core memories. When asked about her favorite memory from the season, senior Avery Knies stated, "My favorite memories from this season are all from being with my teammates before and after meets. The best one was when we went back to my house after one meet to watch High School Musical 3." Knies was often the highest-scoring diver on the girl's team, and her teammates showed their support for her from the moment she stepped onto the board to the second she hit the water, and then even more once she had exited the pool. Many of the team members have enjoyed the diving season so far and have expressed how glad they are about joining the team for the first time.

Senior Michael Buechler tastes and scores various soups and chilies alongside Mr. Harris. Every year Mrs. Beier hosts multiple head-to-head competitions in her cooking classes, the latest being a competition for the title of "best soup". The kitchens prepared all different types of soups for the judges, including chilies and chowders. Each soup was judged not only on taste, but on presentation as well. Each group spent days planning their recipes and preparing their soups. The students found that anything can happen when you put four teenagers in a kitchen, including the occasional burnt soup.

While the boys were continuously fighting to keep the game even, junior Carter Mundy makes a pass to his teammates to score.

home court advantage

The boys' basketball team plays on their home court

The stands were packed with cheering fans as the boys basketball team played one of their most competitive games of the year. The student section was filled, and it seemed that the whole town had come out to watch this match up. Castle and Jasper have had a rivalry for many years, so this was a big game for the Cats. Besides the Knights being a rival to the Cats, they were now also SIAC conference opponents. This put even higher stakes on the line for this game.

Though the team ended up being down after a very rigorous and hard fought half, it did not discourage any of the players, or fans. After coming back onto the court after halftime, the team began to gain momentum, quickly showing they were still in this game. Eventually, in the fourth quarter, the Cats were able to overtake the Knights, gaining the lead and holding on to it. After a very intense and nerve-wracking fourth quarter, the game ended, with the Cats being victorious by a score of 50-45. The entire game was a battle, with neither team willing to go down without a fight, but the Wildcats were able to take home the victory against the Knights. Everyone in the stand that night noticed that the chemistry of the team on the court was like nothing they had seen from the Cats previously in the season. This year, the boys went undefeated at home after this win.

THE SHOW

must go on | The performing arts club puts on a one-of-a-kind performance

Mistakes are only human, but the latest theater performance turned mishaps and unfortunate events into unforgettable scenes that left the crowd laughing endlessly. With only eight cast members, The Play That Goes Wrong was a big change of pace for many of the members of the Performing Arts Club. This play-within-a-play was the first in a sea of musicals that have been performed at JHS. "At first, I was very hesitant about doing the play because I have never done one," senior Reggie Matute explained, "I ended up loving it after I was cast alongside my friends." Despite having previously only performed musicals, having a new, humorous play turned out to be a positive experience.

Not only did the crowd go wild with each new stunt, the cast also had the time of their lives messing things up on purpose and improving their acting throughout the scenes. It made the play feel less rigid and stressful, because mistakes were part of the show. "I'd say the best part of the play was how much fun we were able to have with it," junior Leo Rasche expressed, "If we made a mistake, we were able to run with it, and I loved that." From sitting on fellow cast members to false floors, the out-of-the-ordinary play was a hit. Everyone was engaged the entire time, hanging on to every word. Matute exclaimed, "I will always remember [this play] for the rest of my life." Even though there was a small cast, the members of the play did a fantastic job and made unforgettable memories along the way. They were very glad that they had chosen to go a different direction with this play, and that it had ended up being a hit.

LAYING IT ON
Junior Leo Rasche plops down onto "dead" senior Jessed Daugherty, who has just been laid to rest on the couch on stage.

PLAYING DEAD. Iveth Calderon, the only sophomore in this production, takes the stage as Max, a young, excitable actor who finds his love for theater mid-play. Calderon's character can be seen repeating jokes and over-exaggerating his movements to get even more laughs from the crowd.

CONTAGIOUS GRINS. AJ Arteaga, a senior, smiles as he walks some of his cut up food down to the cafeteria. Arteaga is part of the foods class and helped his group by cutting some ingredients for their tailgate creation.

GAME DAY CREATIONS. Seniors Ben Henke, Nate Johnson, and Carson Mehringer, along with junior Andrew Clauss all sit by the "pigs in a blanket" they made for their tailgate team up. The foods class, taught by Mrs. Beier, and the marketing class, run by Mrs. Mehringer, worked together to create a mock tailgate event. Each group in the foods class made their own stereotypical tailgate snack, dip, or entrée while the marketing class used advertising strategies to campaign for the football team of their choice. The two classes then came together to "tailgate" and enjoy all the delicious food and memories that were made.

SHOWING OFF. Senior Dayanara Alvarado admires her nails during the play as everything around her goes horribly wrong. Alvarado, one of the few seniors in the play, played the attention-loving actress known as Sandra.

CASUAL READS. Senior Alexis Kleiman enthusiastically plays her part to a T as she sprawls out on a couch on stage with a book in hand. As one of the many stars in the past JHS shows, Kleiman enjoyed the change of pace with this fun laid back show.

SERIOUS PROCLAMATIONS. Senior Reggie Matute stars alongside 4 other seniors as Robert, a seasoned actor who grows tired of his colleague's mistakes. Matute has starred in a number of shows since his freshman year, and he continues to wow with his commitment to perfecting his characters.

FFA week reigns in new-found club spirit

A DAY AT THE ZOO. One of the many activities that occurred during FFA week was a petting zoo, which brought local elementary school students adventuring around the high school. Freshman Grace Kluemper held a cow as kids admired the animal and asked questions.

This was a great way to get the community involved in FFA week and bring a little bit of fun into the curriculum.

MASTER CHEF. FFA kicked off the week with a cookout for their members. This was a time for the members to bond, as well as prepare for the upcoming activities of the week. These activities included tractor and truck shows, a petting zoo, dress up days, and much more. Sophomore Tyler Stemle acted as a chef for the group, hat and all, and whipped up some tasty food. Everyone enjoyed the evening, and it was the perfect way to start the week.

STATE ON THE HORIZON. Sophomore Mitchell Mauck gets his personal best of 422.3 at the regional diving meet. This was enough to capture a place in the state finals.

making a SPLASH

One diver captures a spot in the state finals

Two of Jasper's divers, sophomores Mitchell Mauck and Brandon Mehringer, competed at the regional diving meet on February 22. In order to get to this meet, they had to qualify during sectionals, which they did with ease, blowing their competition out of the water. The regional meet determined who would move on to state, with places one through eight advancing. The two divers each executed 11 dives, all different, and the totals of these 11 were added up to be their final scores. Out of 18 competitors, Mehringer came in 13th with a score of 208.10, and Mauck came in 3rd, qualifying for state with a personal best of 422.30.

Both boys had many exceptional dives, and they made sure not to let their nerves get the best of them, even though it was a very nerve wracking day for the pair. Diving is a very technical sport, with a lot of smaller, more fundamental aspects coming together to make an excellent dive. These little things are what set Mauck on top, and what he focused on working on during the week leading up to regionals. "I mainly focused on the small things such as approaches and entries," exclaimed Mauck, "as they really contribute to getting higher scores." Even one small adjustment on a dive could lead to an exponentially greater score. Since Mauck moved on, the week leading up to state he is going to work on upping the difficulty of his dives, and nailing down his approaches. This will help him get his head in the right spot going in to this important meet. All in all, it was a very successful meet for the two young divers, with both placing in the top 15, and Mauck moving on.

"Spring has sprung"

As the school year winds to a close, new beginnings are popping up left and right in the form of blooming flowers, new sports seasons, and the graduation of the Class of 2022. Spring also plays host for the prom, a night that's been looked forward to by nearly half the school. After they've had their fun, students will spend 2 weeks of April taking AP exams, which most have prepared for the entire school year.

This semester, students have shown more school spirit. The emergence of new spirit day themes and exciting pep rally games has changed what it means to be a Wildcat. This school year has seen an increase in support for student activities, whether it's baseball or the arts. The Wildcat community has shared a bond unlike any other during the last few troubling years, creating a supportive, welcoming environment that has taken Jasper High School to the next level.

making a MARKSMAN

Archery wraps up its season

You nock the arrow on your bow as you focus all of your concentration on what you are about to do. You draw the bow as you bring it up to your face. You aim for the center of the target as you take one last deep breathe, narrowing your eyes. And then finally... you release. The arrow shoots through the air at a speed too fast to follow, and then hits the target, revealing how well you just shot. These are the steps that every member of Jasper High School's archery club is very familiar with.

This year was a very important one for the archery club, as it marked finally getting back to normal. Last year, the club was barely able to go to any competitions at other schools due to COVID concerns. Instead, they spent the season practicing and continuing to improve for when they would finally be able to compete again. This year, the club was finally able to showcase their marksmanship at a variety of competitions against other schools; their hard work finally paying off. The club performed very well at the competitions, and after a successful season, there is no doubt that the archery club will continue this upward trajectory next year.

STAYING COOL. On Tuesday, March 2nd, students of Jasper High School participated in a spirit day that they've been asking for ever since it became a trend on the social media platform TikTok. On "anything but a backpack" day, students were encouraged to use anything they could find as a backpack, except, of course, for an actual backpack. From shopping carts to grills, coolers to pet carriers, and kayaks to Kstef's giant green M&M, students spent the entire day laughing at all of the crazy items their classmates were using as backpacks.

Dance team
seniors put on one final show

feel the BEAT

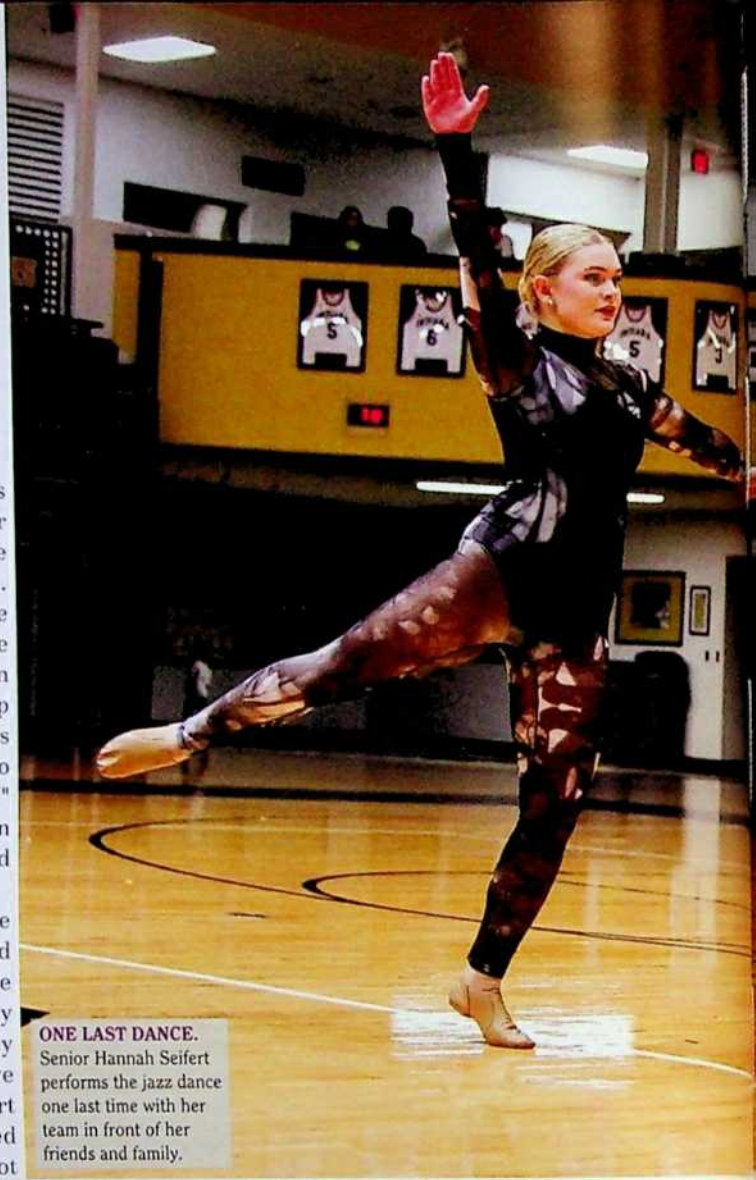

The Jasper Dance Team has become an exceptionally close-knit team this year after spending large quantities of time together on the sidelines and at practices over the years. After working hard to perfect all of their dances this season, the team finally got to display their hard work for the community at a showcase that was held at the Jasper High School gymnasium. This was a prime opportunity for the girls to show their friends and family the work that they were so proud of. For the seniors on the team, this would be the last time they would dance alongside their teammates, making it an extremely bittersweet moment. Various seniors took on a role of leadership with this year's team to make the group more inclusive and bring the girls together. "To me, senior year comes with more of a leadership role. I tried to lead by example and treat my teammates as if we were all the same," expressed senior Leslie Mendel. Having a positive influence to look up to on the team will allow the underclassman to carry on the inclusivity and good work ethic of this year's team.

Not only did the girls work hard throughout the school year, they also made countless memories with one another. "One of my favorite memories would probably be going to DQ after our Tuesday night practices with some of the girls!" exclaimed senior Maggie Hubster. Many of the senior girls stated they don't think about what movement comes next for them while they dance—everything becomes muscle memory with time. Many of them have been dancing since they were very young, and their dedication to the sport has not wavered since. Senior Hallie Sargent explained, "I've been involved with dance since I was little, so I just have continued doing it and never got tired of it."

DANCE MOMS. For senior Maggie Hubster, her inspiration for dance was her older sister—and joining dance just felt right for her. Being a senior now and seeing her mother and father performing and pretending to be her was the best memory she could have. "It was so funny watching my mom act like me. My dad was spot on about the things I would say and think. They both did really well with it!" exclaimed Hubster.

ONE LAST DANCE. Senior Hannah Seifert performs the jazz dance one last time with her team in front of her friends and family.

THE ART OF EXPRESSION. Junior Grace Bartley displays a serious appearance as she strikes a pose. Facial expressions are crucial for the dancers, as many different facial expressions can add more excitement to a dance.

SAVORING THE MOMENT. Senior Hallie Sargent puts on a big smile and captures the moment she saw her mother perform and pretend to be her while doing a routine.

"I'm nearly fluent in sign language."

NEW ART GALLERY. For this year's art show, student work from across Dubois County was put on display at the Thyen-Clark Cultural Center's art gallery. "The old space was smaller and so we were really limited on how much work we could bring. It's an actual art gallery space, as opposed to the old space that was kind of a building we just kind of converted for an art gallery," stated Mr. Dodd. The art teachers hope that the students' excitement about the opportunity will grow as they see their artwork on display in a true gallery.

DISPLAY YOUR PIECE. Ms. Fleck explains to her students the process of picking which student art gets put in the school's ever-changing display case. In a fairly simple process, the students have the chance to volunteer any artwork from the last year to be put on display at the encouragement of the art teachers. "We try to find students that we knew had really awesome pieces and try to get in touch with them and try to get them to bring them back," explains Ms. Fleck.

Students look back on their time in quarantine and reflect on the good and bad

Covid impacted me by...

"It definitely isolated me and made it very hard to adjust from middle school to high school, but it did give me the opportunity to try new things though."

- Eliana Ortega [10]

"I realized there are things we never really valued until we didn't have them anymore. With all the relatives lost, you realize that you need to hug people and tell them you love them, you never know when it could be the last time!"

- Victoria Rodriguez [10]

"It has made me value my time with my family and made me realize how nice life was before wearing masks was a thing. It also made me realize how much disease and pathogens we blindly exposed ourselves to before the pandemic hit."

- Ms. Sitzman

"I have grown in gratefulness for the time that I do get to spend with loved ones. I have grown in gratefulness for my health. I understand now how grief can unite people. I have more knowledge about what it means to be introverted and what it means to be extroverted, how some people thrived in lockdown and others didn't."

I realized more about myself, too."

YEARS LATER...

March 13, 2022 marks
two years since the COVID-19 lockdown

March 13, 2022 marks exactly two years since Jasper High School sent its students home in the middle of second semester for what would be a nearly 5 month break. At first, students were thrilled for a two week extension of their spring break and a school day consisting of zoom calls and online assignments. However, as time went on and the pandemic progressively got more severe, time at home seemed to drag on and students experienced what they felt was an endless state of boredom. Students and staff alike shared their least favorite parts of quarantine, such as "not being able to hug other people" as stated by Victoria Rodriguez. Mrs. Cobo, one of Jasper's FACS teachers, explained that her least favorite part of online school was "not being face-to-face with my students, missing all their stories, laughs and feeling more disconnected from them". Soon, the whole world was shut down and everyone was locked inside, unable to see loved ones and or interact with, essentially, anyone.

Despite the bad, many people seemed to look toward the positive side of things. Senior Hannah Flamion expressed, "[I liked] being able to spend more time with my family doing outdoor activities." Despite that some individuals are still struggling with the physical and mental effects of the-now improving-pandemic conditions, students have begun looking back two years later, appreciating the time they've shared with their loved ones, and admiring their perseverance through such an unfortunate time.

DON'T STOP THE party

TESTING YOUR LUCK. Senior Hunter Reinhart and juniors Casey Haggh and Thomas Gilbert play a card game in the "casino" using fake money that volunteers at post-prom provided for them. The LGI was full of different games for students to play to win prizes. Between the casino, the volleyball tournament, the various games in the gym, and the prizes announced at the end of the night for anyone in attendance, there was something for everyone at post-prom to enjoy.

SPIKE! Post-prom included an activity where students could sign up as teams of six to participate in a volleyball tournament! Seniors Elizabeth Ackerman, Michael Buechler, Anna Schmitt, Max Sternberg, Noah Hanneman, and Sam Leonard played together in matching shirts, much like many other teams in the tournament.

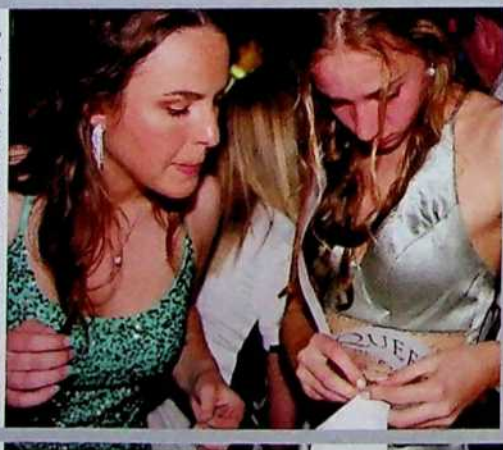

WIPEOUT! Junior Kaitlyn Kaeck gets knocked down trying to dodge a moving obstacle in the gymnasium during post-prom. The gym was full of fun activities like this, ping-pong, basketball, and even an inflatable obstacle course!

UNEXPECTED WIN. Junior Reagan Fortwendel smiles as she is announced the 2022 Prom Princess. "I was very excited, but also terrified to dance in front of people." Fortwendel was not expecting this win, but was very excited to be prom royalty alongside fellow junior Daniel King.

LAST MINUTE FIXES. Junior class secretary Merin Buck and junior class president Abby Buschkoetter worked with the prom planning team for months to create a perfect prom night for every student to enjoy. Even the night of prom, they were still working hard to make sure everything was perfect, fixing the sash for the prom queen right before she was crowned. "The week right before prom, stress was high, and we were working hard most days after school and in homeroom to assemble and plan things," described Buschkoetter. All of their hard work paid off in the end, as the planning team was able to orchestrate a night that many JHS students will hold in their memories forever.

Jasper holds prom with the theme "Golden Gala"

IT'S THIS MOMENT. Seniors Delaney Wigand and Luke Dawkins smile for a picture together right after both being crowned prom queen and king.

When asked what immediately comes to mind upon hearing the words "Golden Gala", one might say they think of elegance, glamour, and most importantly, fun. This year's prom was nothing short of those things, as students were able to get dressed up, dance, talk with their friends, and have a spectacular night that they're sure to remember for the rest of their lives. It took many months of planning from the junior class officers to create the perfect prom night. Though under a tremendous amount of pressure, the prom planning committee was able to pull it all off in the end, creating a fun, classy, and enjoyable atmosphere for all. "In the end, when everything was said and done, it looked beyond what we had expected, and I was so proud of everyone's hard work," expressed Buschkoetter.

When it finally came time for the moment that everyone was waiting for, the crowning of this year's prom royalty, students clapped and cheered as each of the nominees' names were called in eagerness and anticipation. The crowd was sent into an uproar when juniors Reagan Fortwendel and Daniel King were crowned prom princess and prince. "I was super excited and nervous because it was in front of so many people, but I got a really cool scepter which outweighed the nerves of everyone looking," recalled King. An even louder cheer came from the crowd when seniors Delaney Wigand and Luke Dawkins were crowned this year's prom queen and king. "I honestly had no idea who was going to win but I was not expecting it to be me and Luke. I thought it would be a toss-up between the eight people who were nominated," remarked Wigand. Regardless of who won, all in attendance were thrilled to be able to have the time of their lives in what is sure to be a night to remember.

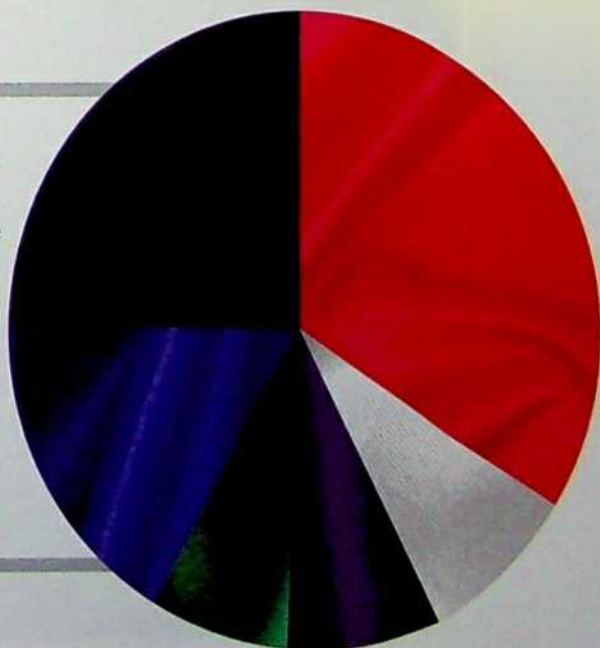

TOP OF THE WORLD. Junior Mason Thornburgh crowd surfs on the dance floor. Many students took turns experiencing the pure excitement of being lifted and carried by the prom crowd early on in the evening.

DRESSED

At this year's prom, you could find dresses in a large variety of colors. We sent out a survey to all Jasper High School students who went to prom to find out exactly how much of each dress color one could've found out on the dance floor. Red, black, and blue were this year's most popular colors, with red or black counting for over 50% of students surveyed.

FOR THE KIDS. All of the members of Jasper's Riley's Dance Marathon group pose for a picture after the numbers were revealed, showing how much they had raised throughout the year. They were $1,135.27 over their goal, and all of the members were very proud of what they had accomplished. Everyone was very excited during the big reveal, and were glad that all of the hours they had poured into the club were well spent. After this, the girls enjoyed the rest of the evening, socializing, playing games, and having a good time.

dancing for a difference

Riley's Dance Marathon exceeds their goal of $30,000!

On Saturday, April 9, Riley's Dance Marathon held their 6th annual dance marathon as the last big fundraiser of the year. Riley's Dance Marathon, in a nutshell, is an event where students dance for those who can't. This year's theme was superheroes, and it was a night filled with fun games, such as a dodgeball tournament and minute to win it challenges, good food, karaoke, and, of course, dancing!

This year, Riley's goal was $30,000, and throughout the year they did multiple fundraisers that all contributed to their overall total. These included a car wash, Monsters for Miracles, t-shirt sales, Riley's week, and percent night at local businesses. All of the fundraisers were very successful, and when the grand total was revealed at the end of the dance marathon, it showed that they had raised $31,135.07! This is the largest amount that they have ever raised. A lot of time and effort went into planning all of the fundraisers, specifically the big event. The many Jasper High School members of Riley's Dance Marathon put a lot of thought and labor into these events. "The year is full of stress, but the most rewarding aspect of it is knowing what good you are doing for other kids," voiced Riley's vice president Maggie Hubster. All of the stress and hard work paid off in the end when those numbers were revealed at the event, and everyone in attendance showed their excitement when they had realized that they exceeded their goal by over a thousand dollars.

EXUBERANT LOOKS. Junior Allie Schnarr laughs and locks eyes with senior Maggie Hubster after the total amount raised was revealed. The girls were elated when they saw they had reached their goal.

GROOVY MOVES. The students at the fundraiser follow along with a YouTube video as they learn a dance.

KARAOKE QUEENS. Senior Leslie Mendel holds the microphone as her and sophomore Caroline Hanneman sing during the karaoke portion of the evening.

KILLS AND THRILLS

Radio/TV classes make short films in 10 days

Every year, Mr. Elrod's Radio/TV I and Radio/TV II classes each make their own short film in only ten days in a project called the Ten Day Film Fest. Each class was given the same constraints in which they had to make their film. Each film had to include a character named Blake Wright, a paper clip, and the line "that's not how you use that". The character Blake Wright also had to face a difficult decision sometime in the film. The classes each drew a genre that they had to make their film.

The Radio/TV II class drew thriller as the genre for their film. This gave the class the idea to make their film revolve around the Michael Jackson song "Thriller". The plot involves a device made to get the song out of a character's head going wrong, leading to the creation of Michael Jackson zombies. The scientists had to fix the device to put everyone back to normal, but using the device would make everyone on the planet forget who Michael Jackson was, and it was all up to Dr. Blake Wright to decide whether or not to use it. They titled this film "Thriller".

The Radio/TV I class drew legal drama as their genre. They decided to make their film about the court case following a murder, in which a lawyer, Blake Wright, was tasked with representing his son, who was arrested for committing the crime. He had to decide whether he should continue to represent his son as the evidence piled up, or step down and let someone else represent him. They titled their film "The Ruling".

The Ten Day Film project is a favorite among the media students, because it is fun to collaborate on the project as a class. "I like seeing students come up with something they're proud to be a part of and find ways to problem solve throughout the process," commented Mr. Elrod on the project. When looking back at the entire process of making the films, it makes sense why this project is such a hit with Radio/TV students.

AN ALL-STAR SHOW! For the theater's third and final show of the year, they put on a student-produced Shrek Jr performance. Students directed, choreographed, organized, produced, and did nearly everything else for the play, all under the supervision of Mrs. Luebbehusen, who cast the roles and kept the students on track for their April 10th performance. "It was definitely more stressful to have a student-directed play, but it really helped me connect to all my classmates," commented freshman Colin McGowan, who played Pinocchio. Shrek Jr. was only performed one time, making it all the more special to theater students, especially this year's seniors. Theater students worked hard to bring this show to life, and the finished product was something that they are sure to be proud of.

TOGETHER WE ARE Unified track builds a strong community through sport One

The unified track team has become a strong community this year. In this sport, students get the chance to blow off some steam through running or throwing after spending a large part of their day in the classroom. For sophomore Caroline Buechlein, it had been an amazing experience getting to bond with her teammates. Buechlein said she enjoys that it gives her a chance to have fun and participate in the events while helping others be a part of the experience at the same time. "As a team, we are really close and we have so much fun together," stated Buechlein. She also explained that the initial reason she joined the unified track team was because everyone on the team comes together almost like a family, but as the season progressed she also wanted to see how much she could improve in shotput over the course of the season, with the help of her teammates' encouragement along the way.

Unified track has also helped many students form connections with other students that they may not previously have known, and helps them learn to let loose during practice, and just have fun. Senior Avery Knies is among these students, as she played a big role as a helper on the unified track team this year. "I joined freshman year, because my mom—who sometimes works with the kids during the day—told me about Unified Track. But I came back every year, because I loved getting to know them and having fun with them at practice," Knies explained. This sport will always have a special place in the athletes' hearts.

The softball team kicks off their season

The Jasper High School girls' softball team has without a doubt started their season off strong. This year their season has stood out from previous years, with five seniors on the starting team. While hitting off the season right, one of the seniors had one of their best games yet. "The best game for me so far was the opening season game against Pike," Senior Megan Matheis explains, "I went 3/4 with three home runs." Matheis has begun the season with an excellent start and continues to motivate her teammates along the way. Not only was this game an excellent one for Matheis, the whole team excelled while playing Pike. The game was the Wildcats' season opener, and they started off with a bang. Winning 7-3, it was a great way to kick off the season, and get the team immediately started on the right track.

The team continues to improve upon themselves as well, as they have had a multitude of games since they have faced Pike, and they have gotten better each time. "I think the team has definitely improved," Matheis describes, "With not only the confidence up at the plate but in each other to get their part done." Softball, along with any sport is all about teamwork and depending on everyone to do their part in order to have a successful game. This year the seniors have taken their leadership roles and helped lead the team in a positive direction. As the season continues, the team's hard work will hopefully continue to help the team improve and the seniors will end their last season rounding third and heading home.

CHOPPED

FINISHING TOUCHES. Seniors Connor Foley and Joey McGimpsey add finishing touches to their chopped master pieces before handing their desserts to the judges. The foods class put on their take of the famous cooking show Chopped. The competition went on for multiple days and consisted of a multitude of rounds with unique criteria for each. A panel of teachers volunteered to be the judges and eliminated teams each round. Overall the students enjoyed this end of year competition and loved the challenge of something new.

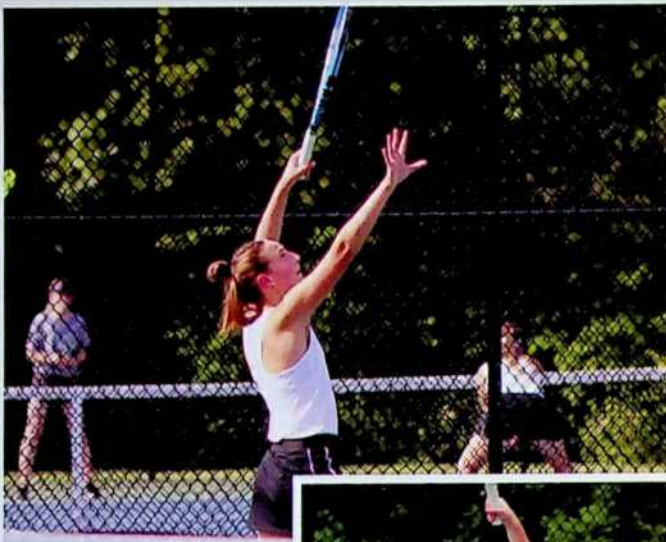

GENTLE POURS. Senior Micheal Buechler gently pours a cooking mix into a glass bowl during the chopped competition. Buechler helped his team with all the creations they ended up making.

GAME FACE. Avery Bartley, a senior, focuses her attention on her opponent before the ball is served, sticking her tongue out in concentration.

HEADS UP. Harper day, senior at Jasper High School, hits off the match by perfecting the serve, making it difficult to return the shot.

SWINGING HARD. Freshman Harper Wigand swings hard overhead as she smashes the ball over the net. Wigand earned a spot in the varsity lineup this year, becoming a core member of the team.

tiny HOMES

Various classes collaborate on building a tiny home

THE LONG HAUL. From April 2021 to May 2022, students from multiple different elective classes worked together to design, build, decorate, and market a tiny home made out of a 40'x8' shipping container. The Tiny Home Project was funded by a grant from eSolve Solutions and through sponsorships from the community. The community donated not only in money, but also in time and resources. Equipped with a living room, kitchen, bedroom and bathroom, the tiny home was put up for auction from May 17th to May 24th.

FINISHED PRODUCT. Some of the contributions to making the tiny home included architecture students creating a layout for the home, business students determining how exactly to use the budget and negotiating with clients, construction students putting in things such as walls, windows, plumbing, and insulation, and design students decorating it. Students also had the privilege of having Hulsman Electric Co. to guide them through the process of doing the wiring and electrical.

serving up a perfect season

The girls' tennis team goes undefeated all season

The girls tennis team accomplished something this season that was unprecedented in all of Jasper tennis history; they had an undefeated season. This was a great feat for the team, as they faced many tough competitors during the season, sometimes barely coming out on top. "I was so proud of the tennis team when we became undefeated," exclaimed senior Delaney Wigand, "We had beat all of the top Indy schools that we were not expected to beat." The tennis team trained hard during the off-season and everyday in practice to accomplish this, and they were all very proud of themselves.

Of course, a big achievement calls for a big celebration, and the team celebrated accordingly. After the last match of the regular season—which officially deemed the team undefeated—everyone, including the coaches, went to junior Ally Wigand's house. They all jumped into her pool while still in their uniforms, and it is said that coach Elrod even did a flip off of the diving board! The girls hung out the rest of the night swimming and eating ice cream cake, and this event brought them closer together as a team. This was an aid to them as they shifted their focus to the post season, because they knew they needed to keep their eyes on the prize, which was state. "We wanted to celebrate our awesome achievement, but also keep our eye on the real end goal," explained junior Brailyn Whaley. Being undefeated is something that no other Jasper tennis team has ever accomplished, making this success one for the books.

The softball team secures three wins in one week

HARD HITTING. Kylie Morton, a senior, hits a single during one of the Cats' many games this week. Between the days of May 10 and May 14, the softball team beat three teams: Vincennes Lincoln, Owensboro Catholic, and Evansville Bosse. This was one of the team's most successful weeks of the season.

keeping the season ON TRACK

The boys' and girls' track and field teams have success at Sectional and SIAC

Both the boys' and girls' Wildcat track and field teams gave their all in SIAC and Sectional competitions over the last two weeks, and both teams saw excellent results from all of their efforts.

On Monday, May 9th, the girls' track and field team competed at the SIAC meet at Evansville Central High School. The team was able to finish first place at the meet with 141 points, beating out nine other schools, including Evansville North in second place with 77.5 points and Evansville Reitz Memorial in third with 76 points. This win continued the team's undefeated streak, with 19 of the 20 athletes scoring points and 9 athletes having personal bests. Winning by this large of a margin is rare in the world of track and field, and this important win boosted the team's confidence. While Jasper's girls team didn't win Sectional, some of the athletes on the team advanced to Regional and State, with the 4x100 relay team setting a new school record of 49.53 at the State Finals.

On Tuesday, May 10th, the boys' team competed in the SIAC meet and finished second to Castle by a score of 104 to 119. The boys' team didn't let this stop them though, as on May 19th, the team competed in Sectional and came out on top as the 2022 Track and Field Sectional Champions. Senior athlete Abe Eckman was able to finish first in the 3200m run at Regional and 2nd at State, setting a new school record with a time of 9:01.5. Junior athlete Jaryn Weinel also advanced to State by coming in third at Regional. At the girls' track and field team's Sectional meet, they came in second place, with Forest Park getting first place. All-in-all, both track and field teams had hugely successful seasons, with their 2023 season looking to be even more promising.

JUMPING HIGH. Taylor Bachman pushes off the ground as she gains enough power to make it over the bar during high jump. Bachman, a senior, excelled at multiple events this year, one of them being high jump at the beginning of the season. Tori Brandt, another high jumper on the team, made it all the way to regionals, placing 7th.

VISUALIZING THE JUMP. Junior Paige O'Neil pictures her approach in her mind before vaulting, so that she can get the steps, and the turn, just right. She made great improvements this year, with the help of the two part time pole vault coaches, and went from a personal best of 7 feet last year, to a personal best of 9 feet this year. O'Neil took first place at sectionals, capturing 10 points for the team and a spot in regionals, where she tied for 9th. "My favorite thing about pole vaulting is getting to hang out at the end of practice with all of the other pole vaulters," explained O'Neil. This camaraderie created a positive atmosphere at practice and meets, which made this season all the more memorable for the vaulter.

IN THE FIELD. Junior Bralen Bair flies through the air during one of his long jump attempts. Throughout the track and field season, athletes competing in the field events brought in a lot of valuable points for Jasper High School. Athletes competing in long jump, high jump, pole vault, shot put, and discus not only benefited the entire boys' track and field team during the season, but they also made great improvements individually, with Bair winning Sectional in long jump.

ALL too SOON

The Jasper High School Class of 2022 takes the stage

Graduation is always a bittersweet moment. This year's graduation ceremony was no different, as it was full of joyful laughter, tears of sadness, and all the emotions in-between. All eyes were on the Class of 2022 as they entered the gymnasium. In a night full of band music, choir singing, and rousing speeches, the now-graduated seniors got to close one chapter of their lives and begin writing the next. In his valedictorian speech, senior Joe Ruhe compared the class's journeys to broken paths, constantly converging, diverging, and fixing each other. "We, however, unknowingly found the missing pieces to each other's paths," explained Ruhe. The graduating class has gone through a lot together, especially in the times of COVID-19 and quarantining, and the ceremony was about celebrating the strength and determination that it took to get to that point, where all of their paths met for the last time. Ruhe concluded his speech with some words of wisdom for his classmates. "Stand together and stand strong, because nobody should ever have to pave their path alone," expressed the valedictorian. Through thick and thin, the Class of 2022 persevered and made it to what was both the end of a lifelong journey and the jumping-off point into the next adventure. The four years that the Class of 2022 spent together at Jasper High School will live in their hearts forever.

VALEDICTORIAN
Senior Joe Ruhe delivers his valedictorian speech to his graduating classmates. Ruhe graduated with an impressive cumulative GPA of 4.643.

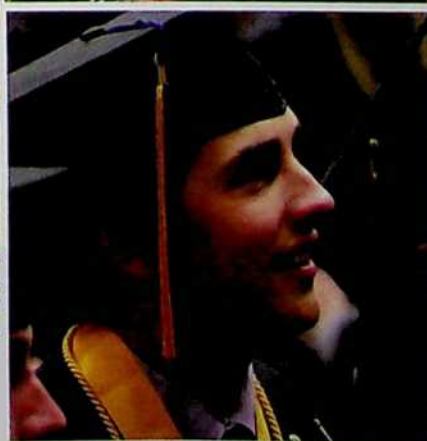

LEAVING YOUR MARK.
Senior Alexis Meyer smiles and shakes Mr. Jochum's hand as she receives the 2022 PTO Outstanding Senior Girl award.

FULL-CIRCLE. Mr. Mauck stands before the graduating class, just as he had done during the assembly on the first day of school. Both days, Mr. Mauck congratulated the students on making it to their senior year.

READY TO SERVE. Senior Ashton Foster stands proudly as all who are entering the armed forces are asked to rise.

RECAPPING THE YEAR. Senior Tanner Erny smiles as he sees pictures of himself and his friends in the senior video.

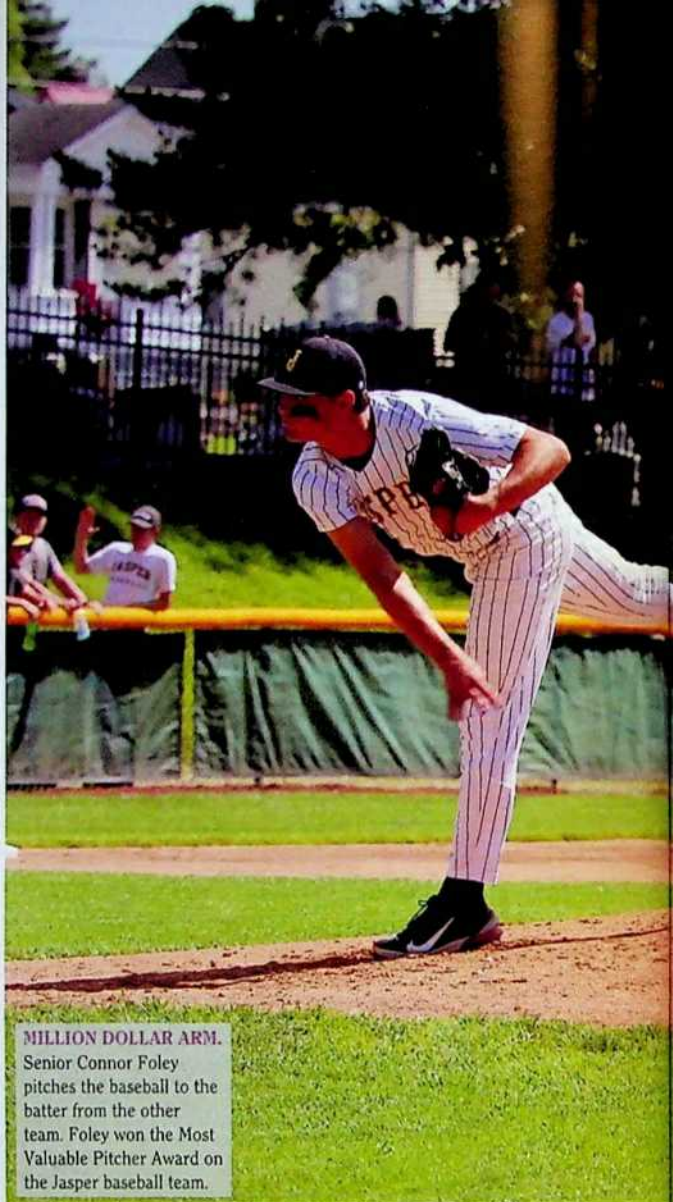

take me out to the BALL GAME

The Wildcats are sectional champs!

After a season full of mostly wins, Jasper's varsity baseball team knocked it out of the park at this year's Sectional Championship game against Castle High School. On Monday, May 30th, the Wildcats took on the Knights at Bosse Field. After three hours of play, Jasper eventually won in 5-4 over the knights, making the Wildcats Sectional Champions for the second year in a row. "We could've lost that game but everyone kept a positive mindset and kept fighting," recalled senior athlete Chris Hedinger. They did not let themselves give up, and battled hard until they won.

On the morning of Saturday, June 4th, the varsity team played at Regional against New Albany High School at Ruxer Field in Jasper. After a tough game, the Wildcats fell to the Bulldogs with a final score of 5-2. Despite the team not making it to the Regional Championship, they still look back on their season in a positive light. One particular word came to mind when asked to describe the 2022 baseball season. "Success," stated senior Connor Foley. "It wasn't a State Championship, but it was a Sectional Championship and still a great season for the team and program. It didn't end the way we wanted but we still won one of the hardest sectionals in the state for the second year in a row."

The team is now looking forward to next year and has high hopes for the 2023 baseball season, and they plan on working harder than ever to relive the excitement of winning a State Championship. The graduated seniors also look forward to keeping up with the team's next season, and coming to as many games as possible to support their teammates. The seniors had some words of wisdom for next year's team. "Play every single game like it could be your last," shared senior Chris Hedinger, "because eventually you'll run off Ruxer Field for the last time and it's one of the worst feelings realizing that it's really over." Whatever obstacles may be thrown at the team in the coming year, they undoubtedly have the skills and mindset to come out on top once again.

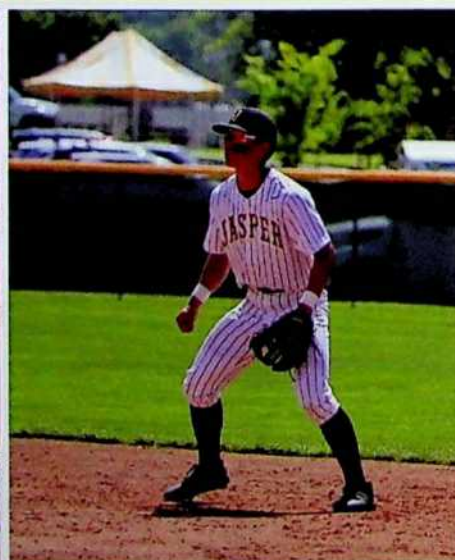

MILLION DOLLAR ARM. Senior Connor Foley pitches the baseball to the batter from the other team. Foley won the Most Valuable Pitcher Award on the Jasper baseball team.

ROOTING FOR THE HOME TEAM. Sophomore Tyler Atkins roots for his teammate, junior Drew Bradley, as he sprints to first base during game one of Regional.

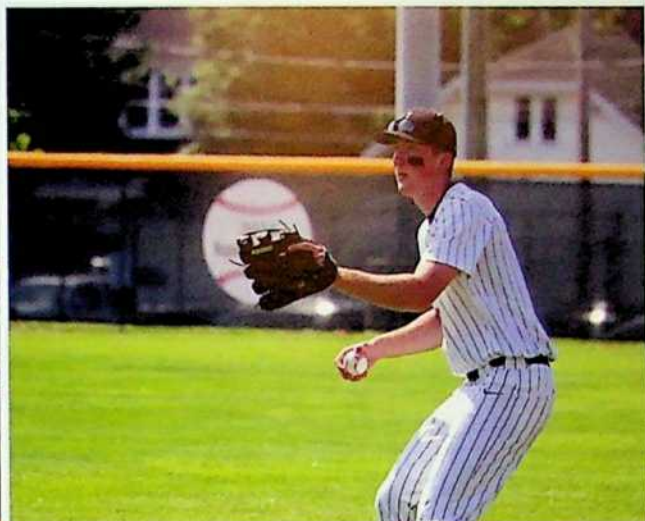

BATTER UP! Freshman Kai Kunz gets in his batting stance and waits for the other team to pitch the ball.

AT THE READY. Senior Kody Morton prepares to catch the baseball after a player hit a pop-up.

"I've played 4 different sports."
[Anthony Person, III]

QUICK THINKING. Senior Will Weinzapfel gets ready to throw the baseball back to the pitcher in order to stop the runner from advancing.

CLOSE CALL. Senior Chris Hedinger leans out of the way to avoid getting hit by the ball.

TEAM SPIRIT. Junior Andrew Sternberg cheers with the rest of the team as his teammate rounds first base.

The girls tennis team remains undefeated until quarterfinals of State

VICTORY IS OURS. Junior Allie Schnarr hugs senior Delaney Wigand in excitement after winning a match against Sacred Heart Academy, one of the best teams in Kentucky.

EYE ON THE PRIZE. Junior Ally Wigand gets ready to return the tennis ball to the other side of the court. After a flawless season, the girls tennis team's undefeated streak finally ended in the quarterfinals of the IHSAA State. The team fell to Saint Joseph High School on Friday, June 3rd during the quarterfinals held at Carmel High School. Though the season came to an end just short of the State Championship, their season was nonetheless one for the history books.

In these word clouds, the classes with the highest votes can be found most frequently. The "A" on the left displays the classes voted as the easiest, and the "D" on the right displays those voted as the hardest. Out of the students surveyed, a majority said spanish would be their most difficult final, while band would be one of the easiest.

a good night's rest

We've all heard about the importance of a good-night's sleep, but how much do we really know about our rest requirements? Following a proper sleep schedule has been proven to sharpen decision-making, improve concentration, and calm the body. For teenagers and young adults, a healthy sleep schedule entails between 8 and 10 hours of sleep every day. However, reports show that teenagers get an average of only 7 hours of sleep each night. Getting a full night of sleep is very important—in the long term and the short term. Chronic sleep deprivation can lead to depression, lowered immune system health, and more serious health issues later in life, such as heart disease and high blood pressure.

headphones & study music

When asked about their studying essentials, one of the most common answers from students was good music. According to our survey, having a good, study-oriented playlist can be make-or-break for some of Jasper's students. Research has shown that the right kind of music can improve focus and provide motivation while studying, as well as lengthen one's endurance to accommodate longer study sessions. Although musical preference is based on personal taste, there are some types of music that are more helpful to students than others. The most common of these is classical music, which can range from an entire orchestra to a singular piano. Next time you find yourself studying, try plugging in some headphones and letting sound take over.

"I play D&D and am obsessed with analogue film."

[pôrtret] noun

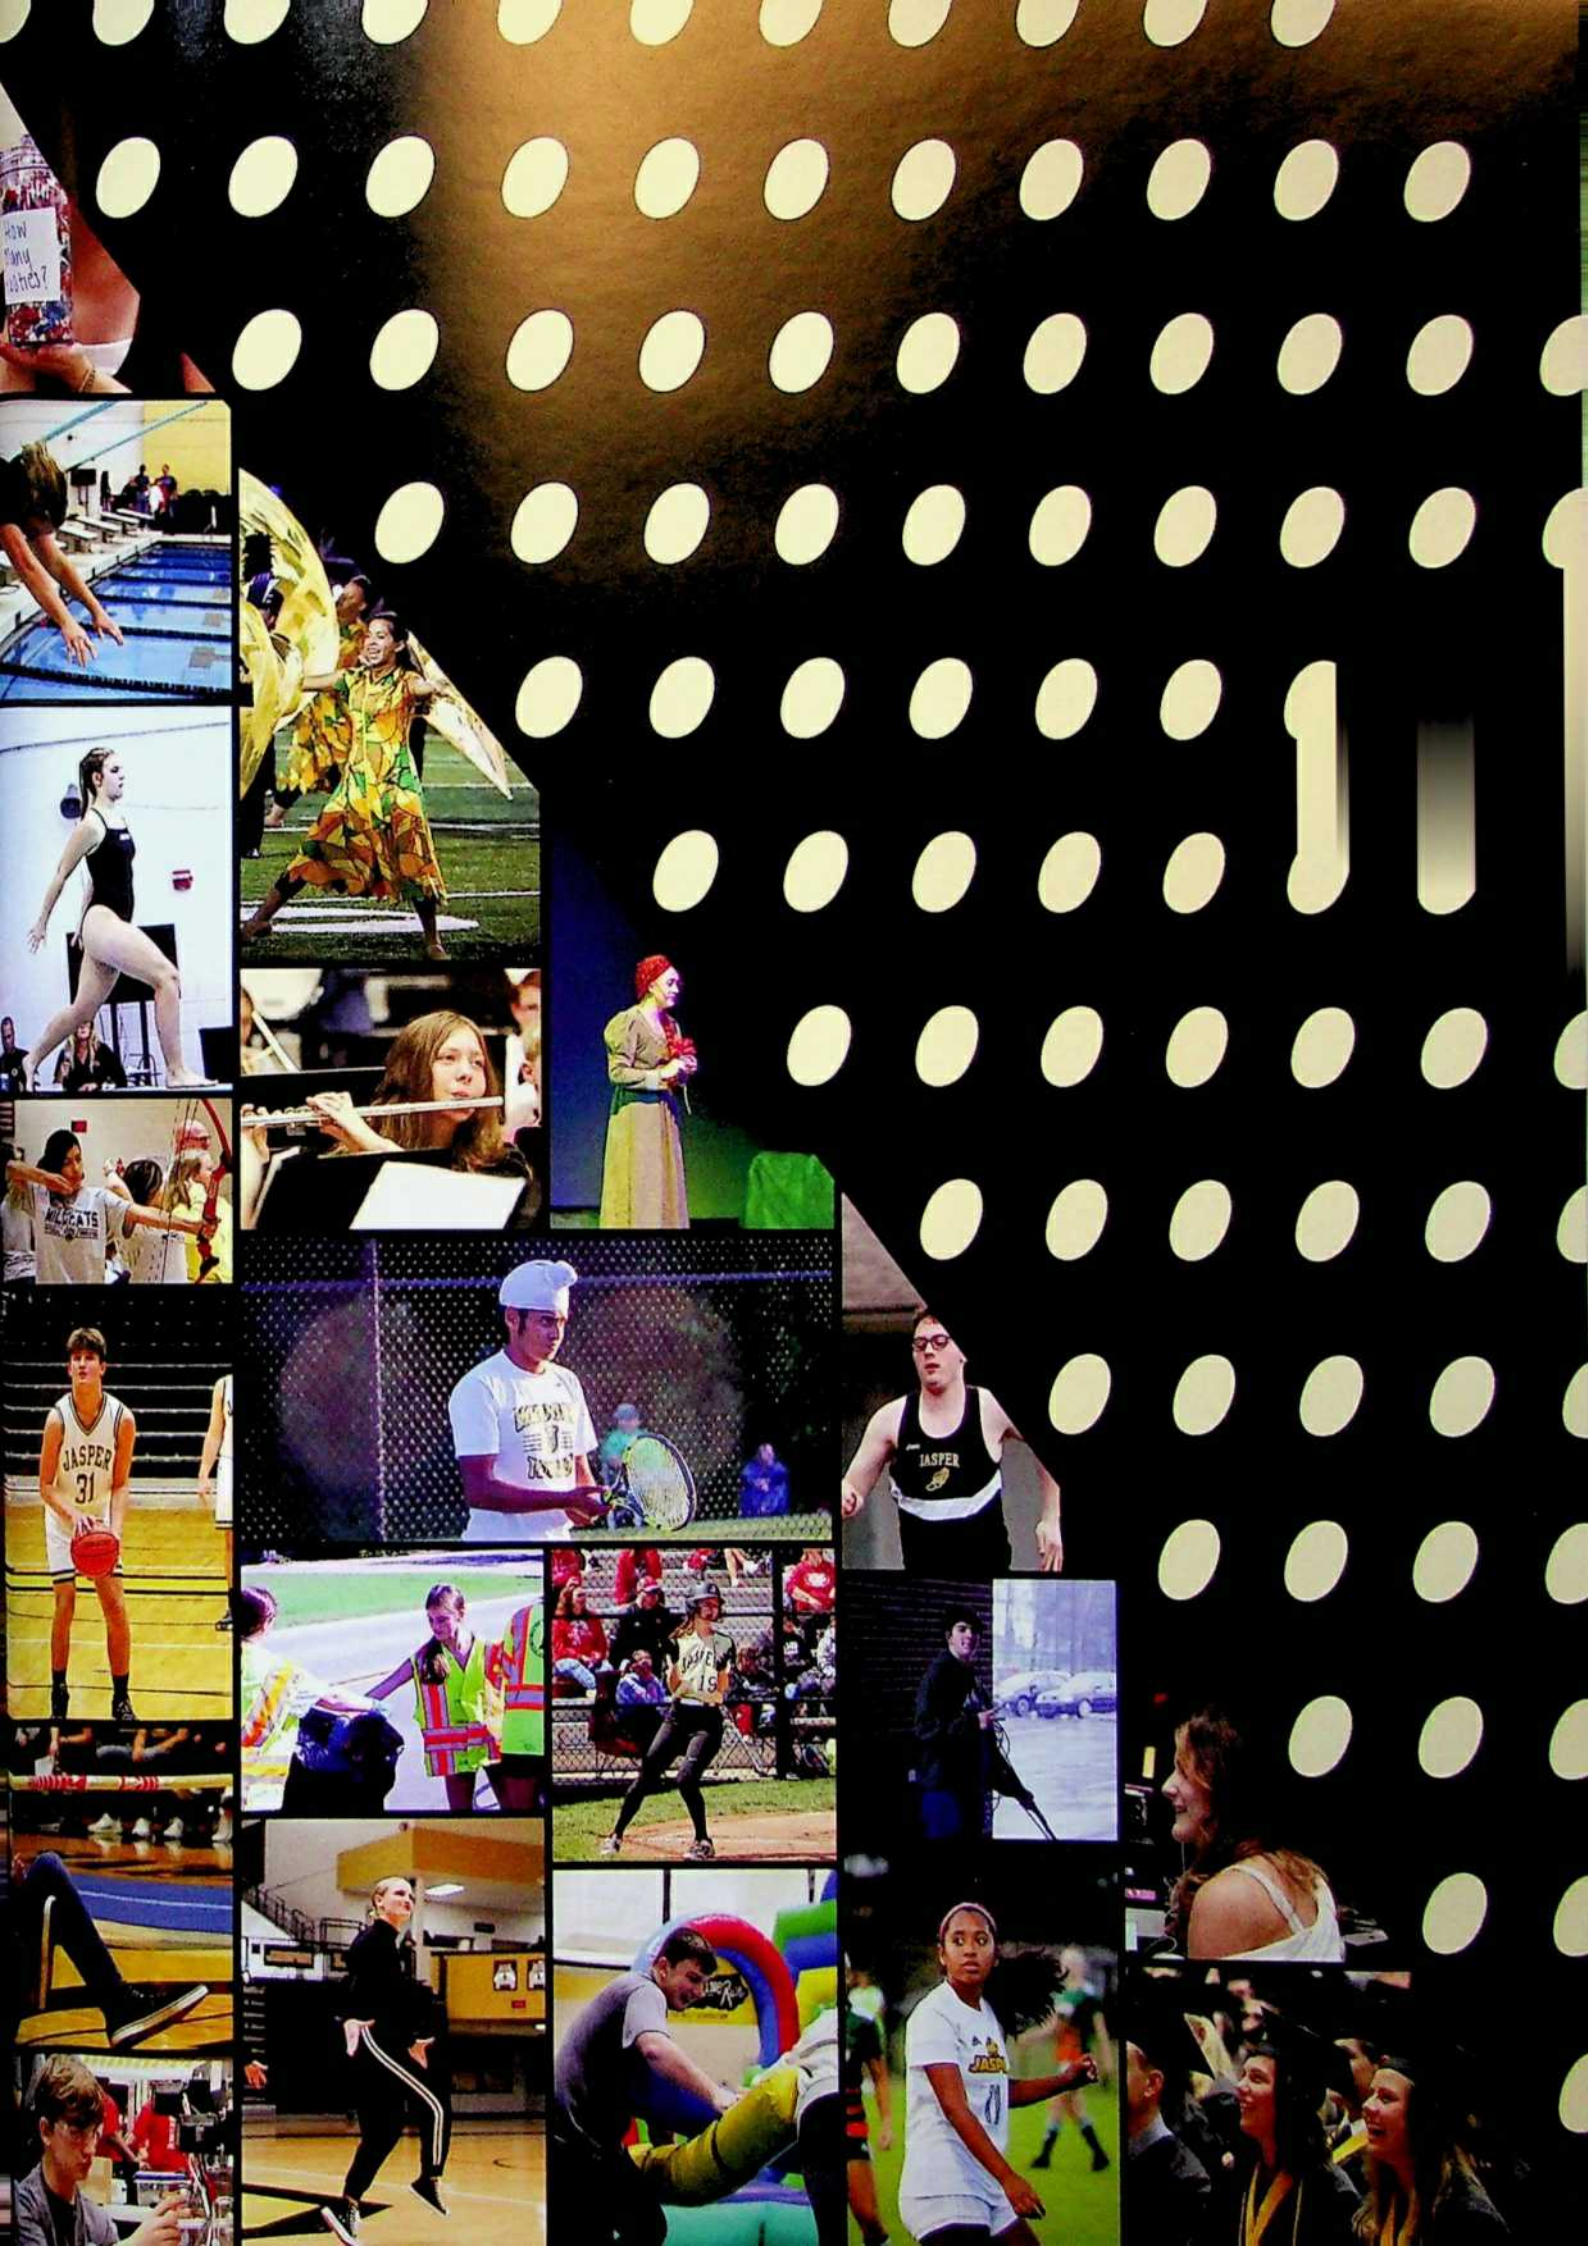

a photograph depicting the head and shoulders

"Your senior portraits look amazing!"

For a lot of students, picture day is a big deal. It's a day to dress up, feel your best, and hope that you don't blink when Kelly Buechlein snaps your photo. For many years, local photographer Robert McCarty headed our school portraits, as well as some sports team photos. This year, upon Mr. McCarty's retirement, Kelly Buechlein took over for both roles. After observing Robert McCarty in action on a couple shoots, Kelly Buechlein was all set to take on this year's big projects, such as homecoming and the senior class photo.

This year, rather than singling out the portraits, we've added some student Q&A's to this section. With this, we hope that the teachers' advice, memorable student stories, and much more will continue the theme of Jasper's greatness through even the least exciting pages of the yearbook.

DEAR FRESHMAN ME.

What advice would you give your freshman self?

"Just be yourself. No one's really paying attention." "Don't believe the middle school staff when they say high school is scary." "Don't procrastinate, and don't give up on yourself." "Don't wear that." "Don't stress so much about your grades." "It's okay to relax and focus your energy on self-care. You are important." "Drink more water." "Just go with the flow. It always has a way of working out." "Don't be afraid to take risks." "Spend time for yourself and know it's okay to stay home on the weekends. TAKE CARE OF YOUR MENTAL HEALTH!" "Study. Find good friends. Get involved in clubs. Be open to change." "Don't stop working. Everyday is an opportunity to improve."

Students tell us the hardest part of junior year

For JHS students, junior year continuously proves to be the most difficult. Whether it's the upcoming future preparation or intense AP classes, students seem to find themselves facing challenge after challenge, so we asked students what has made junior year so hard for them. Out of the students surveyed, 34% agreed that the toughest part was staying motivated, 27% said that their AP classes proved to be the most challenging, 19% argued that maintaining a social life was the most difficult, 15% agreed that planning for their future and researching colleges proved to be hard, and a mere 5% of students said the SAT was the biggest cause of their distress during the year.

What advice would you give the Class of 2022?

"Even if a decision leads to failure, you can learn from failure and become successful from that." "Hard work pays off, but also be yourself."
 - Mr. Mauck - Mrs. Stenftenagel

"Always work hard. Have fun. Keep life simple"
 - Mrs. Luebbehusen

"Life is not easy, and it's never going to be easy. It's the hard parts in life that make you stronger and make you a better person."
 - Mrs. Spellmeyer-Jochum

closing

[kl ziNG] noun

the end of something; finale

"The closing pages of this book are exceptional!"

The final pages of the yearbook are made to showcase the names and numbers that don't always make it onto a page: the students who are members in 5 clubs, the sports team records that don't quite have state listed, and the local businesses that show our school endless support. Though this is the final section of the book, we hope that you've enjoyed the content created by our staff and take with you an appreciation of Jasper's students and staff and the rest of the Wildcat community.

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

AINSLEY PIERCE

A senior, Pierce has been on the yearbook staff for 3 years, as well as taking various communications and graphic design courses. "My favorite part about creating the yearbook has been cultivating new ideas and finally getting that creative break where you know exactly what the design should be," Pierce explained. She hopes that the processes and strategies she's introduced this year will help future yearbook staff to come.

ASSISTANT EDITOR

REAGAN FORTWENDEL

Although Fortwendel is a junior this year, she already has big plans for next year's book, for which she'll be the Editor-in-Chief. "I'm super excited to have complete freedom when designing the book and picking consistencies, so we can make a book that resonates with us for our last year of high school," Fortwendel shared her excitement about the upcoming school year.
